FOR TEMPERANCE

TELLS OF THE MANY PITIABLE SCENES BEFORE HIM.

Other Court News of Special Interest Given Attention.

Judge Hadley is perhaps the most experienced man with victims of the drunkenness habit or disease(whichever it may be in this city and this morning in addressing a man named Kelleher whom he sentenced to the workhouse for five months, he gave a brief temperance lecture which contained a wealth of meaning and was appropriate to the day, the anniversary of Fr. Mathew, the apostle of temperance. His honor was at a loss what disposition to make of Kelleher, and in sending him to the farm, taking him from his family, the court said that he was astounded at the amount of drunkenness in this city and the many sad and deplorable effects of it. The facts continually presenting themselves before him in court ought to be enough to fill any respectable and law abiding citizen with the deepest disgust and awaken all to a sense of their duty towards suppressing the vice.

Hannah Gorman, who was in for being a common drunkard while in court was seized with a fit the result evidently of a prolonged debauch. She was sent to jail for six months.

And Lycurgus came back. Not the famous old Stoic, but Lycurgus S. Watson an old man with long hair and a patriarchial beard and who might have passed in a crowd for his historic namesake. He was charged by his elderly wife, Abbie, with having threatened her with a knife, but in the end she told the court that they had been "jawing" and that she was not afraid of him.

"Is he a sober man?" asked the court.

"He's sober enough," answered Mrs. Watson.

"Well, what is your standard of sobriety?" inquired the court with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"He doesn't drink any beer but just drinks tea and coffee like myself," was the answer.

THE OPENING OF THE

173 Middlesex Street, is Postponed until Saturday, Oct. 13, at 9 A. M. Keep Your Eyes on That Day.

In order not to disappoint the people of Lowell this Genuine Fire Sale must be postponed until Saturday Oct. 13th, in that time the high class clothing will be ready to be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of maker's cost. It will pay you to wait until Saturday, Oct. 13th, at 9 A. M. Everything must be marked and an inventory of stock taken, that is the cause of the delay of time.

All readers will remember the thrilling accounts of the great fire related by the Boston newspapers on Sunday, April 21st, and of firemen fighting the furious blaze, which was so terrific that it required a 4-11 call to subdue the scorching flames. Among the largest tenants of the building 883 Washington street was the renowned Samuel Cohen, wholesale and retail clothier, who occupied at the time of the fire part of the large building. As a result a large amount of clothing was totally destroyed. Part of the remaining stock and other goods, consisting of Fine Custom-made Fall and Winter Clothing for Men's, Boys' and Children's wear, was shipped to Lowell, Mass., to be sold. The large double store now number 173 Middlesex street, near South street, has been expressly rented for A Genuine Fire Sale, and the big stock of fine clothing that was saved has been placed in the building and will be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of actual maker's cost. This Genuine Fire Sale commences Thursday morning, Oct. 11th, at 9 a. m., and will positively last ten days only.

The orders of Mr. Cohen are to put such prices on the goods that there will be no question about selling them. This will give the people of Lowell and surroundings a chance to secure high class clothing for a mere trifle.

Men's Melton Cass, Fall Suits, that are sold in any and every regular clothing store at $12 and $14, you can get here at $3.85; English Diagonal Dress Suits, worth $25, go at $8.50; elegant imported Worsted Prince Alberts, silk and satin lined, $9.98, worth $35; Men's Fancy Silk Striped Trousers, worth $4.50, at $1.75; Men's Fancy Striped Dress Trousers at $2.75, worth $7.50; Boys' Pants 12c; Boys' Suits, worth $4, at $1.49; Men's elegant Fall Overcoats, $3.75, worth $15; Nobby Youths' Suits, $4.25, worth $12.50; English Top Coats, silk or satin, $6.75, worth $24; Cheviot Sack Suits, worth $20, at $6.65; imported "Vicuna" English Box Overcoats, lined with heavy twilled silk, $8.25, worth $28; foreign Wide Wale Worsted Dress Suits, worth $38, at $10.60, double and single breasted Cheviot Suits, $7.75, worth $21; Men's elegant Silk Mixed Cassimere Frock Suits, $8.50, worth $22.50; English Melton Silk Faced Overcoats, $7.50, worth $22; Men's Heavy Blue Cloth Double-breasted Suits, $8.50, worth $25; Men's Blue Kersey Overcoats, $7.98, worth $20; Young Men's Dress Suits, $5.75, worth $14.50; Men's Melton Cassimere Suits, 98c, worth $3; Men's Imported Clay Diagonal Worsted Full Dress Suits, silk lined, $9.50, worth $32; and 100,000 other Extraordinary Bargains not here mentioned, all to be sold in the next 10 days at 50 per cent. less than cost. Cut this out and bring it with you. Come early and take your pick.

☞Remember the Opening Sale cannot take place until Saturday, Oct 13, at 9 A. M., at 173 Middlesex St., near South St.

WINNERS NAMED

Three Great Ballot Contests in Ward Rooms.

Other Candidates Had Their Friends Out Hustling.

The democratic caucuses for the choice of representative candidates and delegates to senatorial and county conventions were held last evening and were largely attended. The chief contests were in Wards One, Three and Six in which Messrs. Roarke, O'Connor and Hoban were the winners. The details are given below:

Ward One.

For many years it has been the proud boast of the voters of Ward One that the "Acre" ward was the straightest ward in Lowell and that its caucuses and elections were the most honorable ever held in the city. Up to date the boast remains unchallenged for the the caucus last evening was one of the quietest, and most amicable affairs ever known in the history of the ward and an almost impossible feat was accomplished, namely, deciding upon a candidate without creating hard feelings in any quarter.

This caucus deserves more than passing notice for it was different from the other ward contests. In it were two young men, both members of the common council, with creditable records and both being men for whom every man in the ward would vote were the other not in opposition. Fred H. Rourke and P. J. O'Brien were the candidates and they fought a clean battle which was won by Mr. Rourke who will represent Ward One in the legislature next year. Every one knows the two gentlemen knows that either would be a credit to his ward in the legislature.

The caucus was called to order by W. A. Hogan, chairman of the ward committee, and the caucus officers were: Chairman, P. Keyes, Jr.; secretary, James Hearn; ballot distributor, John Pendergast.

These officers were decided upon by the candidates and in the selection of the chairman very good judgment was shown, for Mr. Keyes made an ideal chairman and settled whatever difficulties that arose in a manner which excited the admiration of both friends and opponents. Mr. Keyes, who is retiring from active politics with the current year, made a few remarks in which he expressed his heartfelt thanks to the voters of Ward One, who had honored him with their suffrage during his different candidatures.

The county and senatorial delegations were appointed as follows: Messrs. Peter J. Savage, Fred H. Rourke, J. Joseph Sullivan, James J. Fitzgerald, W. A. Hogan, Owen Callahan, Michael Bruin, M. J. Garvey, P. J. O'Brien, Hugh Maguire, P. Keyes, Jr.

The polls opened shortly after five o'clock and closed at 10.

During the evening Frank Partridge of the Merrimack house, a republican, attempted to vote and he was challenged. Chairman Keyes asked him if he had voted in any other caucus and he replied that he had not voted in that hall but had voted in republican caucuses.

He didn't vote.

Two men named Fuller and Halloran were challenged, one by a Rourke man and one by an O'Brien man and they voted under protest.

About 8 o'clock Councilman Ryan came in and procured a ballot and marked it. As he went towards the ballot box a half a dozen or more voters challenged his vote. The chairman told him his vote was challenged and he made a few remarks stating that he was going to vote and no one was going to stop him. Men on the floor said that the democratic city committee had decided that Mr. Ryan could not vote at a democratic caucus and that the city committee represented the opinion of its constituents. A member called for a vote on the matter and when it was put before the house a big majority was oppose to allowing him to vote, and he did not vote.

The counters were M. J. Garvey for O'Brien and Peter Savage for Rourke. The ballots were all counted without even the slightest semblance of trouble, and the result was:

Necessary for choice	485
P. J. O'Brien	483

Mr. O'Brien in a brief speech moved that the nomination of Mr. Rourke be made unaminous and Mr. Garvey seconded the motion which was unaminously carried.

Mr. Rourke than thanked his friends for their efforts in his behalf and then ended the cleanest caucus in the history of Ward One.

Ward Two.

This being a republican ward the caucus did not bring out such a large attendance as in other wards. Fisher H. Pearson presided and Frank Morrissey was secretary. The county and senatorial delegates chosen are: Lawrence Cummings, Israel H. Sternberg, P. A. Fay, W. F. Courtney, Frank Morrissey, J. C. Burke, John Hurtubise, Robert Tweed, Thomas Gallagher and A. J. Burns.

The county delegates are pledged for P. A. Fay, and the senatorial delegates for Hon. Peter J. Brady. Ralph W. Stickney was nominated by acclamation.

Ward Three.

The representative fight in Ward Three was as hotly contested as any in the city. The candidates were Councilman O'Connor, Charles L. Marren, overseer of the poor, and John E. Maguire, ex-assistant assessor. Mr. O'Connor made a most thorough and complete canvass and Mr. Marren made a strenuous hustle during the past couple of weeks while Mr. Maguire lost no opportunity of striking the voters in his own behalf wherever he met them although he did not put much time into the contest. It was arranged between the three candidates that Hon. Peter J. Brady should preside but as he declined to accept the position, Lawyer John A. Gately, a gentleman well known in the ward, was chosen and filled the place very efficiently. John P. Farley was secretary, and John J. Harrington, John F. Kelley, Henry Sullivan, George Marren and John Connolly, checkers. The proceedings were characterized by harmony throughout although the friend of each candidate worked hard for their favorite.

The senatorial delegatos were James F. Owens, Frank J. Donohoe, John W. McEvoy, Albert E. Moors, John F. Kinsella, Dennis F. Finnegan, Philip Riley, Wm. J. Kelley, Frank Devlin, John P. Mahoney, James F. Miskella, Robert H. Harkins, John P. O'Hare, Ebenezer Miller, John Meehan and Michael J. McGlinchy.

County delegates—Peter J. Brady, John P. O'Hare, John A. Gately, W. J. Kelley John P. Farley, John F. Curtis, John J. Duff, William H. Connor, John W. McEvoy, James F. Miskella, James F. Owens, Thomas J. McLaughlin, Joseph F. Egan, Dr. T. F. Cuff and John H. Moriarty.

The polls closed at 10 o'clock and the count was completed at midnight showing the result to be as follows. Total number of votes 1478 of which O'Connor received 658, Marren 511, Maguire 291, blanks 18.

On the announcement of the result Mr. Marren moved that the nomination be made unanimous and Mr. Maguire seconded the motion which was carried with acclaim.

Mr. O'Connor then made a brief address thanking his friend and the opposing candidates for the courteous treatment he received.

Ward Four.

Senatorial—Joseph T. Griffin, John E. Conlon, J. J. Ivers, Frank T. O'Neill, John F. Tully, Frank F. Tighe, John J. Ryan and Philip J. Connors. They were instructed to vote for Brady.

Ward Five.

In this ward there was no contest of any kind. John J. Burns presided and P. J. Hannafin was secretary. Delegates were chosen as follows;

Senatorial and county—Jeremiah Crowley, John J. Hogan, John J. Burns, M. J. Lynch, Andrew Barrett, J. F. Earight, M. J. Dineen, W. V. Hickey, John F. Murphy, James A. Young and C. A. Nealey.

Representative—John Welch, P. Custy, D. A. Sullivan, Charles Lebarge, D. H. Kelly, J. J. Hayes, W. T. Dunn, George E. Leavitt, George Kearns, Thomas J. Flynn and E. B. Quinn.

Ward Six.

One of the quietest and best conducted caucuses ever held in Ward Six was the representative caucus of last evening.

The High street ward room was crowded and at times, the line of voters extended down the stairway.

There was much speculation as to the outcome and while the sentiment everywhere seemed to point towards Hoban, the friends of the other candidates claimed that it was votes not sentiment that would tell the story. It happened that in this instance sentiment and votes went hand in hand and Mr. Hoban won. Councilman Tony Robinson went up to vote and was challenged, it is said by a man whom he befriended not a great while ago. After the challenge the question of allowing him to vote was put to the caucus. On the first vote the chair could not decide, on the second the decided that Mr. Robinson was allowed to vote and he did so. There were several challenges of voters but no special incident connected with them. The polls closed at ten and the result as follows was soon announced.

T. F. Hoban	487
J. J. Dolan	261
James Gookin	220
T. McCaffrey	38

It is seen that Mr. Hoban nearly beat all the other candidates combined.

When the result was announced there was a mighty shout and a rush for "Tommy" Hoban. So many wanted to get him on their shoulders that he was nearly torn to pieces.

Finally he reached the platform and made a short speech thanking the voters for their loyal support.

Senatorial—Philip J. Farley, Frank J. Simonds, Wm. F. Curtin, Anthony A. Conway, Dennis Harrington, Thomas P. Boulger, John Cole, Jeremiah Tompkins, Thomas F. Shannon, Timothy Hourihan, Frank P. Carey, John H. Clark.

OUT ON STRIKE

Haverhill's School Board Won't Get Together.

SCHOOL MATTERS IN BAD STATE IN THAT CITY.

Mayor Will Try to Get the Board in Session Soon.

HAVERHILL, Oct. 10.—There is a strike among the school board members, and seven declared they will not attend another meeting this year.

School matters have been in a bad state for several months, dating back to the election of the superintendent of schools and the election of teachers for the high school.

Over this election a dead-lock existed for several weeks and there was much feeling over the re-election of Principal Kelly and other teachers of the high school.

Since July it has been impossible to secure a quorum, and no meetings have been held. Among those prominently mentioned as being in the st ike is, Dr. L. S. Smith.

He declared today that he would not attend any more meetings this year; he will not seek another election.

He said there were six other members who coincide with his views, and that all had as a reason for not attending any meetings, a dislike of giving their time to school matters and then being publicly denounced and privately besmirched.

He declared that school matters in Haverhill are now being attended to by a triumvirate of the committee.

As these seven members have always been among the most punctual in attending meetings during their term, it is claimed that the chances are unfavorable for a quorum at another meeting this year unless something is quickly done. The strikers declare that they have nothing to arbitrate.

PERSONAL.

The family of Hon. C. A. Stott have returned home from Rye, N. H.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Elgin J. Bill and Miss Margaret M. Foote.

Charles H. Allen of this city has been elected a life member of the Mass. Horticultural society.

Miss Margaret Smith of Hanks street has gone to visit her sister, Mrs. A. J. Dunne, of Springfield.

The resignation of Second Lieutenant Butler Ames, Eleventh Infantry, has been accepted by the president.

Mrs. Hamilton Burrage and Miss Burrage will give a reception in honor of Mrs. Guy Burrage tomorrow afternoon.

The wedding of Mr. Manley H. Varney and Miss Harriette Belle Witherell is announced to occur Nov. 6, at 14 Harding street.

Mrs. George E. Garity of Talbot street entertained at whist yesterday, her club of 12 ladies being the guests. The prize winners were Miss Brenda Tweed and Miss Grace Cumnock.

Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Helen Josephine Devoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Devoll, and Mr. Charles Benjamin Kendall of Passaic, N. J. The ceremony will take place on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23d, at St. Anne's church.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The remains of Daniel O'Connor who died Saturday in Boston arrived in this city yesterday and were interred in the Catholic cemetery. Deceased was 75 years of age and was well known in this city.

IN THE POLITICAL SWIM.

In reply to the incessant cackling of the Citizen for Mr. Fifield's letter of acceptance, that gentleman has only to answer, "As a democrat I accept the nomination for congress tendered me by the democrats of the Fifth district." This will serve the purpose sufficiently. Being a democrat implies that he accepts the democratic platform and that if elected he will support democratic measures.

Mr. Fifield has a business experience that qualifies him for discharging the duties of congressman with credit to himself and his district. He has a personal interest in New England industries and can be relied upon from his wide experience to use good judgment on all matters affecting those industries. If we accept the Citizen's notions of what constitutes a qualification for the high office of congressman, we should select a political mountebank and a lawyer of large ambition and mediocre ability. As a good business mayor, Hon. George W. Fifield has not been excelled and as a successful business man and a democrat he will be elected to congress. As congressman his business tact, his knowledge of what the people want and what promotes prosperity will enable him to restrain the legal gentlemen and the mere politicans from embodying their dangerous theories in legislation.

Charles Ril'ey of Ward Six is a candidate for re-election to the common council and well he deserves another term. He has made an efficient representative of the ward, a good democrat and faithful to his constituency on all important questions. There will be little doubt of his re-election.

John B. Clancy of Ward Three is again a candidate for the common council. He has cut a card announcing the fact,

Some believe the figures indicate the number of times he has been a candidate. The card further states that he is a "country produce dealer;" that is supposed to mean that he deals in everything the country produces, as distinguished from what is not produced in the country, such as hen's teeth, for example. There is a postscript to his card with an "N. B.," which is interpreted "No bluffs," "No boodle" or "no beer" which means that Mr. Clancy is going to run a decent campaign and that he will stand squarely on his merits or demerits for he admits further on that if both are to be discussed he will be heard from. Some candidates claim to be perfection itself but Mr. Clancy is not so egotistical. He adopts a nonatesseracantagonical course in politics and that probably explains why he is so long before the voters as a candidate. "If democracy and competency are to be discerned" says Mr. Clancy in his postscript "I will place my candidacy visibly before you with full appreciation of past favors." From Mr. Clancy's experience, he must feel that a good many people are color blind on these points and that a magnifying glass would be needed to improve the "discernation" of the average voter in the banner ward. Very few would express such gratitude for the favor of defeat as does Mr. Clancy and this is to be appreciated all the more inasmuch as it is done in advance.

Judge Gaynor is the chosen leader of the reformers in New York. It was he who sentenced McKane and he holds a high place in the estimation of all true democrats. He was the strongest candidate with the single exception of Hill who could be nominated for governor of New York. He is now a great admirer of the New York senator. In a letter to Chairman Hinkley of the state convention he says:

"The reasons for which I publicly withdrew from the field to become the nominee for governor preclude me from accepting another place on the ticket I could not be a candidate for office and sit silent, as usage and etiquette would require me to do in my present case. It is now nearly five years that I openly objected as an individual citizen to political methods which I deemed low, base and unmanly, and to official acts which I deemed heartless crimes, involving as they did spoliation of the people's hard earned money for the enrichment of a few who follow politics as a trade and made public officials their mere tools. Owing nothing to politicians or political organization, and also remembering that whatever little I have done to lift government up was done as a private citizen, I do not value any office so big as to wish to achieve it against the opposition of those whom I had supposed would be my friends. If I thought that the withdrawal of my name would injure Senator Hill's canvass, I would try to see some way to remain, for his recent development, in the national senate, places him with the foremost public men of his day. Between him and his opponent he should and I trust will prevail.

Mr. Rowell of the Courier places Lawyer Qua in the field as a candidate for the school board in Ward Two.

Joseph F. Donohoe was hustling at the caucus in Ward Three last evening as a candidate for overseer of the poor. He is a popular young man and this is his first venture in politics. He will be a hard man to beat.

Councilman Joseph H. Gormley of Ward Three is a candidate for re-election. He has been in the common council one year, during which he has labored hard to promote the interests of his constituents. Owing to the great demand for employment, the councilmen were beseiged by applicants for employment, and for these Councilman Gormley did all in his power. He has been a loyal democrat and can be relied upon in all such contests to be true to his party. James Miskella and John H Callahan are also popular candidates for the council in the third ward.

The Columbian Club.

At a meeting of the Columbian Democratic club of Ward One, last evening, five new members were initiated; seven proposals for membership. The club is in a flourishing condition. Twelve persons have already been naturalized and several applications made. The club meets weekly and will endeavor to help the interests of democracy during the coming campaign.

CHEE-FOO HAS FALLEN.

Japs Will Next Fight In the Vicinity of Port Arthur.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A dispatch from Yokohama repeats the report of the capture of Che-Foo, and adds that the Japanese have landed troops at Tarnscada, near Port Arthur.

The Times, commenting upon the report of the capture of Che-Foo by the Japanese and the landing of troops at Tarascada, says that if these reports are true, the Japanese have at last shown their hands wisely in deciding to avoid an attack upon Pekin.

They have apparently decided to attack Port Arthur, and, it is stated, have disembarked troops in a bay to the northeast of that place, which is well suited to form a base of operations. The garrison may now number 10,000 men.

Like many places provided with extravagant coast defenses, Port Arthur has a back door. In selecting this as a place of attack, the Japanese are following the best precedents. The conditions have many points of resemblance to those of Sebastapol.

In the face of the coming winter, which the Chinese can better endure than the Japanese, the latter have every inducement to hasten the attack, and are unlikely to undertake another operation for the present.

Crooked Counting.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—City Clerk Galvin was a witness yesterday in the case of alleged fraud in the ward 19 caucus, and caused a sensation by testifying that he had not brought the registration box, as ordered by the court, because the figures on the box had been changed since the caucus. In cross-examination, the fact was brought out that the numbers were changed Monday night in city hall, because the boxes are to be used at the caucuses tonight. Judge Bolster made a final count of the checklist yesterday, showing that 838 names were checked off, whereas the announcement of Warden Mulhern, who is on trial, was a total of 976 votes.

A $26,000 Trotting Race.

An Arkansas Tragedy.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 10.—At Texarcana Dick Johnson, a gambler, had an altercation with C. E. Dixon, and Dixon threatened to kill Johnson in case he failed to produce a certain letter by 6 o'clock. Dixon took up a position in front of a saloon. A few minutes later Johnson emerged from the resort armed with a shotgun, and without warning blew Dixon's head off.

Strikers vs. Police.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10.—A desperate fight occurred between a squad of police and about 500 Italians, formerly employed at the Newark end of the East Orange sewer outlet, yesterday afternoon. The Italians were marching to the sewer to drive out the men who had replaced them. Two policemen and a number of rioters were hurt. After 10 minutes' fighting the strikers fled.

Strong For Mayor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—After one of the liveliest times witnessed for many years at a county convention in this city the New York state Democracy nominated the choice of the committee of 70, William L. Strong for mayor, and, excepting the names of Otto Kempner for sheriff and Dr. O'Meagher for coroner, accepted the remainder of the 70's ticket.

WARLIKE TACTICS

Practised by the State Militia at Boston.

THEY MADE A GRAND SHOWING IN REVIEW.

Many Old Time Methods Have Been Discarded.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Through the mist of a strangely variable autumn morning into the unbroken glory of an October day, 6000 Massachusetts militiamen marched. In the soft brown hats and canvas leggings of field uniform, with the double rows of bright buttons on their army overcoats glistening like stars upon the firmament, the state defenders made a most attractive picture.

Rapidly maneuvering, their swiftly shifting lines among the broad avenues of the Back Bay district and the greenery of the fens threw back a score of colors that arranged themselves with kaleidoscopic harmony. Infantry, artillery, cavalry, naval brigade, cadet corps, around they went with the signal corps on the towers and the men of the red cross on the Common—the whole an exemplification of what volunteers can accomplish in scientific warfare.

The main object of the day was the concentrating of masses into prescribed alignment from deployment in irregular formation; in less soldierly language, the bringing of a disciplined force to the relief of Boston, the performance of work in military fashion and the retirement of the forces as rapidly as they came.

The Essentials.

The men found themselves scattered amid the mists of early morning and Boston's suburbs; the problem was to close upon the mob supposed to be entrenched at the city's center. Every condition was made as much as possible like that of actual emergency. Having the battle line formed upon the general alignment of Massachusetts avenue, stretching through the city, across Harvard bridge and through Cambridge to Union square in Somerville, there was a general forward movement to a designated point by street formations, squares and riot columns to respective regiments.

The regiments reunited, each sought its proper brigade, and, that once formed, the march of the consolidated division was taken up for the heart of the city. All the bodies north of the city reported at Somerville, all south at the Roxbury baseball grounds, and you have the great outlines of the picture.

There was no burning powder or rattling musketry; instead, an endless forming of hollow squares, flank movements and skirmishing. The colonel gave the order to move forward and clear the street. The first company of each battalion swept ahead in double line, reaching from curb to curb. The second company wheeled to the left in two columns, covering the flank; the third to the right, while the fourth closed the square, the colonel and his staff, with colors in the center.

This done, there was the click of triggers from the flank lines to dislodge imaginary rioters in seventh-story windows and on tall housetops. Arrived at a cross street, the columns halted to allow the flank lines to face about down the side thoroughfare and fill the vista with flying lead, while the first company poured a volley into the crowd ahead and the rear company faced about to make the wounded think all hands were coming back.

On the Common.

Another square with unshifting lines was on the Common. Within the square and nearly at its center Captain Myles Standish sat astride his horse. There was the ambulance that looked like a bus. Luggage was scattered over the grass in firmly fastened bundles, while bedding and camp furniture were piled up in a heap.

Half of the naval reserves were with the land defenders. The others were in their element, some stringing a line of torpedoes across the Charles. All Captain Weeks' other boys were clambering about the dispatch and mortar boats, ready to run the most dangerous of blockades.

The signal corps, 'twixt earth and sky, perched on the roof corners of the state house and private buildings, were sweeping the horizon.

The men appeared less like marionettes, sawed out of plank, with their arms grown to their bodies. Instead, there was a natural swing that bids adieu to the old-time stiffness. The old wheel has become a turn: the methods of halting and resuming march, too, have been altered, and for the better.

Bits of bright color abounded from the crimson feathers of the sharpshooters to the blue and orange arm-bars of those engaged in special service. There were the snowy naval reserves nicely starched and laundered, the deep red cavalry blankets and the dazzling tin cups.

The schools in Cambridge were closed to allow the children to give the semblance of a riot, and many of the stores in Boston suspended business at noon.

The troops were reviewed by the captains, the colonels and the generals, and in the afternoon Governor Greenhalge, the commander-in-chief, presided over the grandest review of all. The parade itself was over two miles in length, and it was late in the afternoon before it had passed the reviewing stand at the state house. The line presented a brilliant spectacle. The soldierly bearing of the men brought forth round on round of applause from the spectators who lined the sidewalks.

Tin Workers Out.

THE PROSPECTS brighten for Senator Hill's election.

MESSRS. ROURKE, O'Connor and Hoban are the victors in a hard fought battle. Our congratulations to you, gentlemen, our sympathies to those who were defeated.

THE POPULISTS of the city are the supposed friends of labor but as a matter of fact they can only injure the cause by defeating some democrats who have been the life long advocates of the rights of labor.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN is doing a lot of shouting for Knox. It is endeavoring to introduce a little personal feeling against Mr. Fifield but it will not succeed. There are no Apaphobians in the democratic party.

FROM ALL the world around come expressions of sympathy and sorrow for the loss of the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." He was a bright star in the literary firmament and the skies are dimmed by his disappearance.

THE CITY council is not doing much of late. Neither is the school board. Both bodies are suffering from overwork that has not been done and are getting tired. It is time to get a move on. Set the wheels in motion gentlemen.

WE ARE to hear more from Hon. Elijah Morse. Let him explain why he left the republican state convention. Was the air too chilly for him? Perhaps he wants to find out for certain when Mr. Montgomery is to make him governor.

THERE is trouble between the congressional and state committees in the populist party. The congressional has ceased to work for the candidates for congress for the reason that its efforts were opposed by the state committee. The chances of electing the candidates are not a bit lessened.

THE STRIKES in New Bedford and Fall River are now almost at an end. Starvation stared the people in the face and it was easy under the circumstances to force a settlement. The city government of Fall River very properly refused to grant further relief, if the operatives refused to accept fair terms and go to work. That made further resistance practically impossible.

SENATOR BRADY ENDORSED.

Justice Assembly Knights of Labor did a wise thing in endorsing the candidacy of Hon. Peter J. Brady for senator. Whenever the interests of labor came up for consideration Senator Brady was an untiring advocate on the right side. He rendered valuable service on the weavers' bill, and on every other bill calculated to advance the interests of the toilers.

It would be a suicidal policy for labor organizations to oppose democratic candidates who have stood for the interests of the masses in every legislature in which they have had a voice. There is scarcely a single labor reform on the statute books today that was not placed there through the efforts of democrats. Even when the legislature was overwhelmingly republican, a democratic minority fought for the interests of labor until the reforms demanded were conceded in whole or in part.

The populist party may have some theoretical merit, but it cannot control legislation and the organizations that support or endorse it are consequently following an ignus fatuus that will lead them counter to their own interests.

Labor's battle is fought in the legislature and outside. Let it be renewed where it was dropped last year, let the demand for a 54-hour bill for women and children in factories be made with redoubled energy, let a demand be also made for an eight hour day in state and municipal offices. It is useless to expect that needed reforms can be obtained all at once. They come gradually and as the result of long and patient agitation. Let this agitation be kept up outside, and let men in sympathy with the movement be sent to the legislature to aid in fighting labor's battles. This is the only safe means of advancing the cause of labor. To form an independent party that will remain for years a nonentity is to retard the movement by retrograde steps. Independence in politics between the two great parties is the surest way of getting labor laws that will guarantee just treatment, fair wages, and shorter hours.

WHERE is that A.P.A. organ for the publication of which the Rev. Hugh Montgomery arranged some weeks ago? Has the project been abandoned or did he find that his knowledge of the English language was too imperfect to warrant his embarking in such an enterprise? Judging from the spelling and grammar of the A. P. A. Herald prospectus, Mr. Montgomery, who penned it, would need a course of instruction at one of our grammar schools. What kind of a response did the reverend gentleman get to his pay in advance circulars? He made the modest request for intending subscribers to put up a year's subscription and take all risks of failure, suspension, change of editor or removal to another church or any of the mishaps, casualties or vicissitudes that befall a new journalistic enterprise. The A.P.A. Herald was due yesterday.

DEMOCRATS SHOULD register this week if they wish to vote at the state election. Wednesday of next week will be the last day for registration for the state election, so that many may find themselves deprived of the privilege of voting through sheer neglect.

BULL FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

A Woman Who Showed Herself the Most Skillful of Toreadors.

"The prohibition of bull fighting in Mexico by laws enacted there about seven or eight years ago has practically done away with such exhibitions in that country, and they are rarely to be seen, except during a few days known as Pascua or feast time, at the close of each year," said F. G. Stratton, a cattleman from the southwest.

"I shall never forget a most brilliant contest that took place just prior to the taking effect of the decree against bull fighting. I was fortunate enough to witness it, and I saw one of the most skillful, daring and expert of the professional fighters of Mexico engaged in the leading part.

"This performer was a young woman, Senogira Hernandez, and she had advertised for the wildest and fiercest bulls the country could produce and agreed to fight them while she was wearing stilts. The novelty of a young girl engaged in a bull fight, handicapped by having stilts fastened to her feet, was sufficient to attract a crowd of fully 5,000 people to the large amphitheater. The animals provided for the occasion were small, active and wholly untamed, and each had his horns trimmed and polished until the horns were quite as bright and almost as sharp as needles.

"The fair Castilian was under an advertised obligation while wearing the stilts to kill at least one bull with a sword scarcely more than two feet in length. This was to be done by the operation at the time the animal was making a charge, the fatal thrust to be given while she was directly in front of and fairly facing the bull. The animal selected for this contest was a beautiful specimen, black as coal, agile as a cat, savage and wild. After he had entered the arena and had been permitted to make a charge or two to warm him to his work the governor, who presided on the occasion, gave a signal, and the bugle sounded the 'death call.'

"The senorita with stilts of one foot in height, securely fastened to her limbs, received the short sword, saluted the governor, and, turning toward the bull, gave a shout of defiance and waved her scarlet cloak to arouse his anger. The bull, quivering with excitement and pawing the earth in his rage, his eyes flashing fire, lowered his head to the ground and started at full speed toward the senorita.

"The brave girl waited until the beast was within 20 feet, when, bracing herself firmly, she held her sword at shoulder height, ready for his coming. When within four feet, she threw her body suddenly forward, gave a quick thrust with the sword, and without waiting to see the effect of the blow swung quickly around and again saluted the governor. In the twinkling of an eye she turned to face the bull, and as she did so he dropped dead so close to her that without moving from her position she placed one foot upon the neck of her helpless enemy. The sword, directed by the strong arm of the self possessed girl, had severed the spinal cord, and death was instantaneous and probably painless."—St. Louis Republic.

Unable to Negotiate.

"Do you wish to engage a competent instructor," asked the man at the door, removing his hat, "to give lessons to any members of your family in music or German?"

"No, sir," answered the housewife. "I think not."

"I don't think I could."

"Or a private tutor in elocution?"

"No."

"I have had considerable experience as a teacher of Delsarte. Possibly I might make some arrangement for imparting instruction in this fascinating branch of"—

"I don't think you could."

"Madam," said the man, with a regretful sigh, "I am sorry we are unable to place this matter on a business basis. I have exhausted the list of professions or vocations in which I consider myself fitted to engage as a means of gaining a livelihood. As there appears to be no opportunity to exercise any of them for the relief of present emergencies, I am compelled to ask you, madam, if you will be kind enough to give me a plate of warmed over victuals?"

"I will not."

"May I inquire, madam, if anybody has previously tried to work this game on you?"

"I don't remember that anybody has."

"Then I must have struck a thundering poor neighborhood," rejoined the man, putting on his hat and turning away. "This is the sixth house I've run against in this block without hitting anything."—Chicago Tribune.

A Judicial Appeal.

On one of the many official excursions made by boat to Fortress Monroe and Chesapeake bay, Chief Justice Waite of the supreme court, Judge Hall of North Carolina and other dignitaries of the bench were participants. When the government steamer had fairly got out into the Atlantic, the sea was very rough, and Judge Hall was taken violently with seasickness. As he was moaning aloud in his agony, the chief justice, laying a soothing hand on his shoulder, said: "My dear Hall, can I do anything for you? Just suggest what you wish." "I wish," said the seasick judge, "your honor would overrule this motion."—San Francisco Argonaut.

INTERESTING "HOW" SERIES

THE DIGESTIVE APPARATUS SHOULD BE IRRIGATED.

Water is for many things a simple but sure remedy. Dr. Elmer Lee of Chicago first proposed curing cholera in Germany about a year ago by cleansing the stomach by constant washing out with sterilized water. Sterilizing kills all germs in anything. The same doctor now proposes this treatment for typhoid fever and on this subject says:

"Fears were formerly entertained by me, as they are today by some of my contemporaries, that something would be lurked by running a large volume of water into the bowels of persons sick with typhoid fever. No harm has ever been done, and neither is it likely to be caused. Several hundred cases have been so deluged by me with large quantities of water, and in no instance has the result failed to be beneficial. The fear of doing harm may be entirely and forever dismissed."

It is specifically stated that the temperature of the water used for cleansing and washing the bowels should always depend upon the temperature of the body. If there is high fever, the water is more agreeable and useful to the patient when it is cool—viz, 75 degrees—but if the patient is chilly or has a low temperature the water should be at blood heat, nearly 100 degrees. During the first week of illness the irrigation of the bowels should take place in the morning and again in the evening of each day. After this one douche of water should be given each day until convalescence. The co-operation of the patient it readily accorded. The treatment takes hold of his reason, which lends both hope and help to the management of the case.

Bathing the body is performed at regular intervals. The bathtub may be used when the patient is strong enough to be assisted to it. Where otherwise, sponging with cold water is very refreshing and useful to maintain strength and lower the heat of the body. As to the internal treatment, let there be no restraint in administering water. Torturing fever patients with thirst is happily being abandoned on all sides in medical practice.

Typhoid fever is in many parts of the country, and particularly in the high and well drained hilly and mountainous regions, but too often the cause of widespread and fatal epidemics. There should be abundant opportunity to test the irrigation treatment, and it seems to merit careful examination.

How to Whiten Rough Red Hands.

Keep the body clean by two warm baths a week. Take two cool baths a day to keep the skin in a healthy condition. Get the digestive organs in perfect order. Eat and drink temperately, get plenty of sleep and take moderate exercise. Make a lotion for the hands of rainwater, cue-third as much glycerin and the juice of one lemon, to be used after washing.

How to Increase Flesh.

First avoid indigestion. The quantity of food we eat matters not; it is the amount which is digested and assimilated. A diet of lean beef that has been finely chopped and robbed of the connective tissues, made into flat cakes, lightly broiled and seasoned, and a tiny piece of well toasted whole wheat bread, with a cup of hot water, if persisted in for two or three months, will effect a cure. After that come back gradually to carbonaceous foods. Remember that the fats are more easily converted into fat than the sugars and starches, and all starchy foods must be well cooked. The light lunch at noon would be decidedly better, and then take your 6 o'clock dinner. After dinner rest plenty of time to digest and assimilate the food.

How to Prevent Choking From a Fishbone.

A raw egg swallowed immediately will generally carry a fishbone down that cannot be removed from the throat by the utmost exertion and has got out of reach of the finger.

How to Wash Underwear.

Never wash underwear in the same suds which have served for white things. Aside from the dirt held in solution, the water is charged with fatty particles that are sure to cling and abide in the elastic mesh of knit goods. To wash colored knit silk garments dissolve a handful of powdered borax in a pail of warm water and soak the things in it for 15 minutes. Then wash rapidly through a good white soapsuds, rubbing as lightly as possible. Rinse hold in about blood warm. Squeeze out of the suds, but do not wring. Rinse in two waters of the same temperature and hang to dry without any wringing.

How to Renew Stained Floors.

To renew stained floors that have grown a little dull rub thoroughly with beeswax and turpentine. Repeat this whenever it is needed.

He Mistook His Man.

It was on board a steamer coming from Algeria. They were about to stop, and the passengers on landing would have to pass the custom house. A saloon passenger opened his portmanteau and took therefrom a large assortment of cigars, which he endeavored to stow away in his pockets so as to escape detection. Unfortunately his pockets were not capacious enough to hold the lot; but, nothing daunted, he turned to a fellow traveler, saying, with a winning smile:

"Would you mind taking charge of these four small parcels—just till we have passed the custom house, you know?"

"I don't object in the least," replied the other pleasantly, "but I might not find it quite so easy to give them back to you."

"Why not?"

LIFE OF A COWBOY.

Every year vast herds of cattle are driven out of Texas to the northern ranges. These herds number from 2,000 to 5,000 head each, and they are driven by a company of cowboys numbering usually 12. Besides these men there is the one in charge, commonly called "the boss," and a cook. Each cowboy is usually supplied with four horses, for the journey is a long one, and the animals are apt to become overworked. Then there is the possibility of one or more of them being killed in a stampede.

The stampede is most dreaded by the cowboy. It means hard riding and a fearful tax on the nerves, for in attempting to stop the progress of a herd of young and wild steers that are panic stricken a man takes his life in his hands. To avoid such an occurrence while the cattle are "on trail" they are kept as closely together as possible, for in new and strange surroundings the young cattle are always nervous and excitable.

At night the cattle are "rounded up" and kept together until they lie down. If the cattle are quiet, as they are disposed to be if the weather is pleasant, the cowboys take turns in riding around the herd to see that none wanders away from the main body. This is kept up until morning, when the cattle get up and once more begin feeding. The drift from Texas to Montana requires from four to six months, and it is impossible to imagine the hardships that the cowboy encounters in guiding the animals through waterless regions and over mountains.

As the northern localities are approached the anxiety of the men increases, for they are menaced by terrific thunderstorms, and there is nothing that will drive a herd of cattle crazy so quickly as a loud crash of thunder or a vivid flash of lightning. To cause a stampede it is only necessary for two or three cattle to become terror stricken and start away at a flying gait, bellowing in fright like a mad bull. In an instant the entire herd are alert and before the men can prevent it are rushing madly across the country.

In this emergency the duty of the cowboy is a serious one. He must stop the terrified cattle if possible, and away he goes at breakneck speed, striving to outstrip the leaders. The race continues sometimes for 50 miles.—Chautauquan.

A Lemon Luncheon.

One of the children on Rivington street had an unexpected stroke of luck the other morning. She found a dime. The good news spread rapidly through the neighborhood, and she soon found herself the center of an admiring and reverential group.

"Say, wot or yer goin to buy?" was the question which assailed her ears.

"Lemin sticks an lemings. Pony'll give me three lemings for a nickel. We kin cut 'em in half. An lemin candy is six for five. That'll make 16 right. Now, I'll choose the five wot I'm goin to treat, an I don't want any others a-diggin on."

This was accepted with resignation by the group and the selection was made with a solemn publicity. The uninvited seemed to feel no rancor, although one of them remarked that she knew whom she would not invite the next time she had any money. The five chosen guests and the hostess proceeded to make the purchases. The lemons were sliced in two and handed around. The sticks of candy were properly apportioned. Each stick was promptly plunged into the heart of the lemon, and the six feasters began to suck their candy.

"Yes," agreed the giver of the banquet. "Sides they're fashionable. I've read frequently of 'fete lunchings an pink lunchings, an dis yere is a lemin lunching. See?"—New York World.

He Wouldn't Give Up His Foot.

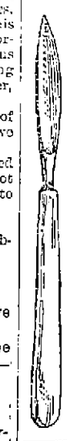

"You would never think that I once had a hole clear through my ankle bone, would you?" asked a West Garland man who stops around as lively as any of them. "No? Well, that's what they all say. But it's a fact all the same. When I was in the army, I met a bullet going in a different direction from what I was, and it declined to turn out to let me pass. It struck my ankle fair on the side and bored its way straight through it. At the hospital the doctors in dressing it would draw a chal right through the ankle. They said the foot must be amputated, but I said no. They said I would die unless they cut it off, but I said I would die with my foot on my body, if at all. They said they would chloroform me if I resisted and cut it off anyway. The chief director of hospitals in the department happened to come there, and the doctors referred the matter to him. He spoke to me pleasantly and gave the wound a careful examination. He said it would have to be cut off probably to save my life, but they would wait a few days before doing it. Well, it wasn't cut off, as you may see, and I think it's a foot worth fighting for, don't you?"—Lewiston Journal.

The Pyrometer.

Some remarkable claims are put forth in behalf of Professor Austen's new pyrometer for the more accurate measurement of high temperatures. It is a thermo junction of platinum and of platinum alloyed with rhodium, this being attached to a galvanometer. The spot of light from its mirror is received on a revolving drum covered with sensitized paper. The curves exhibited give a 24 hours' record of the variations in the temperature of the blast supplied to furnaces smelting iron. In this way it is possible to account for the variations in the working of those large structures, and, by insuring regularity of work, to avoid the occurrence of such variations; also to effect economies of fuel, which it is anticipated will attain very large proportions, proving, it is claimed, to be of great industrial importance in conducting this branch of metallurgy.—New York Sun.

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents in stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Turning the Tables.

"Young man," said the aristocratic colored citizen, leaning back in his chair, "haven't I seen you befo'?"

"I don't know, sah," responded the colored waiter, depositing the plate of soup before him and placing the salt and pepper within reach. "Was you at de Dahomey village in de Midway last summah?"

"Haw, haw! Sho' 'nough," rejoined the guest, with ready appreciation. "So dat's whah you was! Yas, I was dah!"

"Well, I wasn't," said the waiter stiffly. "I don't tink we've ovah met befo', sah."—Chicago Tribune.

Enlightened.

In all policies of life insurance these, among a host of other questions, occur: "Age of father, if living?" "Age of mother, if living?" A man in the country filled up his father's age, "If living," 102 years and his mother's 102. The agent was amazed at this and fancied he had secured an excellent customer; but, feeling somewhat dubious, he remarked that the applicant came of a very long lived family.

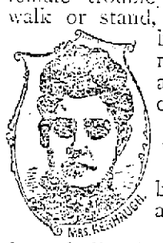

"Oh, you see, sir," replied he, "my parents died many years ago, but 'if living' would be aged as there put down."

"Exactly; I understand," said the agent.—Tit-Bits.

INSTRUCTIVE HOUSEHOLD LORE

FANCY TABLE WARE INCLUDING A FRIED OYSTER SERVER.

The graceful carafe is no longer stylish, and in its place has come the cut glass ice pitcher.

Very unique are the little glasses in the shape of tulips, with delicate silvery tracery, which are used to serve "frappe" in, a very popular ice for afternoon teas and receptions.

A handsome finger bowl which is both new and novel is, in fact, a double bowl, one shallow bowl of opal glass being set in a second, perhaps ten sizes larger. The space between is filled with small flowers. The effect is extremely effective, and the guests feel that they are dipping their fingers in flower wreathed water.

Among the new fads are the exquisite porcelain spoons which accompany the new cafe noir sets.

The "fried oyster server," with its wide, short blade and handle decoration of shell, is one of the novelties in silver which give promise of being very popular.

The "hotcake lifter," which is a broad, flat shovel with perforations and has a handsome oxidized handle, is among the novelties recently placed on the market.

Quaint shaped dishes for salted almonds are in the form of a half almond in soft browns and yellows. A dessert set is of white china, with no decoration except a gold band and monogram.

And, to conclude this little summary of table novelties mentioned in The Decorator and Furnisher, white china trays decorated in seashells and aquatic flowers and leaves are among those used for salads and water cress.

A Picturesque Mantel.

Designs for some of the latest and most popular styles of mantels are given in Ladies' Home Journal, and among them is a picturesque example of an old Dutch mantel of tile, metal and wood.

To carry out the effect in the true form the tile should be either a bottle green or an old blue. The metal frames, studded with bolt heads, can be of either brass or iron, while the wood shelf and top should be of oak or mahogany.

The doors of the small cabinets at either end of the shelf should have in each six old Dutch bullseyes of colored glass leaded together. The hinge straps and escutcheons on them are to be of the same metal the tile work is bound with. The balls at the ends of the side chains are cast affairs and studded with spikes to lend them an antique appearance, while the plates at the bottom and fastened to the face of the side piers are to be of sheet iron decorated as the drawing shows. This style of mantel is very quaint and original and gives a decidedly unique look to a room.

Bathrooms of Fortune's Favorites.

The prevailing fashion among those favorites of fortune who are owners and occupants of the palacelike mansions that are springing up on the eastern side of Central park is to have their bathing rooms as luxurious and ornamental as their boudoirs and bedrooms. A bathroom, says Harper's Bazar, is no longer a place for the ablutions of all the members of a family, where the housemaid has a cupboard for her brushes and brooms, and where little boys and girls may sail their paper boats by way of an occasional indulgence. Every member of a millionaire's family in these days has a suit of rooms for his or her exclusive use, consisting of the sleeping room, dressing or sitting room and bathroom. Onyx is the favorite stone for the belongings of a modern bathroom. It was introduced a few years since by Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, the walls of whose bathing apartment are entirely of white onyx, as are also the furnishings. The floor, of course, has its rich soft rugs, and there are cushions to the one or two chairs that the room contains, but no upholstery, and the draperies are all of muslin or some light washing material, so that microbe or insect life could find no resting place in the apartment.

Nice Ways to Cook Tomatoes.

There is hardly anything more appetizing in the way of cooked tomatoes than the baked tomato, either plain or stuffed. To bake tomatoes cut off a small piece of the fruit at the stem end and put in a bit of butter, a pinch of sugar and a pinch of salt. Sift a little powdered cracker or bread crumbs over them, and if the flavor is liked add a few bits of onion. Bake an hour and have the top brown. For stuffed tomatoes select large, full meated tomatoes. Cut off the tops of a sufficient number to fill a baking dish of the size desired. Scoop out about a third of the contents of each tomato and fill the space with bread crumbs, butter, a little salt and a little pepper. Sprinkle bread crumbs over the whole. Add a few more bits of butter. Set in the oven and bake till the crumbs are a nice light brown.

A Useful Article.

A sandbag is one of the most useful of household articles. Its virtues are equal if not superior to the hot water bag, and the cost is considerably less. The sand should be fine and clean and should be thoroughly cleaned out before being bagged. It is better to cover the flannel bag which holds the sand with a cotton one, as it prevents the sand from sifting out. A bag not larger than 10 inches square is a convenient size.

Trouble In the House.

"I'm very unhappy," said the lamp. "People are always turning me down."

"That's because you smoke too much," said the sofa, "but I—I don't do anything, and they're always sitting on me."—London Quiver.

If the United States had as great a relative population as Japan, it would have a population of 960,000,000 people.

TRAINING RACE HORSES.

The Differences In English and American Methods Compared.

There is no doubt that horses in England show a higher state of muscular development than ours, says a writer in the Boston Herald. There are no deep snows and icy tracks in the early spring over there, as with us, which compel our trainers to do in April and May what the English trainers can very easily start to do in February, nor are there the terrific "dog days" of August, nor the thermometer about the 100 mark in July to waste the horses to shadows of themselves.

All told they go much slower in the handling of the yearlings than is done here. The general features are much the same, but more care is taken in the bitting and mouthing. Side lines are first put on the yearling or a "dumb jockey" on its back, and the youngster after a week or so is jogged around the ring, gradually increasing the pace to a nice even canter. Then a boy or rather a man weighing perhaps 130 pounds, so as to accustom the colt to carry weight, is put up. Walking exercise is done for a month before the colt is asked to gallop.

The American trainer has one very marked advantage—there is so much more range on the breeding farms in this country that the colt has done considerable racing on its own hook and passes into the hands of the trainer in much better shape to handle himself than yearlings raised in England, where the paddocks are frequently so small that the colt no sooner gets extended in his play before he has to stop himself to keep from running into the fence. So that while the American bred yearling is asked to do in September and October what the Briton is only called upon for in February when it is fully 2 years old, yet there is not much to choose, as the American bred youngster is certainly more precocious and more of a race horse of its own making at an earlier date than the English bred one.

DISCIPLES OF RUSKIN.

They Find His Theories Alluring on Paper, but Unprofitable In Practice.

Mr. Ruskin has so much to answer for in the vagaries of his disciples. The dangers of the Ruskin cult are dwelt upon in Good Words by Mrs. E. T. Cook, who points out that while every word of the "master" has at times been quoted as that of an inspired prophet few writers are so little able as he to bear the test of literal interpretation. If only his worshipers had the saving quality of humor, they would not always take him seriously. Mr. Ruskin denounces railway trains, and forthwith a small sect not only taboo those after all highly convenient vehicles for their own traveling, but carry their letters themselves rather than post them and thus utilize the iron monsters. He expresses a dislike of sewing machines because some part of his clothing has become unraveled, and forthwith the same people will wear nothing that is not hand sewed. Meanwhile the seer of Coniston in all probability goes on wearing machine sewed gloves and shirts himself and certainly does not despise the aid of the railway when he goes on a journey.

An awful warning to devotees are the young couple of ardent Ruskinians who, burning with a divine rage against usury and luxury, once determined to carry into practice Mr. Ruskin's extremest views of plain living (for others) and tried in vain, to their intense discomfort, to enjoy only the produce of their own industry. Another disciple gave up bookkeeping for pigkeeping, but after awhile he returned to his books, and what time he can spare from them is devoted to inditing the tale of his grievances against his former idol.

Not Without His Father's Permission.

Richard Vaux has never been to a theater in his life to see a theatrical performance. An interesting incident is given of his boyhood days, over threescore years ago. His father, a highly respected and prominent Friend, resided on Arch street and believed it was best for his children to be trained within the rules of the good old Quaker habits. At that period Ned Forrest was the brilliant young American tragedian and had captivated all the boys of Philadelphia in his character of the Roman gladiator and big Indian Metamora. Young Vaux naturally desired to see the great actor play, but shrank from going without his father's consent, so one day he ventured to ask his father for a half dollar to get a ticket. The old gentleman kindly replied in Quaker accent:

"Richard, I don't begrudge the money, but thee knows I don't approve of playhouses and wish thee to promise me not to go to a theater without my permission."

The promise was given, and his father died suddenly after without giving the permission. Richard Vaux has conscienciously refrained from going to the theater ever since.—Philadelphia Times.

Effect of Example.

I was staying at a house recently where most of the women smoked. One day the hostess discovered her small daughter, aged 12, in a corner of the veranda calmly smoking a pipe and was horrified and at once proceeded to lecture the small delinquent. "I am shocked at you, Mabel," she said. "I suppose you have seen women smoking and think it is pretty, but it is not; it is disgusting. No little boy will have anything to do with you. They will go home and tell their sisters what a vulgar, unrefined little girl you are."

Precautions After Death.

Apropos of Mr. Edmund Yates' curious request in his will that his jugular vein should be cut before he was cremated—in order apparently to insure that he should not be burned alive—it may be recalled that Lord Lytton, the novelist, left orders that before he was buried a long needle should be run through his heart. He had taken the precaution to tell his doctor of his wish, and it was carried out.—London Letter.

A Brilliant Prospect.

Every time Tony is taken out for a walk he is astonished at the number of persons who exchange greetings with his grandfather, who has charge of the little urchin. After thinking it over one day he looked up with a smile on his face and cheerfully remarked:

"I say, gran'dad, won't you have a lot of folks to your funeral?"—Noticiero Bilbaino.

Naturalists have enumerated 20,000 different kinds of butterflies and 657 different species of reptiles. Of the former about two-thirds have been named; of the latter 400 are nonpoisonous.

The Real Danger.

Clara—Yes, I have enjoyed the company of the Fandorths very much. They are delightful people, but I should not care to meet them in town.

Flossie—You think you might not care so much for them after finding out who they are?

Clara—I was thinking that they might find out who we are.—Boston Transcript.

A THIRD TICKET

Will Be Put In the Field In New York by the Shepard Democrats.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 9.—By a vote of 47 to 7, yesterday, the Shepard democrats decided in favor of a third state ticket. Only the delegates and alternates who went to Saratoga and the officers of the executive committee were present.

T. G. Shearman, who presided, said that Charles Fairchild and other leaders seemed to favor a third ticket.

A CATHOLIC LIBERAL LEAGUE.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 9.—The American Liberal league has been organized here by prominent lay members of the Catholic church to combat the propaganda of the American Protective association. It is the intention of the new league to devise plans for the defeat of candidates in the coming election who may be supported by the A. P. A.

The assertion is made by the league organizers that they have obtained accounts of the A. P. A. meetings in this city, with the rituals and oaths of the various lodges.

The Lexow committee resumed work this morning on the police investigation.

Storm signals are set at Savannah, Ga., indicating a hurricane on West Florida moving to the northeast. Vessels are warned not to go to sea.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral of James A. Jeffers took place this afternoon from 740 Merrimack street. The funeral cortege was made up of about fifteen carriages containing friends and relatives of the deceased. The bearers were all former friends and companions of the deceased. They were Dr. James E. Leary, Daniel Deary, Frank McCarthy, James O'Hearn, Edward Cox and Thomas Smith. At the grave in the Catholic cemetery the burial service was read by Rev. Fr. Gleason of St. Patrick's church.

Returned From Maine.

Messrs. Andrew Lynch and Bernard Callahan of this city have just got back from the wilds of Maine, where, in company of Boston friends, they have been hunting deer.

The fact that Mr. Lynch was in the party is a guarantee that they did not return empty handed, for Andrew is one of the most successful sportsmen in Lowell, and is as handy with the gun as with the fish line.

Each one of the Lowell men brought three fine looking deer, while the Boston gentlemen were not without a share of the sports.

The Committee on Finance to Meet.

The finance committee will meet at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected the financial condition of the several city departments will be considered, and loans recommended to piece out the appropriations.

They Cleared $90.

The Mathew Temperance institute cleared about $90 on the sociable in Huntington hall, Saturday evening. The proceeds will be used to clear the expense of temperance lectures.

Base Ball Contest.

The Social club of Collinsville defeated the Florence club yesterday by a score of 9 to 10. With the score 10 to 9 in favor of the social club, a dispute arose on a decision of the umpire and the Florence club refused to play. The game was awarded to the social club.

WANG SHAVEE FACEE

And Bad Mellican Boys Flingee Stonee at Him.

Wang Wing is a Chinaman, as his name implies. He runs a laundry on Moody street. Last evening he shaved himself, as Chinamen do, and while he was so engaged, two small boys saw him and began throwing stones and bits of iron at him. In dodging the missiles he slashed his check with the razor, giving himself a bad cut. Wang then very naturally got mad and ran after the boys. He caught one and was giving him an unmerciful trouncing when some men came to the lad's assistance, and made Wang let up on him. Officer Breault hunted the boys but could not find them.

Marriage in Reilly's 400.

Mr. Dan Burke and Miss Lilian Stuart who so cleverly do the tough couple in Reilly and the 400 decided recently that they were just suited for each other and will do their roles together, through life, having been joined in wedlock at Springfield on Friday. The members of the company tendered the happy couple a reception last night after the show in this city. They were presented with a number of beatiful presents and besides that were caused to smile by the presentation of a tin rattle and a pair of infant's shoes. Mr. Kearney made the presentation speech in the latter case, expressing the hope that the shoes would wear well and the rattle bring happiness to some one. Mr. Burke responded in a happy vein. The company shows in Salem tonight.

Replanking Jefferson Street Bridge.

Few people have any idea of the immense amount of travel over the little Jefferson street bridge. The city carpenter is replanking it again, have performed the same operation several times since it was built. It has proved a benefit to the people and it was a wise suggestion of Rev. Fr. Michael O'Brien to have it built.

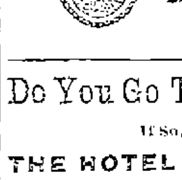

Needs Shortening

TAXES.

Collector's Notice.

TAX LIST FOR 1894,

With instructions to collect in the manner prescribed by the Statutes of the Commonwealth and the Ordinances of the City of Lowell, the sums assessed by them to the persons named thereon, and he is now ready to receive payment of said Taxes at his office in City Hall.

When a Poll Tax only is assessed, the Tax is due, and if not paid forthwith, the Collector will proceed to collect the Tax as directed by the General Statutes.

SUMMONS, bearing costs, will be issued against delinquent Poll and Personal Tax Payers on or about November 1st.

INTEREST at the rate of seven per cent. per annum will be charged upon all Taxes which remain unpaid October 20, 1894 until the same shall be paid; and such interest shall be added to and considered a part of said Taxes. Poll Taxes are assessed on every male inhabitant above the age of 20 years. On undivided real estate each heir is liable for the whole tax. An error in the name of the person taxed does not defeat the collection of the Tax. Each partner is liable for the whole Tax assessed under the partnership name.

The assessors are now distributing Tax Bills. If any taxable inhabitant, by removing his residence since the first day of May, or from any cause, should not receive his Tax Bill, he must consider the Tax demanded by this notice, and a new bill will be made out on application at the office of the City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes if a Tax has been assessed.

All who preserve their Tax Bills and bring them when they come to pay, will save the time of making a new bill and facilitate the business of the office.

THE RATE OF TAXATION FOR 1894 IS $17.40 ON $1000.

Office Hours: From 9 o'clock a.m. to 5 p.m.

For the convenience of the Tax paying public the office of the Collector will be open in the evening as follows: Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, from Oct. 1 to Oct. 13, inclusive, 7 to 8 o'clock p. m. Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, from Oct. 15 to Oct. 20, inclusive, from 7 to 9 o'clock p. m.

☞Look for your Tax Bill at your place of residence May 1st, 1894, and bring it with you.

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Lowell.

LOCAL NEWS.

Be joyful and smoke Tower's corner.

Thieves have stolen a horse, buggy and harness from the barn of Jere Desmond in Westford.

The L.C.A.A. and International association foot ball teams will play at the Dracut oval, Saturday.

J. E. Conant & Co. will sell at public auction, for just what they will bring, fourteen house lots on Chas. E. Carter place, Middlesex Village, or between the Tyler estate and the Joseph Smith estate, and on the line of the street railway. On Saturday next, Oct. 13th rain or shine, beginning promptly at 3 o'clock p. m., and on the premises, about halfway between the junction of Broadway with Middlesex street and the old Middlesex tavern, known as Middlesex park, I shall sell without limit or reserve, to the highest bidders, fourteen lots of land on very easy terms. The lots contain from 3276 to 5500 square feet of land each with frontages from 40 to 60 feet; are level, high and dry; are already to build upon or improve. Originally there were twenty-two lots; four have been built upon, two have the foundations in for building, and fourteen are now to be sold to whoever will bid the highest for them. It's a splendid opportunity, in an excellent neighborhood, in a very desirable portion of Ward Four, on the line of the street cars, and about ten minutes' ride or drive from "Down Town," and have all the conveniences of any residential section of the city.

☞IT'S THE YEAR TO BUY REAL ESTATE.

The purchaser must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers from $25 to $50 on each lot as soon as each lot is struck off. Other terms liberal and easy.

The sale will be absolute. The sale will take place rain or shine. Plans of lots posted on the lots.

CITY COUNCIL DOES BUSINESS.

BOTH BRANCHES MEET AND CLEAR CLERKS' DESKS.

Bijou Theatre License Revoked For Cause—Council Decides to Accept the Bid of New England Construction Company and Authorizes the Mayor to Sign a Contract.

At 8 o'clock Mayor Peckham called to order and read the call for the meeting of the aldermen.

The following jurors were drawn to serve at the October term of the court to be held in Cambridge:

Michael J. Garvey, Ward One; Arthur A. Howe, Ward Five; James D. Hartwell, Ward Five; Frank E. McNabb, Ward One; John C. Whitty, Ward Two; Charles O. Davis, Ward Four.

Notice of suit was received from Patrick Lynch.

The following favorable reports of the street committee were ordered seven days to the city clerk's office: For acceptance of street from Powell to Chelmsford street; A. M. Wilson, for acceptance of Lamb street; A. D. Gordon, for edgestones on Whitney avenue; Samuel C. Shirley for a sidewalk on the northerly side of Sheldon street; L. J. Fleeter, for sidewalk on westerly side of Harvard street; J. F. Fuller for sidewalk on May street.

An invitation was accepted to review the temperance parade.

Standard Oil Company.

A hearing was then opened on the petition of the Standard Oil company, for the erection of a building on Main street to store tanks containing petroleum and its products, and also to set up a steam boiler.

Alderman Dunlap of the committee appointed to investigate said he believed the permit should be granted, but the resolution should be carefully drawn up in order to comply with the letter of the law.

He offered a motion to that effect and it passed.

Mr. Means, state inspector of oil, said that the proposed location of the works is a very good one, far removed from residences. There is very little danger of its being struck by lightning. As for explosions, he thought there was not much chance of one, and should a fire occur it would be confined to the building itself and would not spread, as does a fire in a wood working establishment.

Permission was granted to Alfred Swanson to set up and run an engine on Maple street.

An order was adopted authorizing the use of the Carner system in counting the ballots on election day.

Several petitions for minor licenses were referred.

Bijou Theatre Closed.

The mayor read a resolution drawn up on recommendation of the license committee revoking the license of the Bijou theatre.

The resolution was adopted.

Alderman S. J. Johnson desired to know if a forfeit will be required of the contractors of the East Merrimack street bridge for delay in the work. Mayor Peckham said that he had been informed that the street committee has the right the extend the time. To settle the matter Alderman Johnson moved that the opinion of the city solicitor be obtained and the motion passed.

In The Lower Board.

It took some time for the council to get together last evening. When President Sparks called to order twenty members were present. Considerable concurrent business was transacted, and then Councilman Curtin called up his motion to reconsider the vote accepting the majority report of the garbage committee, in favor of a contract with the New England Construction company for the disposal of garbage. The motion to reconsider was lost 15 to 4. The motion to accept the majority report then passed.

The resolution authorizing the mayor to sign an agreement with the construction company upon the terms submitted, which are that the company will reduce all garbage not exceeding 20 tons daily at $25,000 per annum; anything in excess of that amount 25 cents per ton or the company will reduce all the garbage of 15 years at $5000 per year.

The report of the committee for fire department, recommending changes in the rules, was taken up again and again laid on the table until the next meeting.

An invitation to review the temperance parade was accepted.

METHOD OF QUELLING RIOTS.

HOW JUSTICE IS ADMINISTERED IN NICARAGUA.

Persistent Attempts to Ruin an American Is Countenanced and Abetted by the Government—Summary Punishment Inflicted.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—Pittsburg friends of Calvin Ausburn, the American, now imprisoned in Nicaragua, are daily expecting to hear from him regarding his situation. Mr. Ausburn is very well known here, having been in business in this city until 1886, when he first went to Central America. His home is at Brookville, and his parents now reside there.

In 1885 Mr. Ausburn decided to seek his fortunes in Central America. He went there and secured valuable timber and land concessions. Later he embarked in the business of raising bananas for the markets of this country. His plantation is far from Bluefields. The land is at the junction of the Rama and Repun rivers and is the head of navigation, that is, so far as the big ocean steamers are concerned.

The ownership of this plantation, a mile square, is the cause of Mr. Ausburn's troubles. Pittsburg attorneys are counsel for him in a suit now pending in the United States circuit court.

About a year after he went to the country he was attacked by a body of riotous natives, who

and drove him out into the turbulent river in a small boat. They opened fire on him, but he was uninjured. The American servant, a colored boy, whom he had taken from Pittsburg, at this juncture secured several rifles and emptied them on the enemy. They believed they were being attacked in force and fled. It was discovered that several had been killed by the shots.

For this the partisans of the dead men never forgave Ausburn. Some time after that his house was attacked, looted and burned. At that time there were several thousands of dollars' worth of goods destroyed. Notwithstanding those drawbacks, Ausburn stuck to the country.

Then there was some talk of building a railroad in Nicaragua. The line of route was to pass through the property. The government thought that it would be desirable to acquire it, and the official persecution of Ausburn began.

Ausburn was in this country last month, having come home to get married. The ceremony was performed in New York on Sept. 5. A few days after he stopped in this city on his way to the south. He was warned by his friends not to return, but he decided to do so.

A Would-Be Train Wrecker.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—William Law, a former employe of the Fort Wayne railroad, was convicted yesterday of attempting to wreck a passenger train in revenge for having been discharged. A passenger train was stopped just in time to avoid running into an immense bowlder that would have ditched the train and cost perhaps many lives. At the trial Law's little son gave damaging evidence. No defense was made.

A Long Step Forward.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—That great project to unite Chesapeake bay with the Delaware river by a canal, and thus supply the most important link to an internal waterway route from Florida to Long Island Sound, received an impetus yesterday by the appointment of an expert board of commissioners to select the line of the canal. The board is expected to go to work speedily.

Gallant Service Appreciated.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—For the first time in the history of the United States army permission has been granted by the federal department for the presentation of a stand of colors to a regiment by private citizens. The regiment is the Fifteenth Infantry of Fort Sheridan. The movement is in recognition of the services of the regiment during the great railroad strike.

Politics and Murder.

ATLANTA, Oct. 10.—James Chambers, a Democrat, shot and killed James Weaver, a Populist, in Early county, in a quarrel over the election returns. Chambers is in jail, and Populists threaten to take him out and lynch him. Democrats have armed themselves to defend Chambers. Excitement is at fever heat and a bloody riot is feared.

Paid a Big Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Chilian government has just paid into the state department $240,304, being the amount of the judgments rendered against Chili by the Chilian claims commission. Most of these claims are based upon injuries sustained by American citizens resident in Chili and Peru during the war between those countries.

On America's Shore.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 10.—Count Szhy, a member of the lower house of the Hungarian diet, has written a letter from New York to his constituents saying that he has emigrated to America in order to start a new life. He had been renounced because he adopted the Unitarian faith in order to be able to marry the mother of his children.

A Bad Man.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 10.—Two years ago a man known as "Chucky" Feeney assaulted and nearly killed a barber named Jim Cady and shortly afterward injured Officer Sylvester. He was wanted on about a dozen charges, and was captured yesterday afternoon only after a hard fight.

Captain Bunce Will Command.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The board to conduct the trial of the Maine will meet at New London Monday at 10 o'clock. Captain Bunce will command the ship on her trial. As this will not be a speed, but a horse power trial, the engineers will conduct it.

Didn't Bring Price Wanted.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Moulton Paddock, the Newmarket residence of the late Abingdon Baird, better known as "Squire Abingdon," was offered at auction yesterday, but was withdrawn after £67,000 had been bid for it.

Killed by Rejected Suitor.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 10.—Mary Kerseo was shot and killed by Frank Bezeck yesterday at Oliphant, because she refused to marry him. Bezeck fled, but was captured subsequently.

CHINESE TONGUE

Adhered to by Diplomats and Others.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT ORIENTAL AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Ambassador Patenotre, the representative of the French republic in the United States, is regarded as one of the best informed men in diplomatic life on China and the scenes of present conflict between that country and Japan. A good part of his life in the French diplomatic service has been spent at Pekin and Tien-Tsin. His views on Eastern affairs possesses unusual interest.

The ambassador was asked to give his personal observations of the places which are now the theater of conflict and of Li Hung Chang and his surroundings.

M. JULES PATENOTRE

"At the time the Tien-Tsin treaty was signed," said the ambassador, "I was brought in contact with Li Hung Chang almost daily for six weeks, and while I had known him before, this close intercourse in negotiating so important a treaty gave me the opportunity of a somewhat personal acquaintance with him.

"He does not speak English, French or any other language than his own, all intercourse with foreign officials being carried on through an interpreter. There appears to be a settled policy among Chinese diplomats and officials to adhere to their own language, so much so that a Chinese diplomat at Paris who became proficient in making French bon mots created something of a sensation and was afterward recalled.

"Viceroy Li impressed me, however, as one of the very few Chinese officials who at heart desired to adopt the modern ways of European countries, and if he had not been held back by the overwhelming sentiment of China against Eastern civilization, he would have modernized China long ago. As it is, he has introduced quite a European atmosphere into his private household. He has a French cook to serve him. Some of the dinners he gave me were what they termed "double dinners," as there would be a Chinese dish and then a French one, thus alternating courses throughout the dinner.

Statesman, but No Warrior.

"Li strikes one as a student and statesman, rather than a warrior. His tendencies are all those of a scholar, while his great authority as viceroy of the metropolitan province of China and special guardian of the emperor has made him the head of the war power. But he is not a genius of war as he is of statesmanship. He has sought to modernize the Chinese army and navy, and such strength as those arms of defense have are due to his introduction of foreign officers, including General Gordon, and his adoption of modern arms and ordnance. The artillery he has secured is fairly good, but compared with those of improvement of European and American troops, which improve constantly, they are out of date."

M. Patenotre was asked as to the defenses of Pekin which the Japanese now threaten to strike, and the roads over which the invaders will have to pass if they march on Pekin.

"The defenses are very primitive," said the ambassador. "The outer wall is a huge affair, completely encircling the city. It is about the height of a six-story building and wide enough for travel by horses and carriages. But as a means of defense it would amount to nothing against modern artillery. The walls about Tonkin were even stronger, being built by skilled engineers, but they quickly gave way before big guns. There is hardly any such thing as roads about Pekin and Tien-Tsin, so that travel is very difficult. There are occasional stretches of good road, paved with large stone blocks, but these are exceptional.

"The trip from Tien-Tsin to Pekin—about 90 miles—used to take two or three days. Usually it is made by the river route, and that also takes several days. It is the most primitive of traveling. each passenger having a boat to himself. When I went by river from Tien-Tsin to Pekin I occupied one boat, my secretary another, the provisions another and the servants another. Thus the boats beat and tacked by means of little sails. There was no steamer above Tien-Tsin, although the capital and the emperor were only 90 miles above."

Fishermen Suffered.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10.—Schooner Hiram Lowell, from Grand Banks, sprung aleak during the gale of Sept. 30, off Grand Banks, and went adrift, losing an anchor. All the trawl gear which was set was swept away and lost. Other vessels also suffered considerably.

ARION. NELSON.

DIRECTUM, KING OF STALLIONS.

Directum proved himself a "king of stallions" indeed at the recent meeting of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association at Mystic Park, Boston. He defeated Nelson, Arion and half a dozen others. Directum's record is 2:05 1-4. He is five years old and is a son of Direct.

A GREAT CELEBRATION

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Fully 60,000 visitors were in the city yesterday, the occasion being the corner stone laying of the Home of the Commercial Travelers' Association of America. The celebration of the day included a parade through the principal streets of the city, winding up at the home site, which is situated on the top of South mountain.

The parade was one of the largest seen in southern New York. It consisted of the many delegations of commercial men, 35 Odd Fellow lodges, the Masonic fraternity of two New York districts, Red Men's tribes, a regiment of the Pennsylvania National Guard, the local fire department, and many other civic, military and fraternal organizations.

On arriving at the home John Hodge laid the corner stone according to the Masonic ritual. He also delivered an address. Colonel Baxter of Elmira delivered the oration of the day, after which Governor Flower and Governor Pattison made extemporaneous speeches, in which they eulogized the commercial travelers and said many pleasant things for the home. The celebration was a success in every way.

Against Hill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Third ticket party, at a meeting last evening at the office of E. M. Shepard, decided to nominate the following ticket: For governor, Everett P. Wheeler, of New York city; for lieutenant governor, Daniel N. Lockwood, of Buffalo; for judge of the court of appeals, Charles F. Brown, of Orange county. Everett P. Wheeler has announced his acceptance of the nomination. Mr. Shepard said that Messrs. Brown and Lockwood would also accept the nominations. Hon. Charles S. Fairchild was appointed chairman of the campaign committee.

New York Endeavorers' Convention.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—The ninth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor society of the state of New York opened with fully 3000 delegates present. Mayor Wilson delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the city. Several salutation addresses were delivered. Secretary Schuyler made a flattering report of the work of the junior departments and A. E. Dewhurst made a similar report for the senior unions.

Honeymoon Was Short.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—John F. Cutting was arrested yesterday in an action brought against him by Christine L. Cutting for a separation on the ground of abandonment. They were married on June 7, 1893, at San Francisco. She says that he learned on the bridal trip east that she had $7500, and that he obtained it from her by threats in order to invest it.

Who Is to Blame?

DAYTON, O., Oct. 10.—The search for the perpetrators of the two recent murders of the veterans of the Soldiers' home on pension day develops the fact that 40 old soldiers have been robbed and murdered at the National Military home here, and only passing notice has been taken of the crimes. The Grand Army is taking hold of the matter.

VAN LUEN'S ADVICE

Was to Grease the Palms of Medical Examiners With Coin of the Realm.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Oct. 10.—Special Examiner Waite of the pension bureau, in obedience to the order of Judge Shiras in the federal court, has filled the documents captured in the famous tin box in Pension Agent George N. Van Luen's private office at Little Springs, Ia. Those documents are mostly in the form of correspondence, incriminating upon its face, between Van Luen and certain boards of medical examiners with whom he had relations.

Nearly all of the numerous indictments found against the pension attorney are based upon these letters. In all, about 700 papers are filed. Some of these letters are to pension claim agents, who Van advised to grease the members of the board in order to have their examinations go through smoothly. Others are letters between the agent and the surgeon, in which terms are agreed on for raising ratings and fixing up the papers in their cases.

It appears that Van Luen gave claimants to understand that this payment of money to medical examiners was the usual thing. Some of the documents show that affidavits as to physical disability were bought from physicians at an average rate of 50 cents a line. One letter makes an offer to a physician at Lincoln, Neb., to pay $5 for an affidavit covering a disease of the stomach, deafness and heart disease. The doctor sent the affidavit, but demanded $10 for it. This physician, whose name is not revealed, has since testified that he has made a large number of affidavits.

McKinley's Popularity.

ELROY, Wis., Oct. 10.—Governor McKinley spoke here last night. The governor has been nominated for president in every state through which he has passed, and Wisconsin has taken up the cry with increasing vigor at every place.

Mr. Jones Isn't Dead.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—The suit of Mrs. Martha Jones to recover $2000 from the Fidelity Mutual Life association on a policy on the life of her husband was brought to an abrupt termination yesterday. The defense produced a deposition and photograph of Jones showing that he is now living in England. Mrs. Jones had in December, 1889, identified the body of a railroad victim as that of her husband.

A Pretty State of Affairs.

LOURENZO MARQUEZ, Oct. 10.—Several whites and a number of friendly Kaffirs were attacked and massacred in the outskirts of the town yesterday. The Portuguese and foreign residents are holding public meetings to denounce the incompetence of the government and to demand energetic action to crush the Kaffirs. Business is paralyzed and the public offices are closed.

Still Unsettled.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 10.—The Cotton Manufacturers' association after a two hours' session yesterday took no action toward closing the strike. Though no one favored a restoration of the old rate, the 10 per cent reduction failed to get the necessary three-fourths vote from those under agreement to shut down. The feeling is that the mills will resume on a full reduction of 10 per cent. Mayor Coughlin's letter encouraging the opening of the mills was favorably received, though no action was taken on it.

Tillman's Declaration.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 10.—Governor Tillman declares that "constables will at once go to work and search all places where they have reason to know that liquors are kept, and that private residences will not be exempt when they are made depots for the storage of whisky."

FOR TEMPERANCE

TELLS OF THE MANY PITIABLE SCENES BEFORE HIM.

Judge Hadley is perhaps the most experienced man with victims of the drunkenness habit or disease,whichever it may be in this city and this morning in addressing a man named Kelleher whom he sentenced to the workhouse for five months, he gave a brief temperance lecture which contained a wealth of meaning and was appropriate to the day, the anniversary of Fr. Mathew, the apostle of temperance. His honor was at a loss what disposition to make of Kelleher, and in sending him to the farm, taking him from his family, the court said that he was astounded at the amount of drunkenness in this city and the many sad and deplorable effects of it. The facts continually presenting themselves before him in court ought to be enough to fill any respectable and law abiding citizen with the deepest disgust and awaken all to a sense of their duty towards suppressing the vice.

Hannah Gorman, who was in for being a common drunkard while in court was seized with a fit the result evidently of a prolonged debauch. She was sent to jail for six months.

And Lycurgus came back. Not the famous old Stoic, but Lycurgus S. Watson an old man with long hair and a patriarchial beard and who might have passed in a crowd for his historic namesake. He was charged by his elderly wife, Abbie, with having threatened her with a knife, but in the end she told the court that they had been "jawing" and that she was not afraid of him.

"Is he a sober man?" asked the court.

"He's sober enough," answered Mrs. Watson.

"Well, what is your standard of sobriety?" inquired the court with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"He doesn't drink any beer but just drinks tea and coffee like myself," was the answer.

THE OPENING OF THE

173 Middlesex Street, is Postponed until Saturday, Oct. 13, at 9 A. M. Keep Your Eyes on That Day.

In order not to disappoint the people of Lowell this Genuine Fire Sale must be postponed until Saturday, Oct. 13th, in that time the high class clothing will be ready to be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of maker's cost. It will pay you to wait until Saturday, Oct. 13th, at 9 A. M. Everything will then be marked and an inventory of stock taken, that is the cause of the delay of time.

All readers will remember the thrilling accounts of the great fire related by the Boston newspapers on Sunday, April 21st, and of firemen fighting the furious blaze, which was so terrific that it required a 4-11 call to subdue the scorching flames. Among the largest tenants of the building 88 Washington street was the renowned Samuel Cohen, wholesale and retail clothier,who occupied all the time of the fire part of the large building. As a result a large amount of clothing was totally destroyed.Part of the remaining stock and other goods, consisting of Fine Custom-made Fall and Winter Clothing for Men's, Boys' and Children's wear, was shipped to Lowell, Mass., to be sold. The large double store now number 173 Middlesex street, near South street, has been expressly rented for A Genuine Fire Sale, and the big stock of fine clothing that was saved has been placed in the building and will be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of actual maker's cost. This Genuine Fire Sale commences Saturday morning, Oct. 13th, at 9 a. m., and will positively last ten days only.

The orders of Mr. Cohen are to put such prices on the goods that there will be no question about selling them. This will give the people of Lowell and surroundings a chance to secure high class clothing for a mere trifle.

Men's Melton Cass, Fall Suits, that are sold in any and every regular clothing store at $12 and $14, you can get here at $3.85; English Diagonal Dress Suits, worth $25, go at $8.50; elegant imported Worsted Prince Albert's; silk and satin lined, worth $36, go at $9.98, worth $36; Men's Fancy Silk Striped Trousers, worth $4.50, at $1.75; Men's Fancy Striped Dress Trousers at $2.75, worth $7.50; Boys' Pants 12c; Boys' Suits, worth $4, at $1.49; Men's elegant Fall Overcoats, $7.75, worth $15; Nobby Youths' Suits, $4.25, worth $12.50; English Top Coats, silk or satin, $6.75, worth $21; Cheviot Sack Suits, worth $20, at $6.65; imported "Vienna" English Box Overcoats, lined with heavy twilled silk, $8.25, worth $25; foreign Wide Wale Worsted Dress Suits, worth $35, at $10.50, double and single breasted Cheviot Suits, $7.75, worth $21; Men's elegant Silk Mixed Cassimere Frock Suits, $8.50, worth $22.50; English Melton Silk Faced Overcoats, $7.50, worth $22; Men's Heavy Blue Cloth Double-breasted Suits, $8.50, worth $25; Men's Blue Kersey Overcoats, $7.98, worth $20; Young Men's Dress Suits, $5.75, worth $14.50; Men's Melton Cassimere Suits, 98c, worth $3; Men's Imported Clay Diagonal Worsted Full Dress Suits, silk lined, $9.50, worth $32; and 100,000 other Extraordinary Bargains not here mentioned, all to be sold in the next 10 days at 50 per cent. less than cost. Cut this out and bring it with you. Come early and take your pick.

☞Remember the Opening Sale cannot take place until Saturday, Oct 13, at 9 A. M., at 173 Middlesex St., near South St.

WINNERS NAMED

Three Great Ballot Contests in Ward Rooms.

Other Candidates Had Their Friends Out Hustling.

The democratic caucuses for the choice of representative candidates and delegates to senatorial and county conventions were held last evening and were largely attended. The chief contests were in Wards One, Three and Six in which Messrs. Roarke, O'Connor and Hoban were the winners. The details are given below:

Ward One.

For many years it has been the proud boast of the voters of Ward One that the "Acre" ward was the straightest ward in Lowell and that its caucuses and elections were the most honorable ever held in the city. Up to date the boast remains unchallenged for the the caucus last evening was one of the quietest, and most amicable affairs ever known in the history of the ward and an almost impossible feat was accomplished, namely, deciding upon a candidate without creating hard feelings in any quarter.

This caucus deserves more than passing notice for it was different from the other ward contests. In it were two young men, both members of the common council, with creditable records and both being men for whom every man in the ward would vote were the other not in opposition. Fred H. Rourke and P. J. O'Brien were the candidates and they fought a clean battle which was won by Mr. Rourke who will represent Ward One in the legislature next year. Every one knows the two gentlemen knows that either would be a credit to his ward in the legislature.

The caucus was called to order by W. A. Hogan, chairman of the ward committee, and the caucus officers were: Chairman, P. Keyes, Jr.; secretary, James Hearn; ballot distributor, John Pendergast.

These officers were decided upon by the candidates and in the selection of the chairman very good judgement was shown, for Mr. Keyes made an ideal chairman and settled whatever difficulties that arose in a manner which excited the admiration of both friends and opponents. Mr. Keyes, who is retiring from active politics with the current year, made a few remarks in which he expressed his heartfelt thanks to the voters of Ward One, who had honored him with their suffrage during his different candidatures.

The county and senatorial delegations were appointed as follows: Messrs. Peter J. Savage, Fred H. Rourke, J. Joseph Sullivan, James J. Fitzgerald, W. A. Hogan, Owen Callahan, Michael Bonin, M. J. Garvey, P. J. O'Brien, Hugh Maguire, P. Keyes, Jr.

The polls opened shortly after five o'clock and closed at 10.

During the evening Frank Partridge of the Merrimack house,a republican,attempted to vote and he was challenged. Chairman Keyes asked him if he had voted in any other caucus and he replied that he had not voted in that ball but had voted in republican caucuses.

He didn't vote.

Two men named Fuller and Halloran were challenged, one by a Rourke man and one by an O'Brien man and they voted under protest.

About 8 o'clock Councilman Ryan came in and procured a ballot and marked it. As he went towards the ballot box a half a dozen or more voters challenged his vote. The chairman told him his vote was challenged and he made a few remarks stating that he was going to vote and no one was going to stop him. Men on the floor said that the democratic city committee had decided that Mr. Ryan could not vote at a democratic caucus and that the city committee represented the opinion of its constituents. A member called for a vote on the matter and when it was put before the house a big majority was opposed to allowing him to vote, and he did not vote.

The counters were M. J. Garvey for O'Brien and Peter Savage for Rourke. The ballots were all counted without even the slightest semblance of trouble, and the result was:

Necessary for choice	486
P. J. O'Brien	483

Mr. O'Brien in a brief speech moved that the nomination of Mr. Rourke be made unanimous and Mr. Garvey seconded the motion which was unanimously carried.

Mr. Rourke than thanked his friends for their efforts in his behalf and then recalled the cleanest caucus in the history of Ward One.

Ward Two.

This being a republican ward the caucus did not bring out such a large attendance as in other wards. Fisher H. Pearson presided and Frank Morrissey was secretary. The county and senatorial delegates chosen are: Lawrence Cummings, Israel H. Sternberg, P. A. Fay, W. F. Courtney, Frank Morrissey, J. C. Burke, John Hurtubise, Robert Tweed, Thomas Gallagher and A. J. Burns.

The county delegates are pledged for P. A. Fay, and the senatorial delegates for Hon. Peter J. Brady. Ralph W. Stickney was nominated by acclamation.

Ward Three.

The representative fight in Ward Three was as lively contested as any in the city. The candidates were Councilman O'Connor, Charles L. Marren, overseer of the poor, and John E. Maguire, ex-assistant assessor. Mr. O'Connor made a most thorough and complete canvass and Mr. Marren made a strenuous hustle during the past couple of weeks while Mr. Maguire lost no opportunity of striking the voters in his own behalf wherever he met them although he did not put much time into the contest. It was arranged between the three candidates that Hon. Peter J. Brady should preside but as he declined to accept the position, Lawyer John A. Gately, a gentleman well known in the ward, was chosen and filled the place very efficiently. John P. Farley was secretary, and John J. Harrington, John F. Kelley, Henry Sullivan, George Marren and John Connolly, checkers. The proceedings were characterized by harmony throughout although the friend of each candidate worked hard for their favorite.

The senatorial delegates were James F. Owens, Frank J. Donohoe, John W. McEvoy, Albert E. Moors, John F. Kinsella, Dennis F. Finnegan, Philip Riley, Wm. J. Kelley, Frank Derlin, John P. Mahoney, James F. Miskella, Robert H. Harkins, John P. O'Hare, Ebenezer Miller, John Meehan and Michael J. McGlinchy.

County delegates—Peter J. Brady, John P. O'Hare, John A. Gately, W. J. Kelley, John P. Farley, John F. Curtis, John J. Duff, William H. Connor, John W. McEvoy, James F. Miskella,James F. Owens, Thomas J. McLaughlin, Joseph F. Egan, Dr. T. F. Cuff and John H. Moriarty.

The polls closed at 10 o'clock and the count was completed at midnight showing the result to be as follows. Total number of votes 1478 of which O'Connor received 658, Marren 511, Maguire 291, blanks 18.

On the announcement of the result Mr. Marren moved that the nomination be made unanimous and Mr. Maguire seconded the motion which was carried with acclaim.

Mr. O'Connor then made a brief address thanking his friends and the opposing candidates for the courteous treatment he received.

Ward Four.

Senatorial—Joseph T. Griffin, John E. Conlon, J. J. Ivers, Frank T. O'Neill, John F. Tully, Frank F. Tighe, John J. Ryan and Philip J. Connors. They were instructed to vote for Brady.

Ward Five.

In this ward there was no contest of any kind. John J. Burns presided and P. J. Hannafin was secretary. Delegates were chosen as follows:

Senatorial and county—Jeremiah Crowley, John J. Hogan, John J. Burns, M. J. Lynch, Andrew Barrett, J. F. Enright, M. J. Dineen, W. V. Hickey, John F. Murphy, James A. Young and C. A. Nealey.

Representative—John Welch, P. Custy, D. A. Sullivan, Charles Lebarge, D. H. Kelly, J. J. Hayes, W. T. Dunn, George E. Leavitt, George Kearns, Thomas J. Flynn and E. B. Quinn.

Ward Six.

One of the quietest and best conducted caucuses ever held in Ward Six was the representative caucus of last evening.

The High street ward room was crowded and at times, the line of voters extended down the stairway.

There was much speculation as to the outcome and while the sentiment everywhere seemed to point towards Hoban, the friends of the other candidates claimed that it was votes,not sentiment that would tell the story. It happened that in this instance sentiment and votes went hand in hand and Mr. Hoban won. Councilman Tony Robinson went up to vote and was challenged, it is said by a man whom he befriended not a great while ago. After the challenge the question of allowing him to vote was put to the caucus. On the first vote the chair could not decide, on the second the decided that Mr. Robinson was allowed to vote and he did so. There were several challenges of voters but no special incident connected with them. The polls closed at ten and the result as follows was soon announced.

J. J. Dolan	261
James Gookin	220
T. McGaffrey	38

It is seen that Mr. Hoban nearly beat all the other candidates combined.

When the result was announced there was a mighty shout and a rush for "Tommy" Hoban. So many wanted to get him on their shoulders that he was nearly torn to pieces.

Finally he reached the platform and made a short speech thanking the voters for their loyal support.

Senatorial—Philip J. Farley, Frank J. Simonds, Wm. F. Curtin, Anthony A. Conway, Dennis Harrington, Thomas P. Boulger, John Cole, Jeremiah Tompkins, Thomas F. Shannon, Timothy Hourihan, Frank P. Carey, John H. Clark.

OUT ON STRIKE

Haverhill's School Board Won't Get Together.

SCHOOL MATTERS IN BAD STATE IN THAT CITY.

Mayor Will Try to Get the Board in Session Soon.

HAVERHILL, Oct. 10.—There is a strike among the school board members, and seven declared they will not attend another meeting this year.

School matters have been in a bad state for several months,dating back to the election of the superintendent of schools and the election of teachers for the high school.

Over this election a dead-lock existed for several weeks and there was much feeling over the re-election of Principal Kelly and other teachers of the high school.

Since July it has been impossible to secure a quorum, and no meetings have been held. Among those prominently mentioned as being in the strike is, Dr. L. S. Smith.

He declared today that he would not attend any more meetings this year; he will not seek another election.

He said there were six other members who coincide with his views, and that all had as a reason for not attending any meetings, a dislike of giving their time to school matters and then being publicly denounced and privately besmirched.

He declared that school matters in Haverhill are now being attended to by a triumvirate of the committee.

As these seven members have always been among the most punctual in attending meetings during their term, it is claimed that the chances are unfavorable for a quorum at another meeting this year unless something is quickly done. The strikers declare that they have nothing to arbitrate.

PERSONAL.

The family of Hon. C. A. Stott have returned home from Rye, N. H.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Elgin J. Bill and Miss Margaret M. Foote.

Charles H. Allen of this city has been elected a life member of the Mass. Horticultural society.

Miss Margaret Smith of Hanks street has gone to visit her sister, Mrs. A. J. Deane, of Springfield.

The resignation of Second Lieutenant Butler Ames, Eleventh Infantry, has been accepted by the president.

Mrs. Hamilton Burrage and Miss Burrage will give a reception in honor of Mrs. Guy Burrage tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. George E. Garity of Talbot street entertained at whist yesterday, her club of 12 ladies being the guests. The prize winners were Miss Brenda Tweed and Miss Grace Cummock.

Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Helen Josephine Devoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Devoll, and Mr. Charles Benjamin Kendall of Passaic, N. J. The ceremony will take place on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23d, at St. Anne's church.

It Was Eight Years Old.

The Women's Relief corps of B. F. Butler, Post 42 appropriately observed its (8th) anniversary by a banquet in Associate hall, last night followed by speeches by Mrs. Clara Burleigh of Athol, the department deputy; Miss S. Agnes Parker of Brockton, Commander W. H. I. Hayes, Past Commander G. A. Marden, Charles A. Stott and John Welch.

IN THE POLITICAL SWIM.

In reply to the incessant cackling of the Citizen for Mr. Fifield's letter of acceptance, that gentleman has only to answer, "As a democrat I accept the nomination for congress tendered me by the democrats of the Fifth district." This will serve the purpose sufficiently. Being a democrat implies that he accepts the democratic platform and that if elected he will support democratic measures.

Mr. Fifield has a business experience that qualifies him for discharging the duties of congressman with credit to himself and his district. He has a personal interest in New England industries and can be relied upon from his wide experience to use good judgment on all matters affecting those industries. If we accept the Citizen's notions of what constitutes a qualification for the high office of congressman, we should select a political mountebank and a lawyer of large ambition and mediocre ability. As a good business mayor, Hon. George W. Fifield has not been excelled and as a successful business man and a democrat he will be elected to congress. As congressman his business tact, his knowledge of what the people want and what promotes prosperity will enable him to restrain the legal gentlemen and the mere politicans from embodying their dangerous theories in legislation.

Charles Rilley of Ward Six is a candidate for re-election to the common council and well he deserves another term. He has made an efficient representative of the ward, a good democrat and faithful to his constituency on all important questions. There will be little doubt of his re-election.

John B. Clancy of Ward Three is again a candidate for the common council. He has out a card announcing the fact.

For Common Councilman, 1895.

Some believe the figures indicate the number of times he has been a candidate. The card further states that he is a "country produce dealer;" that is supposed to mean that he deals in everything the country produces, as distinguished from what is not produced in the country, such as hen's teeth, for example. There is a postscript to his card with an "N. B.," which is interpreted "No bluffs." "No boodle" or "no beer" which means that Mr. Clancy is going to run a decent campaign and that he will stand squarely on his merits or demerits for he admits further on that if both are to be discussed he will be heard from. Some candidates claim to be perfection itself but Mr. Clancy is not so egotistical. He adopts a nonalesseracantagonistical course in politics and that probably explains why he is so long before the voters as a candidate. "If democracy and competency are to be discerned" says Mr. Clancy in his postscript "I will place my candidacy visibly before you with full appreciation of past favors." From Mr. Clancy's experience, he must feel that a good many people are color blind on these points and that a magnifying glass would be needed to improve the "discernation" of the average voter in the banner ward. Very few would express such gratitude for the favor of defeat as does Mr. Clancy and this is to be appreciated all the more inasmuch as it is done in advance.

Judge Gaynor is the chosen leader of the reformers in New York. It was he who sentenced McKane and he holds a high place in the estimation of all true democrats. He was the strongest candidate with the single exception of Hill who could be nominated for governor of New York. He is now a great admirer of the New York senator. In a letter to Chairman Hinkley of the state convention he says:

"The reasons for which I publicly withdrew from the field to become the nominee for governor preclude me from accepting another place on the ticket I could not be a candidate for office and sit silent, as usage and etiquette would require me to do in my present case. It is now nearly five years that I openly objected as an individual citizen to political methods which I deemed low, base and criminally, and to official acts which I deemed heartless crimes, involving as they did spoliation of the people's hard earned money for the enrichment of a few who follow politics as a trade and made public officials their mere tools. Owing nothing to politicians or political organization, and also remembering that whatever little I have done to lift government up was done as a private citizen, I do not value any office so big as to wish to achieve it against the opposition of those whom I had supposed would be my friends. If I thought that the withdrawal of my name would injure Senator Hill's canvass, I would try to see some way to remain, for his recent development, in the national senate, places him with the foremost public men of his day. Between him and his opponent he should and I trust will prevail.

Joseph F. Donohoe was hustling at the caucus in Ward Three last evening as a candidate for overseer of the poor. He is a popular young man and this is his first venture in politics. He will be a hard man to beat.

Councilman Joseph H. Gormley of Ward Three is a candidate for re-election. He has been in the common council one year, during which he has labored hard to promote the interests of his constituents. Owing to the great demand for employment, the councilmen were beseiged by applicants for employment, and for these Councilman Gormley did all in his power. He has been a loyal democrat and can be relied upon in all such contests to be true to his party. James Miskella and John H. Callahan are also popular candidates for the council in the third ward.

The Columbian Club.

At a meeting of the Columbian Democratic club of Ward One, last evening, five new members were initiated; seven proposals for membership. The club is in a flourishing condition. Twelve persons have already been naturalized and several applications made. The club meets weekly and will endeavor to help the interests of democracy during the coming campaign.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The remains of Daniel O'Connor who died Saturday in Boston arrived in this city yesterday and were interred in the Catholic cemetery. Deceased was 75 years of age and was well known in this city.

The funeral of Elizabeth McClellan, daughter of Thomas and Gertrude McClellan, occurred this afternoon from her parents' residence, 9 Gage street. Rev. Mr. Sinclair officiated and the interment was in the Edson cemetery.

Funeral of Thomas B. Hickey.

The last sad service over the remains of Thomas B. Hickey was performed at the Sacred Heart church, this morning, Rev. Fr. Lavoie, O. M. I., celebrating a high mass of requiem,with Rev. Fr.McAvinnue, O. M. I., of No. Billerica, as master of ceremonies. The church was filled with friends of the young man who was widely known and loved. The choir rendered beautiful selections, the solos being sustained by Messrs. Mellugh, David Martin and Edward Martin, and Miss Adelaide A. Sullivan,the latter rendering "Calvary" after the mass.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, a pillow inscribed "Our Tommy," from the family; large cross, "Cousin," from Miss Mary Hickey; wreath and sickle inscribed "Our Friend," N. E. Bunting company; beautiful lyre,inscribed "Our Chum," from his associates; nineteen pinks, representing the age of the deceased, from Miss Annie Sharkey; nineteen tea roses from Miss Lizzie Welch; star and bar, inscribed "Brother," from Cornelius Hickey; crescent and star on base from Mrs. O'Hare and Mrs. Hickey; vacant chair, from cousin, Wm. F. Dailey; open book inscribed "Finis" from the Sacred Heart choir, of which deceased was a member; large basket from Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Donohoe; baskets from Peter Gray, George, Henry and John J. Roark; nineteen pinks from Greenwood Bros.; basket, the Misses Kennedy. There were friends present from Ballardvale, Salem and Beverly. The bearers, companions of the deceased, were John Brennan, Henry A. Cuff, Michael J. Gray, Thomas Lynch, Bartholomew Sheehan and Geo. Kivlan. Undertaker McDermott had charge, Rev. Fr. McAvinnue officiated at the grave.

LULUS VS. LALAS.

Two Teams of Would-be Bowlers Get to Their Work on Innocent Pins.

The "Lulus" and the "Lalas," two teams composed of "would-be but can't-be bowlers," rolled on the Miserables' alleys last evening. "Gene" McOsker, of boot and shoe fame, captained the "Lalas," and "Jim" Brosnan, who keeps Centralville in a state of peace, directed the efforts of the opposing team. Nothing but the private alleys would do for this game, which was full of exciting and difficult plays. The scorers had a hard time keeping count of the strikes and spares, and with the aid of "Gene" McOsker, who is quite an adept at "doctoring" scores, they figured out the following result:

PHILHARMONIC CLUB.

Japs Will Next Fight In the Vicinity of Port Arthur.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A dispatch from Yokohama repeats the report of the capture of Che-Foo, and adds that the Japanese have landed troops at Tarascada, near Port Arthur.

The Times, commenting upon the report of the capture of Che-Foo by the Japanese and the landing of troops at Tarascada, says that if these reports are true, the Japanese have at last shown their hands wisely in deciding to avoid an attack upon Pekin.

They have apparently decided to attack Port Arthur, and, it is stated, have disembarked troops in a bay to the northeast of that place, which is well suited to form a base of operations. The garrison may now number 19,000 men.

Like many places provided with extravagant coast defenses, Port Arthur has a back door. In selecting this as a place of attack, the Japanese are following the best precedents. The conditions have many points of resemblance to those of Sebastapol.

In the face of the coming winter, which the Chinese can better endure than the Japanese, the latter have every inducement to hasten the attack, and are unlikely to undertake another operation for the present.

HER BODY FOUND

Mrs. Chase Was Floating at Moody Street Bridge.

SHE HAD BEEN MISSING FOR A WEEK.

May Have Wandered Off and Fallen Into Canal.

The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Chase, who left her home a week ago, was found under the Moody street bridge in the Suffolk canal, at noon, by Harrison Cole and two young men.

The body was identified by her brother, Genely Gott of Merrimack street, and taken to Brooks' undertaking rooms. She was the wife of Daniel Chase of Lynn.

She left her home in the middle of the night, Thursday, and came to Lowell. It is stated she had quite a sum of money with her at the time. She declared she would not live with Chase, and Gott says she was afraid of her husband. The missed woman stayed at the corner of Broadway and Worthen streets until last Friday morning when she fled without a word.

Mr. Gott believes that some sad fate had befallen her. Her husband is in Lowell accompanied by his 12 year old son.

COUNCILMEN WORTH $10,000.

EXPERT VALUE PLACED ON MEMBERS OF POPULAR BRANCH.

Solomon K. Dexter Appraises Their Services at That Figure With the Assertion That Their Value is the City's Loss.

The Board of Trade met last night and continued the talk on municipal taxation and expenditure. J. L. Chalifoux and C. E. Adams spoke and then Solomon K. Dexter of Ward Four came out against the common council, saying it should be abolished, and that each councilman cost the city $10,000.

D. H. Varnum was in favor of contract labor on city work. William H. Parker suggested that the mayor have much more power and James O'Sullivan believed in cutting down salaried officials and giving competent men constant employment. Jerome F. Manning said taxes were inexcusably high, and he assailed the notorious Fort Hill park purchase, and other expenditures. He believed in non-partisan politics and thought that able bodied prisoners should be put to work on the streets instead of being sent to a workhouse. P. O'Hearn compared the city to a ruined farm. There was too much paying, too little repairing. Mayor Pickman said the tax rate of the city is the measure of its borrowing capacity. In regard to the Fort Hill business, he said, that the pride of every attractive New England city is its public garden.

ROBIN HOOD SUNG.

Night of Comic Opera at the Opera House Meets With Favor.

The success of the Bostonians, De Koven's tuneful and decidedly meritorious comic opera Robin Hood was well presented by an opera company of good singers, last night, at the Opera house. It is a second company to the Bostonians and did far better than second companies as a rule, the cast throughout being in competent hands. From beginning to end the music was good, and the libretto full of fine solos and grand choruses. Tonight, the same company promises another treat with The Knickerbockers, another of DeKoven's operatic successes, and while the opera is not so well known here by title, its great success elsewhere ought to command a big house tonight.

LIVES CRUSHED

Horrible Affair During the Storm in New York.

FLIMSY SEVEN STORY BUILDING ENTIRELY DEMOLISHED.

Nearly Thirty Victims of Defective Construction.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—While the gale was at its height at 3.30 a. m., a seven story building in progress of construction at 74 Munroe avenue was blown down and completely crushed into a mass of debris a two story brick building on the south side.

Thomas Welsh, employed in Hecker's stable reported the collapse of the building and his description was a horrible one.

In falling the entire structure fell to the south, but a brick wall on the north side fell outward also, crushing an extension of the house.

On the ground floor of this extension lived Michael McGurk and family, and five boarders and all escaped uninjured. But the disaster was frightfully on the other side. From the mass of debris came groans, and occasionally a prayer while at times the voices of little children were heard telling of the beams that were crushing them down.

Firemen began work at 4 a. m., to rescue those who might be alive, and at 11 o'clock four bodies were found, 9 injured persons taken out and 14 missing. The demolished house was occupied by Abrahams, and Krohns families who also took boarders. The structure which was blown over had repeatedly been condemned as a flimsy affair.

THE PROSPECTS brighten for Senator Hill's election.

MESSRS. ROARKE, O'Connor and Hoban are the victors in a hard fought battle. Our congratulations to you, gentlemen, our sympathies to those who were defeated.

THE POPULISTS of the city are the supposed friends of labor but as a matter of fact they can only injure the cause by defeating some democrats who have been the life long advocates of the rights of labor.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN is doing a lot of shouting for Knox. It is endeavoring to introduce a little personal feeling against Mr. Fifield but it will not succeed. There are no Apaphobians in the democratic party.

FROM ALL the world around come expressions of sympathy and sorrow for the loss of the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." He was a bright star in the literary firmament and the skies are dimmed by his disappearance.

THE CITY council is not doing much of late. Neither is the school board. Both bodies are suffering from overwork that has not been done and are getting tired. It is time to get a move on. Set the wheels in motion gentlemen.

WE ARE to hear more from Hon. Elijah Morse. Let him explain why he left the republican state convention. Was the air too chilly for him? Perhaps he wants to find out for certain when Mr. Montgomery is to make him governor.

THERE is trouble between the congressional and state committees in the populist party. The congressional has ceased to work for the candidates for congress for the reason that its efforts were opposed by the state committee. The chances of electing the candidates are not a bit lessened.

THE STRIKES in New Bedford and Fall River are now almost at an end. Starvation stared the people in the face and it was easy under the circumstances to force a settlement. The city government of Fall River very properly refused to grant further relief, if the operatives refused to accept fair terms and go to work. That made further resistance practically impossible.

SENATOR BRADY ENDORSED.

Justice Assembly Knights of Labor did a wise thing in endorsing the candidacy of Hon. Peter J. Brady for senator. Whenever the interests of labor came up for consideration Senator Brady was an untiring advocate on the right side. He rendered valuable service on the weavers' bill, and on every other bill calculated to advance the interests of the toilers.

It would be a suicidal policy for labor organizations to oppose democratic candidates who have stood for the interests of the masses in every legislature in which they have had a voice. There is scarcely a single labor reform on the statute books today that was not placed there through the efforts of democrats. Even when the legislature was overwhelmingly republican, a democratic minority fought for the interests of labor until the reforms demanded were conceded in whole or in part.

The populist party may have some theoretical merit, but it cannot control legislation and the organizations that support or endorse it are consequently following an ignus fatuus that will lead them counter to their own interests.

Labor's battle is fought in the legislature and outside. Let it be renewed where it was dropped last year, let the demand for a 54-hour bill for women and children in factories be made with redoubled energy, let a demand be also made for an eight hour day in state and municipal offices. It is useless to expect that needed reforms can be obtained all at once. They come gradually and as the result of long and patient agitation. Let this agitation be kept up outside, and let men in sympathy with the movement be sent to the legislature to aid in fighting labor's battles. This is the only safe means of advancing the cause of labor. To form an independent party that will remain for years a nonentity is to retard the movement by retrograde steps. Independence in politics between the two great parties is the surest way of getting labor laws that will guarantee just treatment, fair wages, and shorter hours.

WHERE is that A.P.A. organ for the publication of which the Rev. Hugh Montgomery arranged some weeks ago? Has the project been abandoned or did he find that his knowledge of the English language was too imperfect to warrant his embarking in such an enterprise? Judging from the spelling and grammar of the A. P. A. Herald prospectus, Mr. Montgomery, who penned it, would need a course of instruction at one of our grammar schools. What kind of a response did the reverend gentleman get to his pay in advance circulars? He made the modest request for intending subscribers to put up a year's subscription and take all risks of failure, suspension, change of editor or removal to another church or any of the mishaps, calamities or vicissitudes that befall a new journalistic enterprise. The A.P.A. Herald was due yesterday.

DEMOCRATS SHOULD register this week if they wish to vote at the state election. Wednesday of next week will be the last day for registration for the state election, so that many may find themselves deprived of the privilege of voting through sheer neglect.

BULL FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

"The prohibition of bull fighting in Mexico by laws enacted there about seven or eight years ago has practically done away with such exhibitions in that country, and they are rarely to be seen, except during a few days known as Pascua or feast time, at the close of each year," said F. G. Stratton, a cattleman from the southwest.

"I shall never forget a most brilliant contest that took place just prior to the taking effect of the decree against bull fighting. I was fortunate enough to witness it, and I saw one of the most skillful, daring and expert of the professional fighters of Mexico engaged in the leading part.

"This performer was a young woman, Senorita Hernandez, and she had advertised for the wildest and fiercest bulls the country could produce and agreed to fight them while she was wearing stilts. The novelty of a young girl engaged in a bull fight, handicapped by having stilts fastened to her feet, was sufficient to attract a crowd of fully 5,000 people to the large amphitheater. The animals provided for the occasion were small, active and wholly untamed, and each had his horns trimmed and polished until the horns were quite as bright and almost as sharp as needles.

"The fair Castilian was under an advertised obligation while wearing the stilts to kill at least one bull with a sword scarcely more than two feet in length. This was to be done by the toreadora at the time the animal was making a charge, the fatal thrust to be given while she was directly in front of and fairly facing the bull. The animal selected for this contest was a beautiful specimen, black as coal, agile as a cat, savage and wild. After he had entered the arena and had been permitted to make a charge or two to warm him to his work the governor, who presided on the occasion, gave a signal, and the bugle sounded the 'death call.'

"The senorita with stilts of one foot in height, securely fastened to her limbs, received the short sword, saluted the governor, and, turning toward the bull, gave a shout of defiance and waved her scarlet cloak to arouse his anger. The bull, quivering with excitement and pawing the earth in his rage, his eyes flashing fire, lowered his head to the ground and started at full speed toward the senorita.

"The brave girl waited until the beast was within 20 feet, when, bracing herself firmly, she held her sword at shoulder height, ready for his coming. When within four feet, she threw her body suddenly forward, gave a quick thrust with the sword, and without waiting to see the effect of the blow swung quickly around and again saluted the governor. In the twinkling of an eye she turned to face the bull, and as she did so he dropped dead so close to her that without moving from her position she placed one foot upon the neck of her helpless enemy. The sword, directed by the strong arm of the self possessed girl, had severed the spinal cord, and death was instantaneous and probably painless."—St. Louis Republic.

Unable to Negotiate.

"Do you wish to engage a competent instructor," asked the man at the door, removing his hat, "to give lessons to any members of your family in music or German?"

"No, sir," answered the housewife. "I think not."

"I don't think I could."

"Or a private tutor in elocution?"

"No."

"I have had considerable experience as a teacher of Delsarte. Possibly I might make some arrangement for imparting instruction in this fascinating branch of"—

"I don't think you could."

"Madam," said the man, with a regretful sigh, "I am sorry we are unable to place this matter on a business basis. I have exhausted the list of professions or vocations in which I consider myself fitted to engage as a means of gaining a livelihood. As there appears to be no opportunity to exercise any of them for the relief of present emergencies, I am compelled to ask you, madam, if you will be kind enough to give me a plate of warmed over victuals?"

"I will not."

"May I inquire, madam, if anybody has previously tried to work this game on you?"

"I don't remember that anybody has."

"Then I must have struck a thundering poor neighborhood," rejoined the man, putting on his hat and turning away. "This is the sixth house I've run against in this block without hitting anything."—Chicago Tribune.

A Judicial Appeal.

On one of the many official excursions made by boat to Fortress Monroe and Chesapeake bay, Chief Justice Waite of the supreme court, Judge Hall of North Carolina and other dignitaries of the bench were participants. When the government steamer had fairly got out into the Atlantic, the sea was very rough, and Judge Hall was taken violently with seasickness. As he was moaning aloud in his agony, the chief justice, laying a soothing hand on his shoulder, said: "My dear Hall, can I do anything for you? Just suggest what you wish." "I wish," said the seasick judge, "your honor would overrule this motion."—San Francisco Argonaut.

INTERESTING "HOW" SERIES

Water Is a Necessity to the System—Efficacy of the Bath in Preventing Diseases—Typhoid Fever.

Water is for many things a simple but sure remedy. Dr. Elmer Lee of Chicago first proposed during cholera in Germany about a year ago by cleansing the stomach by constant washing out with sterilized water. Sterilizing kills all germs in anything. The same doctor now proposes this treatment for typhoid fever and on this subject says:

"Fears were formerly entertained by me, as they are today by some of my contemporaries, that something would be burst by running a large volume of water into the bowels of persons sick with typhoid fever. No harm has ever been done, and neither is it likely to be caused. Several hundred cases have been so deluged by me with large quantities of water, and in no instance has the result failed to be beneficial. The fear of doing harm may be entirely and forever dismissed."

It is specifically stated that the temperature of the water used for cleansing and washing the bowels should always depend upon the temperature of the body. If there is high fever, the water is more agreeable and useful to the patient when it is cool—viz, 75 degrees—but if the patient is chilly or has a low temperature the water should be at blood heat, nearly 100 degrees. During the first week of illness the irrigation of the bowels should take place in the morning and again in the evening of each day. After this one douche of water should be given each day until convalescence. The co-operation of the patient it readily accorded. The treatment takes hold of his reason, which lends both hope and help to the management of the case.

Bathing the body is performed at regular intervals. The bathtub may be used when the patient is strong enough to be assisted to it. Where otherwise, sponging with cold water is very refreshing and useful to maintain strength and lower the heat of the body. As to the internal treatment, let there be no restraint in administering water. Torturing fever patients with thirst is happily being abandoned on all sides in medical practice.

Typhoid fever is in many parts of the country, and particularly in the high and well drained hilly and mountainous regions, but too often the cause of widespread and fatal epidemics. There should be abundant opportunity to test the irrigation treatment, and it seems to merit careful examination.

How to Whiten Rough Red Hands.

Keep the body clean by two warm baths a week. Take two cool baths a day to keep the skin in a healthy condition. Get the digestive organs in perfect order. Eat and drink temperately, get plenty of sleep and take moderate exercise. Make a lotion for the hands of rainwater, one-third as much glycerin and the juice of one lemon, to be used after washing.

How to Increase Flesh.

First avoid indigestion. The quantity of food we eat matters not; it is the amount which is digested and assimilated. A diet of lean beef that has been finely chopped and robbed of the connective tissues, made into flat cakes, lightly broiled and seasoned, and a tiny piece of well toasted whole wheat bread, with a cup of hot water, if persisted in for two or three months, will effect a cure. After that come back gradually to carbonaceous foods. Remember that the fats are more easily converted into fat than the sugars and starches, and all starchy foods must be well cooked. The light lunch at noon would be decidedly better, and then take your 6 o'clock dinner. After dinner rest plenty of time to digest and assimilate the food.

How to Prevent Choking From a Fishbone.

A raw egg swallowed immediately will generally carry a fishbone down that cannot be removed from the throat by the utmost exertion and has got out of reach of the finger.

How to Wash Underwear.

Never wash underwear in the same suds which have served for white things. Aside from the dirt held in solution, the water is charged with linty particles that are sure to cling and abide in the elastic mesh of knit goods. To wash colored knit silk garments dissolve a handful of powdered borax in a pail of warm water and soak the things in it for 15 minutes. Then wash rapidly through a good white soapsuds, rubbing as lightly as possible. It should be about blood warm. Squeeze out of the suds, but do not wring. Rinse in two waters of the same temperature and hang to dry without any wringing.

How to Renew Stained Floors.

To renew stained floors that have grown a little dull rub thoroughly with beeswax and turpentine. Repeat this whenever it is needed.

He Mistook His Man.

It was on board a steamer coming from Algeria. They were about to stop, and the passengers on landing would have to pass the custom house. A saloon passenger opened his portmanteau and took therefrom a large assortment of cigars, which he endeavored to stow away in his pockets so as to escape detection. Unfortunately his pockets were not capacious enough to hold the lot, but, nothing daunted, he turned to a fellow traveler, saying, with a winning smile:

"Would you mind taking charge of these four small parcels—just till we have passed the custom house, you know?"

"I don't object in the least," replied the other pleasantly, "but I might not find it quite so easy to give them back to you."

"Why not?"

LIFE OF A COWBOY.

How the Free Knights of the Plains Put In Their Time.

Every year vast herds of cattle are driven out of Texas to the northern ranges. These herds number from 2,000 to 5,000 head each, and they are driven by a company of cowboys numbering usually 12. Besides these men there is the one in charge, commonly called "the boss," and a cook. Each cowboy is usually supplied with four horses, for the journey is a long one, and the animals are apt to become overworked. Then there is the possibility of one or more of them being killed in a stampede.

The stampede is most dreaded by the cowboy. It means hard riding and a fearful tax on the nerves, for in attempting to stop the progress of a herd of young and wild steers that are panic stricken a man takes his life in his hands. To avoid such an occurrence while the cattle are "on trail" they are kept as closely together as possible, for in new and strange surroundings the young cattle are always nervous and excitable.

At night the cattle are "rounded up" and kept together until they lie down. If the cattle are quiet, as they are disposed to be if the weather is pleasant, the cowboys take turns in riding around the herd to see that none wanders away from the main body. This is kept up until morning, when the cattle get up and once more begin feeding. The drift from Texas to Montana requires from four to six months, and it is impossible to imagine the hardships that the cowboy encounters in guiding the animals through waterless regions and over mountains.

As the northern localities are approached the anxiety of the men increases, for they are menaced by terrific thunderstorms, and there is nothing that will drive a herd of cattle crazy so quickly as a loud crash of thunder or a vivid flash of lightning. To cause a stampede it is only necessary for two or three cattle to become terror stricken and start away at a flying gait, bellowing in fright like a mad bull. In an instant the entire herd are alert and before the men can prevent it are rushing madly across the country.

In this emergency the duty of the cowboy is a serious one. He must stop the terrified cattle if possible, and away he goes at breakneck speed, striving to outstrip the leaders. The race continues sometimes for 30 miles.—Chautauquan.

A Lemon Luncheon.

One of the children on Rivington street had an unexpected stroke of luck the other morning. She found a dime. The good news spread rapidly through the neighborhood, and she soon found herself the center of an admiring and reverential group.

"Say, wot er yer goin to buy?" was the question which assailed her ears.

"Leming sticks an lemings. Pony'll give me three lemings fur a nickel. We kin cut 'em in half. An leming candy is six fur five. That'll make it right. Now, I'll choose the five wot I'm goin to treat, an I don't want any others a-taggin on."

This was accepted with resignation by the group, and the selection was made with a solemn publicity. The uninvited seemed to feel no rancor, although one of them remarked that she knew whom she would not invite the next time she had any money. The five chosen guests and the hostess proceeded to make the purchases. The lemons were sliced in two and handed around. The sticks of candy were properly apportioned. Each stick was promptly plunged into the heart of the lemon, and the six feasters began to suck their candy.

"Yes," agreed the giver of the banquet. "'Sides they're fashionable. I've read frequently of vi'let lunchings an pink lunchings, an dis yero is a leming lunching. See?"—New York World.

He Wouldn't Give Up His Foot.

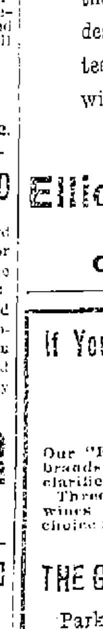

"You would never think that I once had a hole clear through my ankle bone, would you?" asked a West Garland man who steps around as lively as any of them. "No? Well, that's what they all say. But it's a fact all the same. When I was in the army, I met a bullet going in a different direction from what I was, and it declined to turn out to let me pass. It struck my ankle fair on the side and bored its way straight through it. At the hospital the doctors in dressing it would draw a cloth right through the ankle. They said the foot must be amputated, but I said no. They said I would die unless they cut it off, but I said I would die with my foot on my body, if at all. They said they would chloroform me if I resisted and cut it off anyway. The chief director of hospitals in the department happened to come there, and the doctors referred the matter to him. He spoke to me pleasantly and gave the wound a careful examination. He said it would have to be cut off probably to save my life, but they would wait a few days before doing it. Well, it wasn't cut off, as you may see, and I think it's a foot worth fighting for, don't you?"—Lewiston Journal.

The Pyrometer.

Some remarkable claims are put forth in behalf of Professor Austen's new pyrometer for the more accurate measurement of high temperatures. It is a thermo junction of platinum and of platinum alloyed with rhodium, this being attached to a galvanometer. The spot of light from its mirror is received on a revolving drum covered with sensitized paper. The curves exhibited give a 24 hours' record of the variations in the temperature of the blast supplied to furnaces smelting iron. In this way it is possible to account for the variations in the working of those large structures, and, by insuring regularity of work, to avoid the occurrence of such variations; also to effect economies of fuel, which it is anticipated will attain very large proportions, proving, it is claimed, to be of great industrial importance in conducting this branch of metallurgy.—New York Sun.

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Turning the Tables.

"Young man," said the aristocratic colored citizen, leaning back in his chair, "haven't I seen you befo'?"

"I don't know, sah," responded the colored waiter, depositing the plate of soup before him and placing the salt and pepper within reach. "Was you at de Dahomey village in de Midway last summah?"

"Haw, haw! Sho' 'nough," rejoined the guest, with ready appreciation. "So dat's whah you was! Yas, I was dah!"

"Well, I wasn't," said the waiter stiffly. "I don't tink we've evah met befo', sah."—Chicago Tribune.

Enlightened.

In all policies of life insurance these, among a host of other questions, occur: "Age of father, if living?" "Age of mother, if living?" A man in the country filled up his father's age, "if living," 112 years and his mother's 102. The agent was amazed at this and fancied he had secured an excellent customer; but, feeling somewhat dubious, he remarked that the applicant came of a very long lived family.

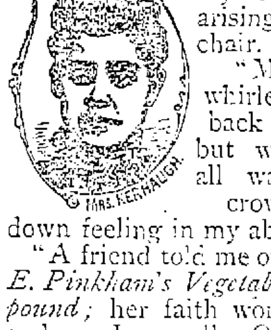

"Oh, you see, sir," replied he, "my parents died many years ago, but 'if living' would be aged as there put down."

"Exactly; I understand," said the agent.—Tit-Bits.

WARLIKE TACTICS

THEY MADE A GRAND SHOWING IN REVIEW.

Many Old Time Methods Have Been Discarded.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Through the mist of a strangely variable autumn morning into the unbroken glory of an October day, 1893 Massachusetts militiamen marched. In the soft brown hats and canvas leggings of field uniform, with the double rows of bright buttons on their army overcoats glistening like stars upon the firmament, the state defenders made a most attractive picture.

Rapidly maneuvering, their swiftly shifting lines sent up the broad avenues of the Back Bay district and the greenery of the fens threw back a score of colors that arranged themselves with kaleidoscope harmony. Infantry, artillery, cavalry, naval brigade, cadet corps, around they went with the signal corps on the towers and the men of the red cross on the Common—the wholesale exemplification of what volunteers can accomplish in scientific warfare.

The main object of the day was the concentrating of masses into prescribed alignment from deployment in irregular formation; in less soldierly language, the bringing of a disciplined force to the relief of Boston, the performance of work in military fashion and the retirement of the forces as rapidly as they came.

The Essentials.

The men found themselves scattered amid the masts of early morning and Boston's suburbs; the problem was to close upon the mob supposed to be entrenched at the city's center. Every condition was made as much as possible like that of actual emergency. Having the battle line formed upon the general alignment of Massachusetts avenue, stretching through the city, across Harvard bridge and through Cambridge to Union square in Somerville, there was a general forward movement to a designated point by street formations, squares and rice columns to respective regiments.

The regiments reunited, each sought its proper brigade, and, that once formed, the march of the consolidated division was taken up for the heart of the city. All the bodies north of the city rounded at Somerville, all south at the Roxbury baseball grounds, and you have the great outlines of the picture.

There was no burning powder or rattling musketry; instead, an endless forming of hollow squares, flank movements and skirmishing. The colonel gave the order to move forward and clear the street. The first company of each battalion swept ahead in double line, reaching from curb to curb. The second company wheeled to the left in two columns, covering the flank; the third to the right, while the fourth closed the square, the colonel and his staff, with colors in the center.

This done, there was the click of triggers from the flank lines to dislodge imaginary rioters in seventh-story windows and on tall housetops. Arrived at a cross street, the columns halted to allow the flank lines to face about down the side thoroughfare and fill the vista with dying lead, while the first company poured a volley into the crowd ahead and the rear company faced about to make the wounded think all hands were coming back.

On the Common.

Another square with unshifting lines was on the Common. Within the square and nearly at its center Captain Myles Standish sat astride his horse. There was the ambulance that looked like a bus. Luggage was scattered over the grass in firmly fastened bundles, while bedding and camp furniture were piled up in a heap.

Half of the naval reserves were with the land defenders. The others were in their element, some stringing a line of torpedoes across the Charles. All Captain Weeks' other boys were cambering about the dispatch and mortar boats, ready to run the most dangerous of blockades.

The signal corps, 'twixt earth and sky, perched on the roof corners of the state house and private buildings, were sweeping the horizon.

The men appeared less like marionettes, sewed out of plank, with their arms grown to their bodies. Instead, there was a natural swing that bids adieu to the old-time stiffness. The old wheel has become a turn; the methods of halting and resuming march, too, have been altered, and for the better.

Bits of bright color abounded from the crimson feathers of the sharpshooters to the blue and orange arm-bars of those engaged in special service. There were the snowy naval reserves nicely starched and laundered, the deep red cavalry blankets and the dazzling tin cups.

The schools in Cambridge were closed to allow the children to give the semblance of a riot, and many of the stores in Boston suspended business at noon.

The troops were reviewed by the captains, the colonels and the generals, and in the afternoon Governor Greenhalge, the commander-in-chief, presided over the grandest review of all. The parade itself was over two miles in length, and it was late in the afternoon before it had passed the reviewing stand at the state house. The line presented a brilliant spectacle. The soldierly bearing of the men brought forth round on round of applause from the spectators who lined the sidewalks.

FANCY TABLE WARE INCLUDING A FRIED OYSTER SERVER.

The graceful carafe is no longer stylish, and in its place has come the cut glass ice pitcher.

Very unique are the little glasses in the shape of tulips, with delicate silvery tracery, which are used to serve "frappe" in, a very popular ice for afternoon teas and receptions.

A handsome finger bowl which is both new and novel is, in fact, a double bowl, one shallow bowl of opal glass being set in a second, perhaps ten sizes larger. The space between is filled with small flowers. The effect is extremely effective, and the guests feel that they are dipping their fingers in flower wreathed water.

Among the new finds are the exquisite porcelain spoons which accompany the new cafe noir sets.

The "fried oyster server," with its wide, short blade and handle decoration of shell, is one of the novelties in silver which gives promise of being very popular.

The "hotcake lifter," which is a broad, flat shovel with perforations and has a handsome oxidized handle, is among the novelties recently placed on the market.

Quaint shaped dishes for salted almonds are in the form of a half almond in soft browns and yellows. A dessert set is of white china, with no decoration except a gold band and monogram.

And to conclude this little summary of table novelties mentioned in The Decorator and Furnisher, white china trays decorated in seashells and aquatic flowers and leaves are among those used for salads and water cress.

A Picturesque Mantel.

Designs for some of the latest and most popular styles of mantels are given in Ladies' Home Journal, and among them is a picturesque example of an old Dutch mantel of tile, metal and wood.

To carry out the effect in the true form the tile should be either a bottle green or an old blue. The metal frames, studded

The doors of the small cabinets at either end of the shelf should have in each six old Dutch quiltsqyes of colored glass leaded together. The hinge straps and escutcheons on them are to be of the same metal the tile work is bound with. The balls at the ends of the side chains are cast affairs and studded with spikes to lend them an antique appearance, while the plates at the bottom and fastened to the face of the side piers are to be of sheet iron decorated as the drawing shows. This style of mantel is very quaint and original and gives a decidedly unique look to a room.

Bathrooms of Fortune's Favorites.

The prevailing fashion among those favorites of fortune who are owners and occupants of the palacelike mansions that are springing up on the eastern side of Central park is to have their bathing rooms as luxurious and ornamental as their boudoirs and bedrooms. A bathroom, says Harper's Bazar, is no longer a place for the ablutions of all the members of a family, where the housemaid has a cupboard for her brushes and brooms, and where little boys and girls may sail their paper boats by way of an occasional indulgence. Every member of a millionaire's family in these days has a suit of rooms for his or her exclusive use, consisting of the sleeping room, dressing or sitting room and bathroom. Onyx is the favorite stone for the belongings of a modern bathroom. It was introduced a few years since by Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, the walls of whose bathing apartment are entirely of white onyx, as are also the furnishings. The floor, of course, has its rich soft rugs, and there are cushions to the one or two chairs that the room contains, but no upholstery, and the draperies are all of muslin or some light washing material, so that microbe or insect life could find no resting place in the apartment.

Nice Ways to Cook Tomatoes.

There is hardly anything more appetizing in the way of cooked tomatoes than the baked tomato, either plain or stuffed. To bake tomatoes cut off a small piece of the fruit at the stem end and put in a bit of butter, a pinch of sugar and a pinch of salt. Sift a little powdered cracker or bread crumbs over them, and if the flavor is liked add a few bits of onion. Bake an hour and have the top brown. For stuffed tomatoes select large, full meated tomatoes. Cut off the tops of a sufficient number to fill a baking dish of the size desired. Scoop out about a third of the contents of each tomato and fill the space with bread crumbs, butter, a little salt and a little pepper. Sprinkle bread crumbs over the whole. Add a few more bits of butter. Set in the oven and bake till the crumbs are a nice light brown.

A Useful Article.

A sandbag is one of the most useful of household articles. Its virtues are equal if not superior to the hot water bag, and the cost is considerably less. The sand should be fine and clean and should be thoroughly cleaned out before being bagged. It is better to cover the flannel bag which holds the sand with a cotton one, as it prevents the sand from sifting out. A bag not larger than 10 inches square is a convenient size.

Trouble In the House.

"I'm very unhappy," said the lamp. "People are always turning me down."

"That's because you smoke too much," said the sofa, "but I—I don't do anything, and they're always sitting on me."—London Quiver.

If the United States had as great a relative population as Japan, it would have a population of 960,000,000 people.

TRAINING RACE HORSES.

The Differences In English and American Methods Compared.

There is no doubt that horses in England show a higher state of muscular development than ours, says a writer in the Boston Herald. There are no deep snows and icy tracks in the early spring over there, as with us, which compel our trainers to do in April and May what the English trainers can very easily start to do in February, nor are there the terrific "dog days" of August, nor the thermometer about the 100 mark in July to waste the horses to shadows of themselves.

All told they go much slower in the handling of the yearlings than is done here. The general features are much the same, but more care is taken in the bitting and mouthing. Side lines are first put on the yearling or a "dumb jockey" on its back, and the youngster after a week or so is jogged around the ring, gradually increasing the pace to a nice even canter. Then a boy or rather a man weighing perhaps 120 pounds, so as to accustom the colt to carry weight, is put up. Walking exercise is done for a month before the colt is asked to gallop.

The American trainer has one very marked advantage—there is so much more range on the breeding farms in this country that the colt has done considerable racing on his own hook and passes into the hands of the trainer in much better shape to handle himself than yearlings raised in England, where the paddocks are frequently so small that the colt no sooner gets extended in his play before he has to stop himself to keep from running into the fence. So that while the American bred yearling is asked to do in September and October what the Briton is only called upon for in February when it is fully 2 years old, yet there is not much to choose, as the American bred youngster is certainly more precocious and more of a race horse of its own making at an earlier date than the English bred one.

DISCIPLES OF RUSKIN.

Mr. Ruskin has so much to answer for in the vagaries of his disciples. The dangers of the Ruskin cult are dwelt upon in Good Words by Mrs. E. T. Cook, who points out that while every word of the "master" has at times been quoted as that of an inspired prophet few writers are so little able as he to bear the test of literal interpretation. If only his worshipers had the saving quality of humor, they would not always take him seriously. Mr. Ruskin denounces railway trains, and forthwith a small sect not only taboo those after all highly convenient vehicles for their own traveling, but carry their letters themselves rather than post them and thus utilize the iron monsters. He expresses a dislike of sewing machines because some part of his clothing has become unraveled, and forthwith the same people will wear nothing that is not hand sewed. Meanwhile the seer of Coniston in all probability goes on wearing machine sewed gloves and shirts himself and certainly does not despise the aid of the railway when he goes on a journey.

An awful warning to devotees are the young couple of ardent Ruskinians who, burning with a divine rage against usury and luxury, once determined to carry into practice Mr. Ruskin's extremest views of plain living (for others) and tried in vain, to their intense discomfort, to enjoy only the produce of their own industry. Another disciple gave up bookkeeping for pigkeeping, but after awhile he returned to his books, and what time he can spare from them is devoted to inditing the tale of his grievances against his former idol.

Not Without His Father's Permission.

Richard Vaux has never been to a theater in his life to see a theatrical performance. An interesting incident is given of his boyhood days, over threescore years ago. His father, a highly respected and prominent Friend, resided on Arch street and believed it was best for his children to be trained within the rules of the good old Quaker habits. At that period Ned Forrest was the brilliant young American tragedian and had captivated all the boys of Philadelphia in his character of the Roman gladiator and big Indian Metamora. Young Vaux naturally desired to see the great actor play, but shrank from going without his father's consent, so one day he ventured to ask his father for a half dollar to get a ticket. The old gentleman kindly replied in Quaker accent:

"Richard, I don't begrudge the money, but thee knows I don't approve of playhouses and wish thee to promise me not to go to a theater without my permission."

The promise was given, and his father died suddenly after without giving the permission. Richard Vaux has conscientiously refrained from going to the theater ever since.—Philadelphia Times.

Effect of Example.

I was staying at a house recently where most of the women smoked. One day the hostess discovered her small daughter, aged 12, in a corner of the veranda calmly smoking a pipe and was horrified and at once proceeded to lecture the small delinquent. "I am shocked at you, Mabel," she said. "I suppose you have seen women smoking and think it is pretty, but it is not; it is disgusting. No little boy will have anything to do with you. They will go home and tell their sisters what a vulgar, unrefined little girl you are."

Precautions After Death.

Apropos of Mr. Edmund Yates' curious request in his will that his jugular vein should be cut before he was cremated—in order apparently to insure that he should not be burned alive—it may be recalled that Lord Lytton, the novelist, left orders that before he was buried a long needle should be run through his heart. He had taken the precaution to tell his doctor of his wish, and it was carried out.—London Letter.

A Brilliant Prospect.

Every time Tony is taken out for a walk he is astonished at the number of persons who exchange greetings with his grandfather, who has charge of the little urchin. After thinking it over one day he looked up with a smile on his face and cheerfully remarked:

"I say, gran'dad, won't you have a lot of folks to your funeral?"—Notiziero Bilbaino.

Naturalists have enumerated 30,000 different kinds of butterflies and 667 different species of reptiles. Of the former about two-thirds have been named; of the latter 400 are nonpoisonous.

The Real Danger.

Clara—Yes, I have enjoyed the company of the Fandorths very much. They are delightful people, but I should not care to meet them in town.

Flossie—You think you might not care so much for them after finding out who they are?

Clara—I was thinking that they might find out who we are.—Boston Transcript.

Crooked Counting.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—City Clerk Galvin was a witness yesterday in the case of alleged fraud in the ward 19 caucus, and caused a sensation by testifying that he had not brought the registration box, as ordered by the court, because the figures on the box had been changed since the caucus. In cross-examination the fact was brought out that the numbers were changed Monday night in city hall, because the boxes are to be used at the caucuses tonight. Judge Bolster made a final count of the checklist yesterday, showing that 838 names were checked off, whereas the announcement of Warden Mulhern, who is on trial, was a total of 976 votes.

A $25,000 Trotting Race.

An Arkansas Tragedy.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 10.—At Texarcana Dick Johnson, a gambler, had an altercation with C. E. Dixon, and Dixon threatened to kill Johnson in case he failed to produce a certain letter by 6 o'clock. Dixon took up a position in front of a saloon. A few minutes later Johnson emerged from the resort armed with a shotgun, and without warning blew Dixon's head off.

Strikers vs. Police.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10.—A desperate fight occurred between a squad of police and about 500 Italians, formerly employed at the Newark end of the East Orange sewer outlet, yesterday afternoon. The Italians were marching to the sewer to drive out the men who had replaced them. Two policemen and a number of rioters were hurt. After 10 minutes' fighting the strikers fled.

Strong For Mayor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—After one of the liveliest times witnessed for many years at a county convention in this city the New York state Democracy nominated the choice of the committee of 70, William L. Strong for mayor, and, excepting the names of Otto Kempner for sheriff and Dr. O'Meagher for coroner, accepted the remainder of the 70's ticket.

TAXES.

Collector's Notice.

TAX LIST FOR 1894,

With instructions to collect in the manner prescribed by the Statutes of the Commonwealth and the Ordinances of the City of Lowell, the sums assessed by them to the persons named therein, and he is now ready to receive payment of said Taxes at his office in City Hall.

When a Poll Tax only is assessed, the Tax is due, and if not paid forthwith, the Collector will proceed to collect the Tax as directed by the General Statutes.

SUMMONS, bearing costs, will be issued against delinquent Poll and Personal Tax Payers on or about November 1st.

INTEREST at the rate of seven per cent. per annum will be charged upon all Taxes which remain unpaid October 20, 1894 until the same shall be paid; and such interest shall be added to and considered a part of said Taxes. Poll Taxes are assessed on every male inhabitant above the age of 21 years. On undivided real estate each heir is liable for the whole tax. An error in the name of the person taxed does not defeat the collection of the Tax. Each partner is liable for the whole Tax assessed under the partnership name.

The assessors are now distributing Tax Bills. If any taxable inhabitant, by removing his residence since the 23rd day of May, or from any cause, should not receive his Tax Bill, he must remember the Tax demanded by this notice, and a new bill will be made out on application at the office of the City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes if a Tax has been assessed.

All who preserve their Tax Bills and bring them when they come to pay, will save the time of making a new bill and facilitate the business of the office.

Office Hours: From 9 o'clock a.m. to 3 p.m.

For the convenience of the Tax paying public the office of Tax Collector will be open in the evening as follows: Mondays, Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, from Oct. 1 to Oct. 13, inclusive, 7 to 8 o'clock p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, from Oct. 15 to Oct. 20, inclusive, from 7 to 8 o'clock p. m.

☞ Look for your Tax Bill at your place of residence May 1st, 1894, and bring it with you.

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Lowell.

J. E. Conant & Co. will sell at public auction, for just what they will bring, fourteen house lots on Chas. E. Carter place, Middlesex Village, or between the Tyler estate and the Joseph Smith estate, and on the line of the street railway. On Saturday next, Oct. 13th rain or shine, beginning promptly at 2 o'clock p. m., and on the premises, about halfway between the junction of Broadway with Middlesex street and the old Middlesex tavern, known as Middlesex park, I shall sell without limit or reserve, to the highest bidders, fourteen lots of land on very easy terms. The lots contain from 3750 to 6500 square feet of land each with frontages from 40 to 60 feet; are level, high and dry; are already to build upon or improve. Origin ally there were twenty-two lots; four have been built upon, two have the foundations in for building, and fourteen are now to be sold to whoever will bid the highest for them. It's a splendid opportunity, in an excellent neighborhood, in a very desirable portion of Ward Four, on the line of the street cars, and about ten minutes' ride or drive from "Down Town," and have all the conveniences of any residential section of the city.

☞IT'S THE YEAR TO BUY REAL ESTATE.

The purchaser must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers from $25 to $50 on each lot as soon as each lot is struck off. Other terms liberal and easy.

The sale will be absolute. The sale will take place rain or shine. Plans of lots posted on the lots.

Bijou Theatre License Revoked For Cause —Council Decides to Accept the Bid of New England Construction Company and Authorizes the Mayor to Sign a Contract.

At 8 o'clock Mayor Pickman called to order and read the call for the meeting of the aldermen.

Michael J. Garvey, Ward One; Arthur J. Howe, Ward Five; James D. Hartwell, Ward Five; Frank E. McNabb, Ward One; John C. Whitty, Ward Two; Charles O. Davis, Ward Four.

The following favorable reports of the street committee were ordered seven days to the city clerk's office: For acceptance of street from Powell to Chelmsford street; J. M. Wilson, for acceptance of Lamb street; A. D. Gordon, for edgestones on Whitney avenue; Samuel C. Shirley for a sidewalk on the northerly side of Sheldon street; L. J. Fletcher, for sidewalk on westerly side of Harvard street; J. F. Puffer for sidewalk on May street.

Standard Oil Company.

A hearing was then opened on the petition of the Standard Oil company, for the erection of a building on Main street to store tanks containing petroleum and its products, and also to set up a steam boiler.

Alderman Dunlap of the committee appointed to investigate said he believed the permit should be granted, but the resolution should be carefully drawn up in order to comply with the letter of the law.

He offered a motion to that effect and it passed.

Mr. Means, state inspector of oil, said that the proposed location of the works is a very good one, far removed from residences. There is very little danger of its being struck by lightning. As for explosions, he thought there was not much chance of one, and should a fire occur it would be confined to the building itself and would not spread, as does a fire in a wood working establishment.

Permission was granted to Alfred Swanson to set up and run an engine on Maple street.

An order was adopted authorizing the use of the Currier system in counting the ballots on e ection day.

Several petitions for minor licenses were referred.

Bijou Theatre Closed.

The resolution was adopted.

Alderman S. J. Johnson desired to know if a forfeit will be required of the contractors of the East Merrimack street bridge for delay in the work. Mayor Pickman said that he had been informed that the street committee has the right the extend the time. To settle the matter Alderman Johnson moved that the opinion of the city solicitor be obtained and the motion passed.

In The Lower Board.

It took some time for the council to get together last evening. When President Sparks called to order twenty members were present. Considerable concurrent business was transacted, and then Councilman Curtin called up his motion to reconsider the vote accepting the majority report of the garbage committee, in favor of a contract with the New England Construction company for the disposal of garbage. The motion to reconsider was lost 15 to 4. The motion to accept the majority report then passed.

The resolution authorizing the mayor to sign an agreement with the construction company upon the terms submitted, which are that the company will reduce all garbage not exceeding 20 tons daily at $25,000 per annum; anything in excess of that amount 25 cents per ton or the company will reduce all the garbage of 15 years at $5000 per year.

The report of the committee for fire department, recommending changes in the rules, was taken up again and again laid on the table until the next meeting.

An invitation to review the temperance parade was accepted.

METHOD OF QUELLING RIOTS.

HOW JUSTICE IS ADMINISTERED IN NICARAGUA.

Persistent Attempts to Ruin an American Is Countenanced and Abetted by the Government—Summary Punishment Inflicted.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—Pittsburg friends of Calvin Ausburn, the American, now imprisoned in Nicaragua, are daily expecting to hear from him regarding his situation. Mr. Ausburn is very well known here, having been in business in this city until 1886, when he first went to Central America. His home is at Brookville, and his parents now reside there.

In 1886 Mr. Ausburn decided to cast his fortunes in Central America. He went there and secured valuable timber and mont concessions. Later he embarked in the business of raising bananas for the markets of this country. His plantation is far from Bluefields. The land is at the junction of the Rama and Repun rivers and is the head of navigation, that is, so far as the big ocean steamers are concerned.

The ownership of this plantation, a mile square, is the cause of Mr. Ausburn's troubles. Pittsburg attorneys are counsel for him in a suit now pending in the United States circuit court.

About a year after he went to the country he was attacked by a body of Bluefields natives, who

and drove him out into the turbulent river in a small boat. They opened fire on him, but he was uninjured. The American servant, a colored boy, whom he had taken from Pittsburg, at this juncture secured several rifles and emptied them on the enemy. They believed they were being attacked in force and fled. It was discovered that several had been killed by the shots.

For this the partisans of the dead men never forgave Ausburn. Some time after that his house was attacked, looted and burned. At that time there were several thousands of dollars' worth of goods destroyed. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, Ausburn stuck to the country.

Then there was some talk of building a railroad in Nicaragua. The line of route was to pass through the property. The government thought that it would be desirable to acquire it, and the official persecution of Ausburn began.

Ausburn was in this country last month, having come home to get married. The ceremony was performed in New York on Sept. 3. A few days after he stopped in this city on his way to the south. He was warned by his friends not to return, but he decided to do so.

A Would-Be Train Wrecker.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—William Law, a former employe of the Fort Wayne railroad, was convicted yesterday of attempting to wreck a passenger train in revenge for having been discharged. A passenger train was stopped just in time to avoid running into an immense bowlder that would have ditched the train and cost perhaps many lives. At the trial Law's little son gave damaging evidence. No defense was made.

A Long Step Forward.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—That great project to unite Chesapeake bay with the Delaware river by a canal, and thus supply the most important link to an internal waterway route from Florida to Long Island Sound, received an impetus yesterday by the appointment of an expert board of commissioners to select the line of the canal. The board is expected to go to work speedily.

Gallant Service Appreciated.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—For the first time in the history of the United States army permission has been granted by the federal department for the presentation of a band of colors to a regiment by private citizens. The regiment is the Fifteenth Infantry of Fort Sheridan. The movement is in recognition of the services of the regiment during the great railroad strike.

Politics and Murder.

ATLANTA, Oct. 10.—James Chambers, a Democrat, shot and killed James Weaver, a Populist, in Early county, in a quarrel over the election returns. Chambers is in jail, and Populists threaten to take him out and lynch him. Democrats have armed themselves to defend Chambers. Excitement is at fever heat and a bloody riot is feared.

Paid a Big Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Chilian government has just paid into the state department $240,364, being the amount of the judgments rendered against Chili by the Chilian claims commission. Most of these claims are based upon injuries sustained by American citizens resident in Chili and Peru during the war between those countries.

On America's Shore.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 10.—Count Schy, a member of the lower house of the Hungarian diet, has written a letter from New York to his constituents saying that he has emigrated to America in order to start a new life. CHINESE TONGUE

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT ORIENTAL AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Ambassador Patenotre, the representative of the French republic in the United States, is regarded as one of the best informed men in diplomatic life on China and the scenes of present conflict between that country and Japan. A good part of his life in the French diplomatic service has been spent at Pekin and Tien-Tsin. His views on Eastern affairs possesses unusual interest.

The ambassador was asked to give his personal observations of the places which are now the theater of conflict and of Li Hung Chang and his surroundings.

M. JULES PATENOTRE

"At the time the Tien-Tsin treaty was signed," said the ambassador, "I was brought in contact with Li Hung Chang almost daily for six weeks, and while I had known him before, this close intercourse in negotiating so important a treaty gave me the opportunity of a somewhat personal acquaintance with him.

"He does not speak English, French or any other language than his own, all intercourse with foreign officials being carried on through an interpreter. There appears to be a settled policy among Chinese diplomats and officials to adhere to their own language, so much so that a Chinese diplomat at Paris who became proficient in making French bon mots created something of a sensation and was afterward recalled.

"Viceroy Li impressed me, however, as one of the very few Chinese officials who at heart desired to adopt the modern ways of European countries, and if he had not been held back by the overwhelming sentiment of China against Eastern civilization, he would have modernized China long ago. As it is, he has introduced quite a European atmosphere into his private household. He has a French cook to serve him. Some of the dinners he gave me were what they termed "double dinners," as there would be a Chinese dish and then a French one, thus alternating courses throughout the dinner.

Statesman, but No Warrior.

"Li strikes one as a student and statesman, rather than a warrior. His tendencies are all those of a scholar, while his great authority as viceroy of the metropolitan province of China and special guardian of the emperor has made him the head of the war power. But he is not a genius of war as he is of statesmanship. He has sought to modernize the Chinese army and navy, and such strength as these arms of defense have are due to his introduction of foreign officers, including General Gordon, and his adoption of modern arms and ordnance. The artillery he has secured is fairly good, but compared with those of improvement of European and American troops, which improve constantly, they are out of date."

M. Patenotre was asked as to the defenses of Pekin which the Japanese now threaten to strike, and the roads over which the invaders will have to pass if they march on Pekin.

"The defenses are very primitive," said the ambassador. "The outer wall is a huge affair, completely encircling the city. It is about the height of a six-story building and wide enough for travel by horses and carriages. But as a means of defense it would amount to nothing against modern artillery. The walls about Tonkin were even stronger, being built by skilled engineers, but they quickly gave way before big guns. There is hardly any such thing as roads about Pekin and Tien-Tsin, so that travel is very difficult. There are occasional stretches of good road, paved with large stone blocks, but these are exceptional.

"The trip from Tien-Tsin to Pekin—about 90 miles—used to take two or three days. Usually it is made by the river route, and that also takes several days. It is the most primitive of traveling, each passenger having a boat to himself. When I went by river from Tien-Tsin to Pekin I occupied one boat, my secretary another, the provisions another and the servants another. Thus the boats beat and tacked by means of little sails. There was no steamer above Tien-Tsin, although the capital and the emperor were only 90 miles above."

Fishermen Suffered.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10.—Schooner Hiram Lowell, from Grand Banks, spring aleak during the gale of Sept. 30, off Grand Banks, and went adrift, losing an anchor. All the trawl gear which was set was swept away and lost. Other vessels also suffered considerably.

A GREAT CELEBRATION

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Fully 60,000 visitors were in the city yesterday, the occasion being the corner stone laying of the Home of the Commercial Travelers' Association of America. The celebration of the day included a parade through the principal streets of the city, winding up at the home site, which is situated on the top of South mountain.

The parade was one of the largest seen in southern New York. It consisted of the many delegations of commercial men, 35 Odd Fellow lodges, the Masonic fraternity of two New York districts, Red Men's tribes, a regiment of the Pennsylvania National Guard, the local fire department, and many other civic, military and fraternal organizations.

On arriving at the home John Hodge laid the corner stone according to the Masonic ritual. He also delivered an address. Colonel Baxter of Elmira delivered the oration of the day, after which Governor Flower and Governor Pattison made extemporaneous speeches, in which they eulogized the commercial travelers and said many pleasant things for the home. The celebration was a success in every way.

Against Bill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Third Ticket party, at a meeting last evening at the office of E. M. Shepard, decided to nominate the following ticket: For governor, Everett P. Wheeler, of New York city; for lieutenant governor, Daniel N. Lockwood, of Buffalo; for judge of the court of appeals, Charles F. Brown, of Orange county. Everett P. Wheeler has announced his acceptance of the nomination. Mr. Shepard said that Messrs. Brown and Lockwood would also accept the nominations. Hon. Charles S. Fairchild was appointed chairman of the campaign committee.

New York Endeavorers' Convention.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—The ninth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor society of the state of New York opened with fully 3000 delegates present. Mayor Wilson delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the city. Several salutation addresses were delivered. Secretary Schuyler made a flattering report of the work of the junior departments and A. E. Dewhurst made a similar report for the senior unions.

Honeymoon Was Short.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—John F. Cutting was arrested yesterday in an action brought against him by Christine L. Cutting for a separation on the ground of abandonment. They were married on June 1, 1893, at San Francisco. She says that he learned on the bridal trip east that she had $7500, and that he obtained it from her by threats in order to invest it.

Who Is to Blame?

DAYTON, O., Oct. 10.—The search for the perpetrators of the two recent murders of the veterans of the Soldiers' home on pension day develops the fact that 40 old soldiers have been robbed and murdered at the National Military home here, and only passing notice has been taken of the crimes. The Grand Army is taking hold of the matter.

VAN LUEN'S ADVICE

Was to Grease the Palms of Medical Examiners With Coin of the Realm.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Oct. 10.—Special Examiner White of the pension bureau, in obedience to the order of Judge Shiras in the federal court, has filled the documents captured in the famous tin box in Pension Agent George N. Van Luen's private office at Little Springs, Ia. These documents are mostly in the form of correspondence, incriminating upon its face, between Van Luen and certain boards of medical examiners with whom he had relations.

Nearly all of the numerous indictments found against the pension attorney are based upon these letters. In all, about 700 papers are filed. Some of those letters are to pension claim agents, who Van advised to grease the members of the board in order to have their examinations go through smoothly. Others are letters between the agent and the surgeon, in which terms are agreed on for raising ratings and fixing up the papers in their cases.

It appears that Van Luen gave claimants to understand that this payment of money to medical examiners was the usual thing. Some of the documents show that affidavits as to physical disability were bought from physicians at an average rate of 50 cents a line. One letter makes an offer to a physician at Lincoln, Neb., to pay $5 for an affidavit covering a disease of the stomach, deafness and heart disease. The doctor sent the affidavit, but demanded $10 for it. This physician, whose name is not revealed, has since testified that he has made a large number of affidavits.

McKinley's Popularity.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—The demand was fairly active, with prices for good cattle showing no change from those of a week ago, while common and ordinary grades were ½ to ¼c pr lb lower.

Milch cows and springers—Drovers feel sure that there is going to be a good demand for choice new milch cows, and they propose to dispose of them in person rather than to turn them over to spectators and jobbers.

Veal Calves—The supply was light, the quality fair and values show no material change from last week's quotations. A clearance was effected.

Sheep and lambs—The demand moved slowly and buyers were offering prices much lower than those of last week. In many instances sales were made at a decline of ½c pr lb.

Swine—This stock is selling at 6¾c pr lb, dressed weight, a decline of ¼c for last week. It is quoted at 5½c pr lb, live weight.

Mr. Jones Isn't Dead.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—The suit of Mrs. Martha Jones to recover $2000 from the Fidelity Mutual Life association on a policy on the life of her husband was brought to an abrupt termination yesterday. The defense produced a deposition and photograph of Jones showing that he is now living in England. Mrs. Jones had in December, 1889, identified the body of a railroad victim as that of her husband.

A Pretty State of Affairs.

LORENZO MARQUEZ, Oct. 10.—Several whites and a number of friendly Kaffirs were attacked and massacred in the outskirts of the town yesterday. The Portuguese and foreign residents are holding public meetings to denounce the incompetence of the government and to demand energetic action to crush the Kaffirs. Business is paralyzed and the public offices are closed.

Still Unsettled.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 10.—The Cotton Manufacturers' association after a two hours' session yesterday took no action toward closing the strike. Though no one favored a restoration of the old rate, the 10 per cent reduction failed to get the necessary three-fourths vote from those under agreement to shut down. The feeling is that the mills will resume on a full reduction of 10 per cent. Mayor Coughlin's letter encouraging the opening of the mills was favorably received, though no action was taken on it.

Tillman's Declaration.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 10.—Governor Tillman declares that "constables will at once go to work and search all places where they have reason to know that liquors are kept, and that private residences will not be exempt when they are made depots for the storage of whisky."

FOR TEMPERANCE

TELLS OF THE MANY PITIABLE SCENES BEFORE HIM.

Judge Hadley is perhaps the most experienced man with victims of the drunkenness habit or disease whichever it may be in this city and this morning in addressing a man named Kelleher whom he sentenced to the workhouse for five months, he gave a brief temperance lecture which contained a wealth of meaning and was appropriate to the day, the anniversary of Fr. Mathew, the apostle of temperance. His honor was at a loss what disposition to make of Kelleher, and in sending him to the farm, taking him from his family, the court said that he was astounded at the amount of drunkenness in this city and the many sad and deplorable effects of it. The facts continually presenting themselves before him in court ought to be enough to fill any respectable and law abiding citizen with the deepest disgust and awaken all to a sense of their duty towards suppressing the vice.

Hannah Gorman, who was in for being a common drunkard while in court was seized with a fit the result evidently of a prolonged debauch. She was sent to jail for six months.

And Lycurgus came back. Not the famous old Stoic, but Lycurgus S. Watson an old man with long hair and a patriarchial beard and who might have passed in a crowd for his historic namesake. He was charged by his elderly wife, Abbie, with having threatened her with a knife, but in the end she told the court that they had been "jawing" and that she was not afraid of him.

"Is he a sober man?" asked the court.

"He's sober enough," answered Mrs. Watson.

"Well, what is your standard of sobriety?" inquired the court with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"He doesn't drink any beer but just drinks tea and coffee like myself," was the answer.

THE OPENING OF THE

173 Middlesex Street, is Postponed until Saturday, Oct. 13, at 9 A. M. Keep Your Eyes on That Day.

In order not to disappoint the people of Lowell this Genuine Fire Sale must be postponed until Saturday Oct. 13th, in that time the high class clothing will be ready to be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of maker's cost. It will pay you to wait until Saturday, Oct. 13th, at 9 A. M. Everything must be marked and an inventory of stock taken, that is the cause of the delay of time.

All readers will remember the thrilling accounts of the great fire related by the Boston newspapers on Sunday, April 21st, and of firemen fighting the furious blaze, which was so terrific that it required a 4-11 call to subdue the scorching flames. Among the largest tenants of the building 883 Washington street was the renowned Samuel Cohen, wholesale and retail clothier, who occupied at the time of the fire part of the large building. As a result a large amount of clothing was totally destroyed. Part of the remaining stock and other goods, consisting of Fine Custom-made Fall and Winter Clothing for Men's, Boys' and Children's wear, was shipped to Lowell, Mass., to be sold. The large double store now number 173 Middlesex street, near South street, has been expressly rented for A Genuine Fire Sale, and the big stock of fine clothing that was saved has been placed in the building and will be sold at retail at 25 cents on the dollar of actual maker's cost. This Genuine Fire Sale commences Saturday morning, Oct. 13th, at 9 a. m., and will positively last ten days only.

The orders of Mr. Cohen are to put such prices on the goods that there will be no question about selling them. This will give the people of Lowell and surroundings a chance to secure high class clothing for a mere trifle.

Men's Melton Cass. Fall Suits, that are sold in any and every regular clothing store at $12 and $14, you can get here at $3.85; English Diagonal Dress Suits, worth $25, go at $8.50; elegant imported Worsted Prince Alberts, silk and satin lined, $9.98, worth $35; Men's Fancy Silk Striped Trousers, worth $4.50, at $1.75; Men's Fancy Striped Dress Trousers at $2.73, worth $7.50; Boys' Pants 12c; Boys' Suits, worth $4, at $1.49; Men's elegant Fall Overcoats, $5.75, worth $15; Nobby Youths' Suits, $4.25, worth $12.50; English Top Coats, silk or satin, $6.75, worth $24; Cheviot Sack Suits, worth $20, at $6.65; imported "Vicuna" English Box Overcoats, lined with heavy twilled silk, $8.25, worth $28; foreign Wide Wale Worsted Dress Suits, worth $38, at $10.50, double and single breasted Cheviot Suits, $7.75, worth $21; Men's elegant Silk Mixed Cassimere Frock Suits, $8.50, worth $22.50; English Melton Silk Faced Overcoats, $7.50, worth $22; Men's Heavy Blue Cloth Double-breasted Suits, $8.50, worth $25; Men's Blue Kersey Overcoats, $7.08, worth $20; Young Men's Dress Suits, $5.75, worth $14.50; Men's Melton Cassimere Suits, 98c, worth $3; Men's Imported Clay Diagonal Worsted Full Dress Suits, silk lined, $9.50, worth $32; and 100,000 other Extraordinary Bargains not here mentioned, all to be sold in the next 10 days at 50 per cent. less than cost. Cut this out and bring it with you. Come early and take your pick.

Remember the Opening Sale cannot take place until Saturday, Oct 13, at 9 A. M., at 173 Middlesex St., near South St.

WINNERS NAMED

Three Great Ballot Contests in Ward Rooms.

Other Candidates Had Their Friends Out Hustling.

The democratic caucuses for the choice of representative candidates and delegates to senatorial and county conventions were held last evening and were largely attended. The chief contests were in Wards One, Three and Six in which Messrs. Roarke, O'Connor and Hoban were the winners. The details are given below:

Ward One.

For many years it has been the proud boast of the voters of Ward One that the "Acre" ward was the straightest ward in Lowell and that its caucuses and elections were the most honorable ever held in the city. Up to date the boast remains unchallenged for the the caucus last evening was one of the quietest, and most amicable affairs ever known in the history of the ward and an almost impossible feat was accomplished, namely, deciding upon a candidate without creating hard feelings in any quarter.

This caucus deserves more than passing notice for it was different from the other ward contests. In it were two young men, both members of the common council, with creditable records and both being men for whom every man in the ward would vote were the other not in opposition. Fred H. Rourke and P. J. O'Brien were the candidates and they fought a clean battle which was won by Mr. Rourke who will represent Ward One in the legislature next year. Every one knows the two gentlemen knows that either would be a credit to his ward in the legislature.

The caucus was called to order by W. A. Hogan, chairman of the ward committee, and the caucus officers were: Chairman, P. Keyes, Jr.; secretary, James Hearn; ballot distributor, John Pendergast.

These officers were decided upon by the candidates and in the selection of the chairman very good judgment was shown, for Mr. Keyes made an ideal chairman and settled whatever difficulties that arose in a manner which excited the admiration of both friends and opponents. Mr. Keyes, who is retiring from active polities with the current year, made a few remarks in which he expressed his heartfelt thanks to the voters of Ward One, who had honored him with their suffrage during his different candidatures.

The county and senatorial delegations were appointed as follows: Messrs. Peter J. Savage, Fred H. Rourke, J. Joseph Sullivan, James J. Fitzgerald, W. A. Hogan, Owen Callahan, Michael Broin, M. J. Garrey, P. J. O'Brien, Hugh Maguire, P. Keyes, Jr.

The polls opened shortly after five o'clock and closed at 10.

During the evening Frank Partridge of the Merrimack house, a republican, attempted to vote and he was challenged. Chairman Keyes asked him if he had voted in any other caucus and he replied that he had not voted in that hall but had voted in republican caucuses.

He didn't vote.

Two men named Fuller and Halloran were challenged, one by a Rourke man and one by an O'Brien man and they voted under protest.

About 8 o'clock Councilman Ryan came in and procured a ballot and marked it. As he went towards the ballot box a half a dozen or more voters challenged his vote. The chairman told him his vote was challenged and he made a few remarks stating that he was going to vote and no one was going to stop him. Men on the floor said that the democratic city committee had decided that Mr. Ryan could not vote at a democratic caucus and that the city committee represented the opinion of its constituents. A member called for a vote on the matter and when it was put before the house a big majority was opposed to allowing him to vote, and he did not vote.

The counters were M. J. Garvey for O'Brien and Peter Savage for Rourke. The ballots were all counted without even the slightest semblance of trouble, and the result was:

Necessary for choice	486
P. J. O'Brien	383

Mr. O'Brien in a brief speech moved that the nomination of Mr. Rourke be made unanimous and Mr. Garvey seconded the motion which was unanimously carried.

Mr. Rourke than thanked his friends for their efforts in his behalf and then ended the cleanest caucus in the history of Ward One.

Ward Two.

This being a republican ward the caucus did not bring out such a large attendance as in other wards. Fisher H. Pearson presided and Frank Morrissey was secretary. The county and senatorial delegates chosen are: Lawrence Cummings, Israel H. Sternberg, P. A. Fay, W. F. Courtney, Frank Morrissey, J. C. Burke, John Hurtubise, Robert Tweed, Thomas Gallagher and A. J. Burns.

The county delegates are pledged for P. A. Fay, and the senatorial delegates for Hon. Peter J. Brady. Ralph W. Stickney was nominated by acclamation.

Ward Three.

The representative fight in Ward Three was as hotly contested as any in the city. The candidates were Councilman O'Connor, Charles L. Marren, overseer of the poor, and John E. Maguire, ex-assistant assessor. Mr. O'Connor made a most thorough and complete canvass and Mr. Marren made a strenuous hustle during the past couple of weeks while Mr. Maguire lost no opportunity of striking the voters in his own behalf wherever he met them although he did not put much time into the contest. It was arranged between the three candidates that Hon. Peter J. Brady should preside but as he declined to accept the position, Lawyer John A. Gately, a gentleman well known in the ward, was chosen and filled the place very efficiently. John P. Farley was secretary, and John J. Harrington, John F. Kelley, Henry Sullivan, George Marren and John Connolly, checkers. The proceedings were characterized by harmony throughout although the friend of each candidate worked hard for their favorite.

The senatorial delegates were James F. Owens, Frank J. Donohoe, John W. McEvoy, Albert E. Moors, John F. Kinsella, Dennis F. Finnegan, Philip Riley, Wm. J. Kelley, Frank Devlin, John P. Mahoney, James F. Miskella, Robert H. Harkins, John P. O'Hare, Ebenezer Miller, John Meehan and Michael J. McGlinchy.

County delegates—Peter J. Brady, John P. O'Hare, John A. Gately, W. J. Kelley, John P. Farley, John F. Curtis, John J. Duff, William H. Connor, John W. McEvoy, James F. Miskella, James F. Owens, Thomas J. McLaughlin, Joseph F. Egan, Dr. T. F. Cuff and John H. Moriarty.

The polls closed at 10 o'clock and the count was completed at midnight showing the result to be as follows. Total number of votes 1478 of which O'Connor received 658, Marren 511, Maguire 291, blanks 18.

On the announcement of the result Mr. Marren moved that the nomination be made unanimous and Mr. Maguire seconded the motion which was carried with acclaim.

Mr. O'Connor then made a brief address thanking his friends and the opposing candidates for the courteous treatment he received.

Ward Four.

Senatorial—Joseph T. Griffin, John E. Conlon, J. J. Ivers, Frank T. O'Neill, John F. Tully, Frank F. Tighe, John J. Ryan and Philip J. Connors. They were instructed to vote for Brady.

Ward Five.

In this ward there was no contest of any kind. John J. Burns presided and P. J. Hannafin was secretary. Delegates were chosen as follows;

Senatorial and county—Jeremiah Crowley, John J. Hogan, John J. Burns, M. J. Lynch, Andrew Barrett, J. F. Enright, M. J. Dineen, W. V. Hickey, John F. Murphy, James A. Young and C. A. Nealey.

Representative—John Welch, P. Custy, D. A. Sullivan, Charles Lebarge, D. H. Kelly, J. J. Hayes, W. T. Dunn, George E. Leavitt, George Kearns, Thomas J. Flynn and E. B. Quinn.

Ward Six.

One of the quietest and best conducted caucuses ever held in Ward Six was the representative caucus of last evening.

There was much speculation as to the outcome and while the sentiment everywhere seemed to point towards Hoban, the friends of the other candidates claimed that it was votes not sentiment that would tell the story. It happened that in this instance sentiment and votes went hand in hand and Mr. Hoban won. Councilman Tony Robinson went up to vote and was challenged, it is said by a man whom he befriended not a great while ago. After the challenge the question of allowing him to vote was put to the caucus. On the first vote the chair could not decide, on the second the decided that Mr. Robinson was allowed to vote and he did so. There were several challenges of voters but no special incident connected with them. The polls closed at ten and the result as follows was soon announced.

J. J. Dolan	261
James Cookin	220
T. McCaffrey	38

When the result was announced there was a mighty shout and a rush for "Tommy" Hoban. So many wanted to get him on their shoulders that he was nearly torn to pieces.

Finally he reached the platform and made a short speech thanking the voters for their loyal support.

Senatorial—Philip J. Farley, Frank J. Simonds, Wm. F. Curtin, Anthony A. Conway, Dennis Harrington, Thomas P. Boulger, John Cole, Jeremiah Tompkins, Thomas F. Shannon, Timothy Houriban, Frank P. Carey, John H. Clark.

HER BODY FOUND

Mrs. Chase Was Floating at Moody Street Bridge.

SHE HAD BEEN MISSING FOR A WEEK.

May Have Wandered Off and Fallen Into Canal.

The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Chase, who left her home a week ago, was found under the Moody street bridge in the Suffolk canal, at noon, by Harrison Cole and two young men.

The body was identified by her brother, Genely Gott of Merrimack street, and taken to Brooks' undertaking rooms. She was the wife of Daniel Chase of Lynn.

She left her home in the middle of the night, Thursday, and came to Lowell. It is stated she had quite a sum of money with her at the time. She declared she would not live with Chase, and Gott says she was afraid of her husband. The missed woman stayed at the corner of Broadway and Worthen streets until last Friday morning when she fled without a word.

Mr. Gott believed that some sad fate had befallen her. Her husband is in Lowell accompanied by his 12 year old son.

EXPERT VALUE PLACED ON MEMBERS OF POPULAR BRANCH.

The Board of Trade met last night and continued the talk on municipal taxation and expenditure. J. L. Chalifoux and C. E. Adams spoke and then Solomon K. Dexter of Ward Four came out against the common council, saying it should be abolished, and that each councilman cost the city $10,000.

D. H. Varnum was in favor of contract labor on city work. William H. Parker suggested that the mayor have much more power and James O'Sullivan believed in cutting down salaried officials and giving competent men constant employment. Jerome F. Manning said taxes were inexcusably high, and he assailed the notorious Fort Hill park purchase, and other expenditures. He believed in non-partisan politics and thought that able bodied prisoners should be put to work on the streets instead of being sent to a workhouse. P. O'Hearn compared the city to a ruined farm. There was too much paying, too little repairing. Mayor Pickman said the tax rate of the city is the measure of its borrowing capacity. In regard to the Fort Hill business, he said, that the pride of every attractive New England city is its public garden.

Famous Sportsman Dead.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

LONDON, Oct 11—Sir John Asthley, a famous sportsman, and donor of the Asthley belt for long distance pedestrianism died today.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The remains of Daniel O'Connor who died Saturday in Boston arrived in this city yesterday and were interred in the Catholic cemetery. Deceased was 75 years of age and was well known in this city.

The funeral of Elizabeth McClellan, daughter of Thomas and Gertrude McClellan, occurred this afternoon from her parents' residence, 9. Gage street. Rev. Mr. Sinclair officiated and the interment was in the Edson cemetery.

Funeral of Thomas B. Hickey.

The last sad service over the remains of Thomas B. Hickey was performed at the Sacred Heart church, this morning, Rev. Fr. Lavoie, O. M. I., celebrating a high mass of requiem, with Rev. Fr. McAvinnue, O. M. I., of No. Billerica, as master of ceremonies. The church was filled with friends of the young man who was widely known and loved. The choir rendered beautiful selections, the solos being sustained by Messrs. McHugh, David Martin and Edward Martin, and Miss Adelaide A. Sullivan, the latter rendering "Calvary" after the mass.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, a pillow inscribed "Our Tommy," from the family; large cross, "Cousin," from Miss Mary Hickey; wreath and sickle inscribed "Our Friend," N. E. Bunting company; beautiful lyre, inscribed "Our Chum," from his associates; nineteen pinks, representing the age of the deceased, from Miss Annie Sharkey; nineteen tea roses from Miss Lizzie Welch; star and bar, inscribed "Brother," from Cornelius Hickey; crescent and star on base from Mrs. O'Hare and Mrs. Hinckey; vacant chair, from cousin, Wm. F. Dailey; open book inscribed "Finis" from the Sacred Heart choir, of which deceased was a member; large basket from Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Donohoe; baskets from Peter Gray, George, Henry and John J. Roark; nineteen pinks from Greenwood Bros.; basket, the Misses Kennedy. There were friends present from Ballardvale, Salem and Beverly. The bearers, companions of the deceased, were John Brennan, Henry A. Cuff, Michael J. Gray, Thomas Lynch, Bartholomew Sheehan and Geo. Kivlan. Undertaker McDermott had charge. Rev. Fr. McAvinnue officiated at the grave.

The exhibition of drawing was continued at the Mann school building, last evening. The attendance was quite large and the work is really creditable to the pupils of the primary and grammar schools and their instructors.

Prizes in a Drawing Contest.

Mt. Zion lodge, I. O. G. T., had a drawing contest for members last night, and it created considerable amusement. Dudley J. Bouchard won first prize and the booby went to Chaplain Thomas Husband. Arrangements were made for the entertainment of Chelmsford lodge next Tuesday evening.

ROBIN HOOD SUNG.

Night of Comic Opera at the Opera House Meets With Favor.

The success of the Bostonians, De Koven's tuneful and decidedly meritorious comic opera Robin Hood was well presented by an opera company of good singers, last night, at the Opera house. It is a second company to the Bostonians and did far better than second companies as a rule, the cast throughout being in competent hands. From beginning to end the music was good, and the libretto full of fine solos and grand choruses. To-night, the same company promises another treat with The Knickerbockers, another of DeKoven's operatic successes, and while the opera is not so well known here by title, its great success elsewhere ought to command a big house tonight.

PARADE POSTPONED.

But the Temperance Lecture Will be Held in Huntington Hall Tonight, as Arranged.

Owing to the rain storm it was decided to postpone the parade in honor of Fr. Mathew, by the temperance societies, tonight, but the lecture will be held in Huntington hall, as arranged. Delegates from the societies will arrange for the parade at a meeting called for tonight.

Help The Humane Society.

The society with the long name is always the subject of joking yet few persons there are who belittle its usefulness and the great good it does to the community. While depending on the public for support it does not go begging alms without a fair return and so the Harvest tea on the 17th for the society ought to be well patronized.

Presented an Emblem.

Past Grand Huntley was presented an emblem by the members of Excelsior lodge, M. U. O. F. last evening. A musical program was also rendered.

Register For Night School.

The registration of evening school pupils will take place on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

Fracture of the Skull.

Arthur Savagean, 10 years old, living near Aiken street, is said to be suffering from a broken skull by being knocked down by a bicyclist.

Played Whist With Luck.

The Four Fives whist club played at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tenney, on Eighteenth street, Monday evening. The first prizes being won by Mr. E. A. Gerry and Mrs. C. S. Bean, second L. K. Leach and Mrs. Gerry, the last named winning by a cut-off from a tie with Mr. Whitney.

HOW THE CITIZEN IS SHOUTING FOR KNOX.

In reply to the incessant cackling of the Citizen for Mr. Fifield's letter of acceptance, that gentleman has only to answer, "As a democrat I accept the nomination for congress tendered me by the democrats of the Fifth district." This will serve the purpose sufficiently. Being a democrat implies that he accepts the democratic platform and that if elected he will support democratic measures.

Mr. Fifield has a business experience that qualifies him for discharging the duties of congressman with credit to himself and his district. He has a personal interest in New England industries and can be relied upon from his wide experience to use good judgment on all matters affecting those industries. If we accept the Citizen's notions of what constitutes a qualification for the high office of congressman, we should select a political mountebank and a lawyer of large ambition and mediocre ability. As a good business mayor, Hon. George W. Fifield has not been excelled and as a successful business man and a democrat he will be elected to congress. As congressman his business tact, his knowledge of what the people want and what promotes prosperity will enable him to restrain the legal gentlemen and the mere politicans from embodying their dangerous theories in legislation.

Charles Riley of Ward Six is a candidate for re-election to the common council and well he deserves another term. He has made an efficient representative of the ward, a good democrat and faithful to his constituency on all important questions. There will be little doubt of his re-election.

John B. Clancy of Ward Three is again a candidate for the common council. He has out a card announcing the fact.

Some believe the figures indicate the number of times he has been a candidate. The card further states that he is a "country produce dealer;" that is supposed to mean that he deals in everything the country produces, as distinguished from what is not produced in the country, such as hen's teeth, for example. There is a postscript to his card with an "N. B.," which is interpreted "No bluffs."

"No boodle" or "no beer" which means that Mr. Clancy is going to run a decent campaign and that he will stand squarely on his merits or demerits for he admits further on that if both are to be discussed he will be heard from. Some candidates claim to be perfection itself but Mr. Clancy is not so egotistical. He adopts a nonatesseracantagonical course in politics and that probably explains why he is so long before the voters as a candidate. "If democracy and competency are to be discerned", says Mr. Clancy in his postscript "I will place my candidacy visibly before you with full appreciation of past favors." From Mr. Clancy's experience, he must feel that a good many people are color blind on these points and that a magnifying glass would be needed to improve the "discernation" of the average voter in the banner ward. Very few would express such gratitude for the favor of defeat as does Mr. Clancy and this is to be appreciated all the more inasmuch as it is done in advance.

Judge Gaynor is the chosen leader of the reformers in New York. It was he who sentenced McKane and he holds a high place in the estimation of all true democrats. He was the strongest candidate with the single exception of Hill who could be nominated for governor of New York. He is now a great admirer of the New York senator. In a letter to Chairman Hinkley of the state convention he says:

"The reasons for which I publicly withdrew from the field to become the nominee for governor preclude me from accepting another place on the ticket I could not be a candidate for office and sit silent, as usage and etiquette would require me to do in my present case. It is now nearly five years that I openly objected as an individual citizen to political methods which I deemed low, base and unmanly, and to official acts which I deemed heartless crimes, involving as they did spoliation of the people's hard earned money for the enrichment of a few who follow politics as a trade and made public officials their mere tools. Owing nothing to politicians or political organization, and also remembering that whatever little I have done to lift government up was done as a private citizen, I do not value any office so big as to wish to achieve it against the opposition of those whom I had supposed would be my friends. If I thought that the withdrawal of my name would injure Senator Hill's canvass, I would try to see some way to remain, for his recent development, in the national senate, places him with the foremost public men of his day. Between him and his opponent he should and I trust will prevail.

Mr. Rowell of the Courier places Lawyer Qua in the field as a candidate for the school board in Ward Two.

Joseph F. Donohoe was hustling at the caucus in Ward Three last evening as a candidate for overseer of the poor. He is a popular young man and this is his first venture in politics. He will be a hard man to beat.

Councilman Joseph H. Gormley of Ward Three is a candidate for re-election. He has been in the common council one year, during which he has labored hard to promote the interests of his constituents. Owing to the great demand for employment, the councilmen were beseiged by applicants for employment, and for these Councilman Gormley did all in his power. He has been a loyal democrat and can be relied upon in all such contests to be true to his party. James Miskella and John H. Callahan are also popular candidates for the council in the third ward.

The Columbian Club.

At a meeting of the Columbian Democratic club of Ward One, last evening, five new members were initiated; seven proposals for membership. The club is in a flourishing condition. Twelve persons have already been naturalized and several applications made. The club meets weekly and will endeavor to help the interests of democracy during the coming campaign.

OUT ON STRIKE

Haverhill's School Board Won't Get Together.

Mayor Will Try to Get the Board in Session Soon.

HAVERHILL, Oct. 10.—There is a strike among the school board members, and seven declared they will not attend another meeting this year.

School matters have been in a bad state for several months, dating back to the election of the superintendent of schools and the election of teachers for the high school.

Over this election a dead-lock existed for several weeks and there was much feeling over the re-election of Principal Kelly and other teachers of the high school.

Since July it has been impossible to secure a quorum, and no meetings have been held. Among those prominently mentioned as being in the strike is, Dr. L. S. Smith.

He declared today that he would not attend any more meetings this year; he will not seek another election.

He said there were six other members who coincide with his views, and that all had as a reason for not attending any meetings, a dislike of giving their time to school matters and then being publicly denounced and privately besmirched.

He declared that school matters in Haverhill are now being attended to by a triumvirate of the committee.

As these seven members have always been among the most punctual in attending meetings during their term, it is claimed that the chances are unfavorable for a quorum at another meeting this year unless something is quickly done. The strikers declare that they have nothing to arbitrate.

LULUS VS. LALAS.

The "Lulus" and the "Lalas," two teams composed of "would-be but can't-be bowlers," rolled on the Miserables' alleys last evening. "Gene" McOsker, of boot and shoe fame, captained the "Lalas," and "Jim" Brosnan, who keeps Centralville in a state of peace, directed the efforts of the opposing team. Nothing but the private alleys would do for this game, which was full of exciting and difficult plays. The scorers had a hard time keeping count of the strikes and spares, and with the aid of "Gene" McOsker, who is quite an adept at "doctoring" scores, they figured out the following result:

It Elects Officers and Arranges Music For the Season.

At a business meeting of the Philharmonic club, last evening, the following officers were chosen:

President, Larkin T. Trull; vice president, E. K. Baldwin; treasurer, Frank B. Haggett; secretary, Charles W. Eaton; board of directors, C. W. Russell, F. J. Flemings, John J. Haworth, A. W. David, Frederick O. Blunt and Thomas H. Lawler. A rehearsal was afterwards held, C. F. Dimon of Boston conducted it and the selections included Gounod's "Gallia," Rheinberger's "Autumn Song," Leslie's "Sunset Song," and Swabian Folks Song, "Come, Dorothy, Come."

STORMS AT SEA

Many Shipwrecks Along the Coast Today.

THIS IS THE TROPICAL STORM EXPECTED MONDAY.

Life Savers Were Unable to Launch Their Boats.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The U. S. signal officer says the present gale is the one predicted for Monday, and is central on the coast, reaching from North Carolina to Maine with a radius of 500 miles over the sea and inland to the great lakes. Here the wind is 44 miles an hour, and 72 miles at Block Island.

NEWPORT—An unknown three masted schooner in distress was blown to sea before the tug Aquidnet could reach her.

SEABRIGHT, N. J.—The schooner Marie Louise went ashore at Highland beach, and the seas are running so high that the life savers cannot launch their boats.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—The gale has done great damage to shipping here. In Echo bay, of 20 craft anchored last night only five remain, the others having been wrecked or driven to sea.

WASHINGTON—Gen. Smith of the life saving service has received word that a Norwegian bark from Hull, Eng., to Wilmington, Del., in ballast, ran onto the Cape Fear bar off North Carolina and went to pieces; crew of eleven men saved.

DR. HOLMES FUNERAL.

It Was a Simple Service in King's Chapel at Noon.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The funeral of Dr. Oliver Holmes took place at noon with simple services conducted by his life long friend, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in the historic old King's chapel. The procession filed into the church headed by Rev. Dr. Hale, and the service was extremely simple, a few passage of scripture by Dr. Hale, three solos by a quartet, and the dead march in Saul as the procession left the chapel. On the casket was a laurel wreath. Partly on account of the inclement weather and partly on wish of the family the attendance at the services was not large.

The Wilson-Crosby Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. George A. Wilson to Miss Alice L. Crosby took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 77 Marlborough street, and was a pretty event.

The interior of the large house was decorated with a wealth of flowers and potted plants. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Greene, the bridal couple standing under a large floral arch. About 100 friends of the contracting parties were present.

The bride looked charming with a gown of white moire, cut en train with trimmings of duchess point lace, and carried a handsome bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor was Miss Helen S. Greene, and Mr. Frank R. Adams was best man.

The ushers were Messrs. Harry J. Corwin, Joseph Miller and William S. Greene. Music was furnished by the American orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left on a wedding trip and will be "at home" Tuesdays in December, at 77 Marlborough street.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Eliza E. Evans, aged 41 years, died last evening at her home, 124 Hampshire street. She was the wife of Albert A. Evans, and also leaves a son and a daughter.

Albert W. Sayles, aged 71 years, died last night at his home, 649 Westford street. He was employed for a long time as a contractor in the Lowell Machine shop. He leaves a widow and one sister.

Mary Doherty, aged 31 years, died yesterday at St. John's hospital. She was a resident of Collinsville and had numerous acquaintances. The remains will be sent Pawtucket, R. I., for interment.

Ruth Eacott, widow of the late Mathew Eacott died at the residence of her son in law Ebenezer Chapman, 17 Shaffer street, today, aged 70 years. The funeral will occur Friday.

Emily Churchill aged 56 years, widow of George Churchill died yesterday afternoon at her home, 41 John street. The remains will be interred in W. Randolph, Vt.

FLIMSY SEVEN STORY BUILDING ENTIRELY DEMOLISHED.

Nearly Thirty Victims of Defective Construction.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—While the gale was at its height at 3.30 a. m., a seven story building in progress of construction at 74 Munroe avenue was blown down and completely crushed into a mass of debris a two story brick building on the south side.

Thomas Welch, employed in Hecker's stable reported the collapse of the building and his description was a horrible one.

In falling the entire structure fell to the south, but a brick wall on the north side fell outward also, crushing an extension of the house.

On the ground floor of this extension lived Michael McGurk and family, and five boarders and all escaped uninjured. But the disaster was frightfully on the other side. From the mass of debris came groans, and occasionally a prayer while at times the voices of little children were heard telling of the beams that were crushing them down.

Firemen began work at 4 a. m., to rescue those who might be alive, and at 11 o'clock four bodies were found, 9 injured persons taken out and 14 missing. The demolished house was occupied by Abrahams, and Kroons families who also took boarders. The structure which was blown over had repeatedly been condemned as a flimsy affair.

THE PROSPECTS brighten for Senator Hill's election.

MESSRS. ROARKE, O'Connor and Hoban are the victors in a hard fought battle. Our congratulations to you, gentlemen, our sympathies to those who were defeated.

THE POPULISTS of the city are the supposed friends of labor but as a matter of fact they can only injure the cause by defeating some democrats who have been the life long advocates of the rights of labor.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN is doing a lot of shouting for Knox. It is endeavoring to introduce a little personal feeling against Mr. Fifield but it will not succeed. There are no Apaphobians in the democratic party.

FROM ALL the world around come expressions of sympathy and sorrow for the loss of the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." He was a bright star in the literary firmament and the skies are dimmed by his disappearance.

THE CITY council is not doing much of late. Neither is the school board. Both bodies are suffering from overwork that has not been done and are getting tired. It is time to get a move on. Set the wheels in motion gentlemen.

WE ARE to hear more from Hon. Elijah Morse. Let him explain why he left the republican state convention. Was the air too chilly for him? Perhaps he wants to find out for certain when Mr. Montgomery is to make him governor.

THERE is trouble between the congressional and state committees in the populist party. The congressional has ceased to work for the candidates for congress for the reason that its efforts were opposed by the state committee. The chances of electing the candidates are not a bit lessened.

THE STRIKES in New Bedford and Fall River are now almost at an end. Starvation stared the people in the face and it was easy under the circumstances to force a settlement. The city government of Fall River very properly refused to grant further relief, if the operatives refused to accept fair terms and go to work. That made further resistance practically impossible.

SENATOR BRADY ENDORSED.

Justice Assembly, Knights of Labor did a wise thing in endorsing the candidacy of Hon. Peter J. Brady for senator. Whenever the interests of labor came up for consideration Senator Brady was an untiring advocate on the right side. He rendered valuable service on the weavers' bill, and on every other bill calculated to advance the interests of the toilers.

It would be a suicidal policy for labor organizations to oppose democratic candidates who have stood for the interests of the masses in every legislature in which they have had a voice. There is scarcely a single labor reform on the statute books today that was not placed there through the efforts of democrats. Even when the legislature was overwhelmingly republican, a democratic minority fought for the interests of labor until the reforms demanded were conceded in whole or in part.

The populist party may have some theoretical merit, but it cannot control legislation and the organizations that support or endorse it are consequently following an ignius fatuus that will lead them counter to their own interests.

Labor's battle is fought in the legislature and outside. Let it be renewed where it was dropped last year, let the demand for a 54-hour bill for women and children in factories be made with redoubled energy, let a demand be also made for an eight hour day in state and municipal offices. It is useless to expect that needed reforms can be obtained all at once. They come gradually and as the result of long and patient agitation. Let this agitation be kept up outside, and let men in sympathy with the movement be sent to the [illegible] to aid in fighting labor's battles. This is the only safe means of advancing the cause of labor. To form an independent party that will remain for years a nonentity is to retard the movement by retrograde steps. Independence in politics between the two great parties is the surest way of getting labor laws that will guarantee just treatment, fair wages, and shorter hours.

WHERE is that A.P.A. organ for the publication of which the Rev. Hugh Montgomery arranged some weeks ago? Has the project been abandoned or did he find that his knowledge of the English language was too imperfect to warrant his embarking in such an enterprise? Judging from the spelling and grammar of the A. P. A. Herald prospectus, Mr. Montgomery, who penned it, would need a course of instruction at one of our grammar schools. What kind of a response did the reverend gentleman get to his pay in advance circulars? He made the modest request for intending suscribers to put up a year's subscription and take all risks of failure, suspension, change of editor or removal to another church or any of the mishaps, calamities or vicissitudes that befall a new journalistic enterprise. The A.P.A. Herald was due yesterday.

DEMOCRATS SHOULD register this week if they wish to vote at the state election. Wednesday of next week will be the last day for registration for the state election, so that many may find themselves deprived of the privilege of voting through sheer neglect.

BULL FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

"The prohibition of bull fighting in Mexico by laws enacted there about seven or eight years ago has practically done away with such exhibitions in that country, and they are rarely to be seen, except during a few days known as Pascua or feast time, at the close of each year," said F. G. Stratton, a cattleman from the southwest.

"I shall never forget a most brilliant contest that took place just prior to the taking effect of the decree against bull fighting. I was fortunate enough to witness it, and I saw one of the most skillful, daring and expert of the professional fighters of Mexico engaged in the leading part.

"This performer was a young woman, Senorita Hernandez, and she had advertised for the wildest and fiercest bulls the country could produce and agreed to fight them while she was wearing stilts. The novelty of a young girl engaged in a bull fight, handicapped by having stilts fastened to her feet, was sufficient to attract a crowd of fully 5,000 people to the large amphitheater. The animals provided for the occasion were small, active and wholly untamed, and each had his horns trimmed and polished until the horns were quite as bright and almost as sharp as needles.

"The fair Castilian was under an advertised obligation while wearing the stilts to kill at least one bull with a sword scarcely more than two feet in length. This was to be done by the toreadora at the time the animal was making a charge, the fatal thrust to be given while she was directly in front of and fairly facing the bull. The animal selected for this contest was a beautiful specimen, black as coal, agile as a cat, savage and wild. After he had entered the arena and had been permitted to make a charge or two to warm him to his work the governor, who presided on the occasion, gave a signal, and the bugle sounded the 'death call.'

"The senorita with stilts of one foot in height, securely fastened to her limbs, received the short sword, saluted the governor, and, turning toward the bull, gave a shout of defiance and waved her scarlet cloak to arouse his anger. The bull, quivering with excitement and pawing the earth in his rage, his eyes flashing fire, lowered his head to the ground and started at full speed toward the senorita.

"The brave girl waited until the beast was within 20 feet, when, bracing herself firmly, she held her sword at shoulder height, ready for his coming. When within four feet, she threw her body suddenly forward, gave a quick thrust with the sword, and without waiting to see the effect of the blow swung quickly around and again saluted the governor. In the twinkling of an eye she turned to face the bull, and as she did so he dropped dead so close to her that without moving from her position she placed one foot upon the neck of her helpless enemy. The sword, directed by the strong arm of the self possessed girl, had severed the spinal cord, and death was instantaneous and probably painless."—St. Louis Republic.

Unable to Negotiate.

"Do you wish to engage a competent instructor," asked the man at the door, removing his hat, "to give lessons to any members of your family in music or German?"

"No, sir," answered the housewife. "I think not."

"I don't think I could."

"Or a private tutor in elocution?"

"No."

"I have had considerable experience as a teacher of Delsarte. Possibly I might make some arrangement for imparting instruction in this fascinating branch of"—

"I don't think you could."

"Madam," said the man, with a regretful sigh, "I am sorry we are unable to place this matter on a business basis. I have exhausted the list of professions or vocations in which I consider myself fitted to engage as a means of gaining a livelihood. As there appears to be no opportunity to exercise any of them for the relief of present emergencies, I am compelled to ask you, madam, if you will be kind enough to give me a plate of warmed over victuals?"

"I will not."

"May I inquire, madam, if anybody has previously tried to work this game on you?"

"I don't remember that anybody has."

"Then I must have struck a thundering poor neighborhood," rejoined the man, putting on his hat and turning away. "This is the sixth house I've run against in this block without hitting anything."—Chicago Tribune.

A Judicial Appeal.

On one of the many official excursions made by boat to Fortress Monroe and Chesapeake bay, Chief Justice Waite of the supreme court, Judge Hall of North Carolina and other dignitaries of the bench were participants. When the government steamer had fairly got out into the Atlantic, the sea was very rough, and Judge Hall was taken violently with seasickness. As he was moaning aloud in his agony, the chief justice, laying a soothing hand on his shoulder, said: "My dear Hall, can I do anything for you? Just suggest what you wish." "I wish," said the seasick judge, "your honor would overrule this motion."—San Francisco Argonaut.

INTERESTING "HOW" SERIES

THE DIGESTIVE APPARATUS SHOULD BE IRRIGATED.

Water is for many things a simple but sure remedy. Dr. Elmer Lee of Chicago first proposed curing cholera in Germany about a year ago by cleansing the stomach by constant washing out with sterilized water. Sterilizing kills all germs in anything. The same doctor now proposes this treatment for typhoid fever and on this subject says:

"Fears were formerly entertained by me, as they are today by some of my contemporaries, that something would be burst by running a large volume of water into the bowels of persons sick with typhoid fever. No harm has ever been done, and neither is it likely to be caused. Several hundred cases have been so deluged by me with large quantities of water, and in no instance has the result failed to be beneficial. The fear of doing harm may be entirely and forever dismissed."

It is specifically stated that the temperature of the water used for cleansing and washing the bowels should always depend upon the temperature of the body. If there is high fever, the water is more agreeable and useful to the patient when it is cool—viz, 75 degrees—but if the patient is chilly or has a low temperature the water should be at blood heat, nearly 100 degrees. During the first week of illness the irrigation of the bowels should take place in the morning and again in the evening of each day. After this one douche of water should be given each day until convalescence. The co-operation of the patient it readily accorded. The treatment takes hold of his reason, which lends both hope and help to the management of the case.

Bathing the body is performed at regular intervals. The bathtub may be used when the patient is strong enough to be assisted to it. Where otherwise, sponging with cold water is very refreshing and useful to maintain strength and lower the heat of the body. As to the internal treatment, let there be no restraint in administering water. Torturing fever patients with thirst is happily being abandoned on all sides in medical practice.

Typhoid fever is in many parts of the country, and particularly in the high and well drained hilly and mountainous regions, but too often the cause of widespread and fatal epidemics. There should be abundant opportunity to test the irrigation treatment, and it seems to merit careful examination.

How to Whiten Rough Red Hands.

Keep the body clean by two warm baths a week. Take two cool baths a day to keep the skin in a healthy condition. Get the digestive organs in perfect order. Eat and drink temperately, get plenty of sleep and take moderate exercise. Make a lotion for the hands of rainwater, one-third as much glycerin and the juice of one lemon, to be used after washing.

How to Increase Flesh.

First avoid indigestion. The quantity of food we eat matters not; it is the amount which is digested and assimilated. A diet of lean beef that has been finely chopped and robbed of the connective tissues, made into flat cakes, lightly broiled and seasoned, and a tiny piece of well toasted whole wheat bread, with a cup of hot water, if persisted in for two or three months, will effect a cure. After that come back gradually to carbonaceous foods. Remember that the fats are more easily converted into fat than the sugars and starches, and all starchy foods must be well cooked. The light lunch at noon would be decidedly better, and then take your 6 o'clock dinner. After dinner rest plenty of time to digest and assimilate the food.

How to Prevent Choking From a Fishbone.

A raw egg swallowed immediately will generally carry a fishbone down that cannot be removed from the throat by the utmost exertion and has got out of reach of the finger.

How to Wash Underwear.

Never wash underwear in the same suds which have served for white things. Aside from the dirt held in solution, the water is charged with linty particles that are sure to cling and abide in the elastic mesh of knit goods. To wash colored knit silk garments dissolve a handful of powdered borax in a pail of warm water and soak the things in it for 15 minutes. Then wash rapidly through a good white soapsuds, rubbing as lightly as possible. It should be about blood warm. Squeeze out of the suds, but do not wring. Rinse in two waters of the same temperature and hang to dry without any wringing.

How to Renew Stained Floors.

He Mistook His Man.

It was on board a steamer coming from Algeria. They were about to stop, and the passengers on landing would have to pass the custom house. A saloon passenger opened his portmanteau and took therefrom a large assortment of cigars, which he endeavored to stow away in his pockets so as to escape detection. Unfortunately his pockets were not capacious enough to hold the lot; but, nothing daunted, he turned to a fellow traveler, saying, with a winning smile:

"Would you mind taking charge of these four small parcels—just till we have passed the custom house, you know?"

"I don't object in the least," replied the other pleasantly, "but I might not find it quite so easy to give them back to you."

"Why not?"

LIFE OF A COWBOY.

Every year vast herds of cattle are driven out of Texas to the northern ranges. These herds number from 2,000 to 5,000 head each, and they are driven by a company of cowboys numbering usually 12. Besides these men there is the one in charge, commonly called "the boss," and a cook. Each cowboy is usually supplied with four horses, for the journey is a long one, and the animals are apt to become overworked. Then there is the possibility of one or more of them being killed in a stampede.

The stampede is most dreaded by the cowboy. It means hard riding and a fearful tax on the nerves, for in attempting to stop the progress of a herd of young and wild steers that are panic stricken a man takes his life in his hands. To avoid such an occurrence while the cattle are "on trail" they are kept as closely together as possible, for in new and strange surroundings the young cattle are always nervous and excitable.

At night the cattle are "rounded up" and kept together until they lie down. If the cattle are quiet, as they are disposed to be if the weather is pleasant, the cowboys take turns in riding around the herd to see that none wanders away from the main body. This is kept up until morning, when the cattle get up and once more begin feeding. The drift from Texas to Montana requires from four to six months, and it is impossible to imagine the hardships that the cowboy encounters in guiding the animals through waterless regions and over mountains.

As the northern localities are approached the anxiety of the men increases, for they are menaced by terrific thunderstorms, and there is nothing that will drive a herd of cattle crazy so quickly as a loud crash of thunder or a vivid flash of lightning. To cause a stampede it is only necessary for two or three cattle to become terror stricken and start away at a flying gait, bellowing in fright like a mad bull. In an instant the entire herd are alert and before the men can prevent it are rushing madly across the country.

In this emergency the duty of the cowboy is a serious one. He must stop the terrified cattle if possible, and away he goes at breakneck speed, striving to outstrip the leaders. The race continues sometimes for 30 miles.—Chautauquan.

A Lemon Luncheon.

One of the children on Rivington street had an unexpected stroke of luck the other morning. She found a dime. The good news spread rapidly through the neighborhood, and she soon found herself the center of an admiring and reverential group.

"Say, wot er yer goin to buy?" was the question which assailed her ears.

"Leming sticks an lemings. Pony'll give me three lemings for a nickel. We kin cut 'em in half. An leming candy is six fur five. That'll make it right. Now, I'll choose the five wot I'm goin to treat, an I don't want any others a-taggin on."

This was accepted with resignation by the group, and the selection was made with a solemn publicity. The uninvited seemed to feel no rancor, although one of them remarked that she knew whom she would not invite the next time she had any money. The five chosen guests and the hostess proceeded to make the purchases. The lemons were sliced in two and handed around. The sticks of candy were properly apportioned. Each stick was promptly plunged into the heart of the lemon, and the six feasters began to suck their candy.

"Yes," agreed the giver of the banquet. "'Sides they're fashionable. I've read frequently of vi'let lunchings an pink lunchings, an dis yere is a leming lunching. See?"—New York World.

He Wouldn't Give Up His Foot.

"You would never think that I once had a hole clear through my ankle bone, would you?" asked a West Garland man who steps around as lively as any of them. "No? Well, that's what they all say. But it's a fact all the same. When I was in the army, I met a bullet going in a different direction from what I was, and it declined to turn out to let me pass. It struck my ankle fair on the side and bored its way straight through it. At the hospital the doctors in dressing it would draw a cloth right through the ankle. They said the foot must be amputated, but I said no. They said I would die unless they cut it off, but I said I would die with my foot on my body, if at all. They said they would chloroform me if I resisted and cut it off anyway. The chief director of hospitals in the department happened to come there, and the doctors referred the matter to him. He spoke to me pleasantly and gave the wound a careful examination. He said it would have to be cut off probably to save my life, but they would wait a few days before doing it. Well, it wasn't cut off, as you may see, and I think it's a foot worth fighting for, don't you?"—Lewiston Journal.

The Pyrometer.

Some remarkable claims are put forth in behalf of Professor Austen's new pyrometer for the more accurate measurement of high temperatures. It is a thermo junction of platinum and of platinum alloyed with rhodium, this being attached to a galvanometer. The spot of light from its mirror is received on a revolving drum covered with sensitized paper. The curves exhibited give a 24 hours' record of the variations in the temperature of the blast supplied to furnaces smelting iron. In this way it is possible to account for the variations in the working of those large structures, and, by insuring regularity of work, to avoid the occurrence of such variations; also to effect economies of fuel, which it is anticipated will attain very large proportions, proving, it is claimed, to be of great industrial importance in conducting this branch of metallurgy.—New York Sun.

Turning the Tables.

"Young man," said the aristocratic colored citizen, leaning back in his chair, "haven't I seen you befo'?"

"I don't know, sah," responded the colored waiter, depositing the plate of soup before him and placing the salt and pepper within reach. "Was you at de Dahomey village in de Midway last summah?"

"Haw, haw! Sho' 'nough," rejoined the guest, with ready appreciation. "So dat's whah you was! Yas, I was dah!"

"Well, I wasn't," said the waiter stiffly. "I don't tink we've evah met befo', sah."—Chicago Tribune.

Enlightened.

In all policies of life insurance these, among a host of other questions, occur: "Age of father, if living?" "Age of mother, if living?" A man in the country filled up his father's age, "if living," 112 years and his mother's 102. The agent was amazed at this and fancied he had secured an excellent customer; but, feeling somewhat dubious, he remarked that the applicant came of a very long lived family.

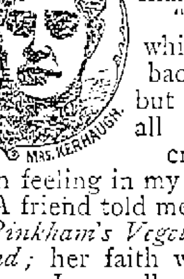

"Oh, you see, sir," replied he, "my parents died many years ago, but 'if living' would be aged as there put down."

"Exactly; I understand," said the agent.—Tit-Bits.

WARLIKE TACTICS

THEY MADE A GRAND SHOWING IN REVIEW.

Many Old Time Methods Have Been Discarded.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Through the mist of a strangely variable autumn morning into the unbroken glory of an October day, 6000 Massachusetts militiamen marched. In the soft brown hats and canvas leggings of field uniform, with the double rows of bright buttons on their army overcoats glistening like stars upon the firmament, the state defenders made a most attractive picture.

Rapidly maneuvering, their swiftly shifting lines among the broad avenues of the Back Bay district and the greenery of the fens threw back a score of colors that arranged themselves with kaleidoscopic harmony. Infantry, artillery, cavalry, naval brigade, cadet corps, around they went with the signal corps on the towers and the men of the red cross on the Common—the whole an exemplification of what volunteers can accomplish in scientific warfare.

The main object of the day was the concentrating of masses into prescribed alignment from deployment in irregular formation; in less soldierly language, the bringing of a disciplined force to the relief of Boston, the performance of work in military fashion and the retirement of the forces as rapidly as they came.

The Essentials.

The men found themselves scattered amid the mists of early morning and Boston's suburbs; the problem was to close upon the mob supposed to be entrenched at the city's center. Every condition was made as much as possible like that of actual emergency. Having the battle line formed upon the general alignment of Massachusetts avenue, stretching through the city, across Harvard bridge and through Cambridge to Union square in Somerville, there was a general forward movement to a designated point by street formations, squares and riot columns to respective regiments.

The regiments reunited, each sought its proper brigade, and, that once formed, the march of the consolidated division was taken up for the heart of the city. All the bodies north of the city reported at Somerville, all south at the Roxbury base-ball grounds, and you have the great outlines of the picture.

There was no burning powder or rattling musketry; instead, an endless forming of hollow squares, flank movements and skirmishing. The colonel gave the order to move forward and clear the street. The first company of each battalion sweeps ahead in double line, reaching from curb to curb. The second company wheeled to the left in two columns, covering the flank; the third to the right, while the fourth closed the square, the colonel and his staff, with colors in the center.

This done, there was the click of triggers from the flank lines to dislodge imaginary rioters in seventh-story windows and on tall housetops. Arrived at a cross street, the columns halted to allow the flank lines to face about down the side thoroughfare and fill the vista with flying lead, while the first company poured a volley into the crowd ahead and the rear company faced about to make the wounded think all hands were coming back.

On the Common.

Another square with unshifting lines was on the Common. Within the square and nearly at its center Captain Myles Standish sat astride his horse. There was the ambulance that looked like a bus. Luggage was scattered over the grass in firmly fastened bundles, while bedding and camp furniture were piled up in a heap.

Half of the naval reserves were with the land defenders. The others were in their element, some stringing a line of torpedoes across the Charles. All Captain Weeks' other boys were clambering about the dispatch and mortar boats, ready to run the most dangerous of blockades.

The signal corps, 'twixt earth and sky, perched on the roof corners of the state house and private buildings, were sweeping the horizon.

The men appeared less like marionettes, sawed out of planks, with their arms grown to their bodies. Instead, there was a natural swing that lacks adieu to the old-time stiffness. The old wheel has become a turn; the methods of halting and resuming march, too, have been altered, and for the better.

Bits of bright color abounded from the crimson feathers of the sharpshooters to the blue and orange arm-bars of those engaged in special service. There were the snowy naval reserves nicely starched and laundered, the deep red cavalry blankets and the dazzling tin cups.

The schools in Cambridge were closed to allow the children to give the semblance of a riot, and many of the stores in Boston suspended business at noon.

The troops were reviewed by the captains, the colonels and the generals, and in the afternoon Governor Greenhalge, the commander-in-chief, presided over the grandest review of all. The parade itself was over two miles in length, and it was late in the afternoon before it had passed the reviewing stand at the state house. The line presented a brilliant spectacle. The soldierly bearing of the men brought forth round on round of applause from the spectators who lined the sidewalks.

The Workers Out.

GAS CITY, Ind., Oct. 10.—The roll department in the Moorwood tin plate mills closed down yesterday. Owners of the mill wanted to make a reduction of 25 per cent in wages and the men refused to accept this.

The End of It.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 10.—The spinners last night voted to accept the report of the conference committee and go to work tomorrow morning. The weavers also will undoubtedly vote to go to work.

Murder and Suicide.

MARBLE ROCK, Ia., Oct. 10.—George Reams murdered his wife, breaking her head with a chair and then cutting her throat. He then cut his own throat. Domestic trouble was the cause.

Schooner Kenduskeag Sunk.

CITY ISLAND, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Captain Cushman, of the bark Henry Norwell, on Oct. 7, off Cape Cod, sighted the schooner Kenduskeag in a sinking condition. Captain Cushman took off Captain Ginn and the crew and landed them at this place. The Kenduskeag went down shortly afterward.

INSTRUCTIVE HOUSEHOLD LORE

The graceful carafe is no longer stylish, and in its place has come the cut glass ice pitcher.

Very unique are the little glasses in the shape of tulips, with delicate silvery tracery, which are used to serve "frappe" in, a very popular ice for afternoon teas and receptions.

A handsome finger bowl which is both new and novel is, in fact, a double bowl, one shallow bowl of opal glass being set in a second, perhaps ten sizes larger. The space between is filled with small flowers. The effect is extremely effective, and the guests feel that they are dipping their fingers in flower wreathed water.

Among the new finds are the exquisite porcelain spoons which accompany the new cafe noir sets.

The "fried oyster server," with its wide, short blade and handle decoration of shell, is one of the novelties in silver which give promise of being very popular.

The "flapjack lifter," which is a broad, flat shovel with perforations and has a handsome oxidized handle, is among the novelties recently placed on the market.

Quaint shaped dishes for salted almonds are in the form of a half almond in soft browns and yellows. A dessert set is of white china with no decoration except a gold band and monogram.

And, to conclude this little summary of fetching novelties mentioned in The Decorator and Furnisher, white china trays decorated in seashells and aquatic flowers and leaves are among those used for salads and water cress.

A Picturesque Mantel.

Designs for some of the latest and most popular styles of mantels are given in Ladies' Home Journal, and among them is a picturesque example of an old Dutch mantel of tile, metal and wood.

To carry out the effect in the true form the tile should be either a bottle green or an old blue. The metal frames, studded

The doors of the small cabinets at either end of the shelf should have in each six old Dutch bullseyes of colored glass leaded together. The hinge straps and escutcheons on them are to be of the same metal the tile work is bound with. The balls at the ends of the side chains are cast affairs and studded with spikes to lend them an antique appearance, while the plates at the bottom and fastened to the face of the side piers are to be of sheet iron decorated as the drawing shows. This style of mantel is very quaint and original and gives a decidedly unique look to a room.

Bathrooms of Fortune's Favorites.

The prevailing fashion among those favorites of fortune who are owners and occupants of the palacelike mansions that are springing up on the eastern side of Central park is to have their bathing rooms as luxurious and ornamental as their boudoirs and bedrooms. A bathroom, says Harper's Bazar, is no longer a place for the ablutions of all the members of a family, where the household has a cupboard for her brushes and brooms, and where little boys and girls may sail their paper boats by way of an occasional indulgence. Every member of a millionaire's family in these days has a suit of rooms for his or her exclusive use, consisting of the sleeping room, dressing or sitting room and bathroom. Onyx is the favorite stone for the belongings of a modern bathroom. It was introduced a few years since by Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, the walls of whose bathing apartment are entirely of white onyx, as are also the furnishings. The floor, of course, has its rich soft rugs, and there are cushions to the one or two chairs that the room contains, but no upholstery, and the draperies are all of muslin or some light washing material, so that microbe or insect life could find no resting place in the apartment.

Nice Ways to Cook Tomatoes.

There is hardly anything more appetizing in the way of cooked tomatoes than the baked tomato, either plain or stuffed. To bake tomatoes cut off a small piece of the fruit at the stem end and put in a bit of butter, a pinch of sugar and a pinch of salt. Sift a little powdered cracker or bread crumbs over them, and if the flavor is liked add a few bits of onion. Bake an hour and have the top brown. For stuffed tomatoes select large, full meated tomatoes. Cut off the tops of a sufficient number to fill a baking dish of the size desired. Scoop out about a third of the contents of each tomato and fill the space with bread crumbs, butter, a little salt and a little pepper. Sprinkle bread crumbs over the whole. Add a few more bits of butter. Set in the oven and bake till the crumbs are a nice light brown.

A Useful Article.

A sandbag is one of the most useful of household articles. Its virtues are equal if not superior to the hot water bag, and the cost is considerably less. The sand should be fine and clean and should be thoroughly cleaned out before being bagged. It is better to cover the flannel bag which holds the sand with a cotton one, as it prevents the sand from sifting out. A bag not larger than 10 inches square is a convenient size.

Trouble In the House.

"I'm very unhappy," said the lamp. "People are always turning me down."

"That's because you smoke too much," said the sofa, "but I—I don't do anything, and they're always sitting on me."—London Quiver.

If the United States had as great a relative population as Japan, it would have a population of 900,000,000 people.

TRAINING RACE HORSES.

The Differences In English and American Methods Compared.

There is no doubt that horses in England show a higher state of muscular development than ours, says a writer in the Boston Herald. There are no deep snows and icy tracks in the early spring over there, as with us, which compel our trainers to do in April and May what the English trainers can very easily start to do in February, nor are there the terrific "dog days" of August, nor the thermometer about the 100 mark in July to waste the horses to shadows of themselves.

All told they go much slower in the handling of the yearlings than is done here. The general features are much the same, but more care is taken in the bitting and mouthing. Side lines are first put on the yearling or a "dumb jockey" on its back, and the youngster after a week or so is jogged around the ring, gradually increasing the pace to a nice even canter. Then a boy or rather a man weighing perhaps 130 pounds, so as to accustom the colt to carry weight, is put up. Walking exercise is done for a month before the colt is asked to gallop.

The American trainer has one very marked advantage—there is so much more room on the breeding farms in this country that the colt has done considerable racing on his own hook and passes into the hands of the trainer in much better shape to handle himself than yearlings raised in England, where the paddocks are frequently so small that the colts no sooner gets extended in his play before he has to stop himself to keep from running into the fence. So that while the American bred yearling is asked to do in September and October what the Briton is only called upon for in February when it is fully 2 years old, yet there is not much to choose, as the American bred youngster is certainly more precocious and more of a race horse of its own making at an earlier date than the English bred one.

DISCIPLES OF RUSKIN.

Mr. Ruskin has so much to answer for in the vagaries of his disciples. The dangers of the Ruskin cult are dwelt upon in Good Words by Mrs. E. T. Cook, who points out that while every word of the "master" has at times been quoted as that of an inspired prophet few writers are so little able as he to bear the test of literal interpretation. If only his worshipers had the saving quality of humor, they would not always take him seriously. Mr. Ruskin denounces railway trains, and forthwith a small sect not only taboo those after all highly convenient vehicles for their own traveling, but carry their letters themselves rather than post them and thus utilize the iron monsters. He expresses a dislike of sewing machines because some part of his clothing has become unraveled, and forthwith the same people will wear nothing that is not hand sewed. Meanwhile the seer of Coniston in all probability goes on wearing machine sewed gloves and shirts himself and certainly does not despise the aid of the railway when he goes on a journey.

An awful warning to devotees are the young couple of ardent Ruskinians who, burning with a divine rage against usury and luxury, once determined to carry into practice Mr. Ruskin's extremest views of plain living (for others) and tried in vain, to their intense discomfort, to enjoy only the produce of their own industry. Another disciple gave up bookkeeping for pig-keeping, but after awhile he returned to his books, and what time he can spare from them is devoted to inditing the tale of his grievances against his former idol.

Not Without His Father's Permission.

Richard Vaux has never been to a theater in his life to see a theatrical performance. An interesting incident is given of his boyhood days, over threescore years ago. His father, a highly respected and prominent Friend, resided on Arch street and believed it was best for his children to be trained within the rules of the good old Quaker habits. At that period Ned Forrest was the brilliant young American tragedian and had captivated all the boys of Philadelphia in his character of the Roman gladiator and big Indian Metamora. Young Vaux naturally desired to see the great actor play, but shrank from going without his father's consent, so one day he ventured to ask his father for a half dollar to get a ticket. The old gentleman kindly replied in Quaker accent:

"Richard, I don't begrudge the money, but thee knows I don't approve of playhouses and wish thee to promise me not to go to a theater without my permission."

The promise was given, and his father died suddenly after without giving the permission. Richard Vaux has conscientiously refrained from going to the theater ever since.—Philadelphia Times.

Effect of Example.

I was staying at a house recently where most of the women smoked. One day the hostess discovered her small daughter, aged 12, in a corner of the veranda calmly smoking a pipe and was horrified and at once proceeded to lecture the small delinquent. "I am shocked at you, Mabel," she said. "I suppose you have seen women smoking and think it is pretty, but it is not; it is disgusting. No little boy will have anything to do with you. They will go home and tell their sisters what a vulgar, uncefined little girl you are."

Precautions After Death.

Apropos of Mr. Edmund Yates' curious request in his will that his jugular vein should be cut before he was cremated—in order apparently to insure that he should not be burned alive—it may be recalled that Lord Lytton, the novelist, left orders that before he was buried a long needle should be run through his heart. He had taken the precaution to tell his doctor of his wish, and it was carried out.—London Letter.

A Brilliant Prospect.

Every time Tony is taken out for a walk he is astonished at the number of persons who exchange greetings with his grandfather, who has charge of the little urchin. After thinking it over one day he looked up with a smile on his face and cheerfully remarked:

"I say, gran'dad, won't you have a lot of folks to your funeral!"—Noticiero Bilbaino.

Naturalists have enumerated 20,000 different kinds of butterflies and 667 different species of reptiles. Of the former about two-thirds have been named; of the latter 400 are nonpoisonous.

The Real Danger.

Clara—Yes, I have enjoyed the company of the Fandorths very much. They are delightful people, but I should not care to meet them in town.

Flossie—You think you might not care so much for them after finding out who they are?

Clara—I was thinking that they might find out who we are.—Boston Transcript.

Crooked Counting.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—City Clerk Galvin was a witness yesterday in the case of alleged fraud in the ward 10 caucus, and caused a sensation by testifying that he had not brought the registration box, as ordered by the court, because the figures on the box had been changed since the caucus. In cross-examination, the fact was brought out that the numbers were changed Monday night in city hall, because the boxes are to be used at the caucuses tonight. Judge Bolster made a final count of the checklist yesterday, showing that 838 names were checked off, whereas the announcement of Warden Mulhern, who is on trial, was a total of 970 votes.

A $26,000 Trotting Race.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—The 3-year-old filly Beuzetta earned for her owner, E. W. Ayers, the largest amount that was ever paid to the winner of a trotting race—$22,420. Second money was $3000 and third money $1000, and Mr. Ayres got $1000 for nominating Beulah, the dam of Beuzetta. Beuzetta was considered quite the best of the nine starters.

An Arkansas Tragedy.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 10.—At Texarcana Dick Johnson, a gambler, had an altercation with C. E. Dixon, and Dixon threatened to kill Johnson in case he failed to produce a certain letter by 6 o'clock. Dixon took up a position in front of a saloon. A few minutes later Johnson emerged from the resort armed with a shotgun, and without warning blew Dixon's head off.

Strikers vs. Police.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10.—A desperate fight occurred between a squad of police and about 500 Italians, formerly employed at the Newark end of the East Orange sewer outlet, yesterday afternoon. The Italians were marching to the sewer to drive out the men who had replaced them. Two policemen and a number of rioters were hurt. After 10 minutes' fighting the strikers fled.

Strong For Mayor.

TAXES.

Collector's Notice.

TAX LIST FOR 1894,

With instructions to collect in the manner prescribed by the Statutes of the Commonwealth and the Ordinances of the City of Lowell, the sums assessed by them to the persons named therein, and he is now ready to receive payment of said Taxes at his office in City Hall.

When a Poll Tax only is assessed, the Tax is due, and if not paid forthwith, the Collector will proceed to collect the Tax as directed by the General Statutes.

SUMMONS, bearing costs, will be issued against delinquent Poll and Personal Tax Payers on or about November 1st.

INTEREST at the rate of seven per cent. per annum will be charged upon all Taxes which remain unpaid October 20, 1894 until the same shall be paid; and such interest shall be added to and considered a part of said Taxes. Poll Taxes are assessed on every male inhabitant above the age of 21 years. On undivided real estate each heir is liable for the whole tax. An error in the name of the person taxed does not defeat the collection of the Tax. Each partner is liable for the whole Tax assessed under the partnership name.

The assessors are now distributing Tax Bills. If any ratable inhabitant, by removing his residence since the first day of May, or from any cause, should not receive his Tax Bill, he must consider the Tax demanded by this notice, and a new bill will be made out on application at the office of the City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes if a Tax has been assessed.

All who preserve their Tax Bills and bring them when they come to pay, will save the time of making a new bill and facilitate the business of the office.

Office Hours: From 9 o'clock a.m. to 3 p.m.

For the convenience of the Tax paying public the office of the Collector will be open in the evening as follows: Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, from Oct. 1 to Oct. 13, inclusive, 7 to 9 o'clock p. m. Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, from Oct. 15 to Oct. 20, inclusive, from 7 to 9 o'clock p. m.

☞ Look for your Tax Bill at your place of residence May 1st, 1894, and bring it with you.

JOHN H. HARRINGTON,
City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes for the City of Lowell.

J. E. Conant & Co. will sell at public auction, for just what they will bring, fourteen house lots on Chas. E. Carter place, Middlesex Village, or between the Tyler estate and the Joseph Smith estate, and on the line of the street railway. On Saturday next, Oct. 13th rain or shine, beginning promptly at 3 o'clock p. m., and on the premises, about halfway between the junction of Broadway with Middlesex street and the old Middlesex tavern, known as Middlesex park, I shall sell without limit or reserve, to the highest bidders, fourteen lots of land on very easy terms. The lots contain from 3379 to 5500 square feet of land each with frontages from 40 to 60 feet; are level, high and dry; are steady to build upon or improve. Originally there were twenty-two lots; four have been built upon, two have the foundations in for building, and fourteen are now to be sold to whoever will bid the highest for them. It's a splendid opportunity, in an excellent neighborhood, in a very desirable portion of Ward Four, on the line of the street cars, and about ten minutes' ride or drive from "Down Town," and have all the conveniences of any residential section of the city.

☞IT'S THE YEAR TO BUY REAL ESTATE.

The purchaser must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers from $25 to $50 on each lot as soon as each lot is struck off. Other terms liberal and easy.

The sale will be absolute. The sale will take place rain or shine. Plans of lots posted on the lots.

Bijou Theatre License Revoked For Cause—Council Decides to Accept the Bid of New England Construction Company and Authorizes the Mayor to Sign a Contract.

At 8 o'clock Mayor Pickman called to order and read the call for the meeting of the aldermen.

The following favorable reports of the street committee were ordered seven days to the city clerk's office: For acceptance of street from Powell to Chelmsford street; J. M. Wilson, for acceptance of Lamb street; A. D. Gordon, for edgestones on Whitney avenue; Samuel C. Shirley for a sidewalk on the northerly side of Sheldon street; L. J. Fletcher, for sidewalk on westerly side of Harvard street; J. F. Purfer for sidewalk on May street.

A hearing was then opened on the petition of the Standard Oil company, for the erection of a building on Main street to store tanks containing petroleum and its products, and also to set up a steam boiler.

Alderman Dunlap of the committee appointed to investigate said he believed the permit should be granted, but the resolution should be carefully drawn up in order to comply with the letter of the law.

He offered a motion to that effect and it passed.

Mr. Means, state inspector of oil, said that the proposed location of the works is a very good one, far removed from residences. There is very little danger of its being struck by lightning. As for explosions, he thought there was not much chance of one, and should a fire occur it would be confined to the building itself and would not spread, as does a fire in a wood working establishment.

Permission was granted to Alfred Swanson to set up and run an engine on Maple street.

An order was adopted authorizing the use of the Currier system in counting the ballots on election days.

Several petitions for minor licenses were referred.

Bijou Theatre Closed.

The resolution was adopted.

Alderman S. J. Johnson desired to know if a forfeit will be required of the contractors of the East Merrimack street bridge for delay in the work. Mayor Pickman said that he had been informed that the street committee has the right the extend the time. To settle the matter Alderman Johnson moved that the opinion of the city solicitor be obtained and the motion passed.

In The Lower Board.

It took some time for the council to get together last evening. When President Sparks called to order twenty members were present. Considerable concurrent business was transacted, and then Councilman Curtin called up his motion to reconsider the vote accepting the majority report of the garbage committee, in favor of a contract with the New England Construction company for the disposal of garbage. The motion to reconsider was lost 15 to 4. The motion to accept the majority report then passed.

The resolution authorizing the mayor to sign an agreement with the construction company upon the terms submitted, which are that the company will reduce all garbage not exceeding 20 tons daily at $25,000 per annum; anything in excess of that amount 25 cents per ton or the company will reduce all the garbage of 15 years at $5000 per year.

The report of the committee for fire department, recommending changes in the rules, was taken up again and again laid on the table until the next meeting.

An invitation to review the temperance parade was accepted.

METHOD OF QUELLING RIOTS.

HOW JUSTICE IS ADMINISTERED IN NICARAGUA.

Persistent Attempts to Rule an American Is Countenanced and Abetted by the Government—Summary Punishment Inflicted.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—Pittsburg friends of Calvin Ansburn, the American, now imprisoned in Nicaragua, are daily expecting to hear from him regarding his situation. Mr. Ansburn is very well known here, having been in business in this city until 1886, when he first went to Central America. His home is at Brookville, and his parents now reside there.

In 1886 Mr. Ansburn decided to cast his fortunes in Central America. He went there and secured valuable timber and meat concessions. Later he embarked in the business of raising bananas for the markets of this country. His plantation is far from Bluefields. The land is at the junction of the Rama and Requa rivers and is the head of navigation, that is, so far as the big ocean steamers are concerned.

The ownership of this plantation, a mile square, is the cause of Mr. Ansburn's troubles. Pittsburg attorneys are counsel for him in a suit now pending in the United States circuit court.

About a year after he went to the country he was attacked by a body of riotous natives, who

and drove him out into the turbulent river in a small boat. They opened fire on him, but he was uninjured. The American servant, a colored boy, whom he had taken from Pittsburg, at this juncture secured several rifles and emptied them on the enemy. They believed they were being attacked in force and fled. It was discovered that several had been killed by the shots.

For this the partisans of the dead men never forgave Ansburn. Some time after that his house was attacked, looted and burned. At that time there were several thousands of dollars' worth of goods destroyed. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, Ansburn stuck to the country.

Then there was some talk of building a railroad in Nicaragua. The line of route was to pass through the property. The government thought that it would be desirable to acquire it, and the official persecution of Ansburn began.

Ansburn was in this country last month, having come home to get married. The ceremony was performed in New York on Sept. 3. A few days after he stopped in this city on his way to the south. He was warned by his friends not to return, but he decided to do so

A Would-Be Train Wrecker.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—William Law, a former employe of the Fort Wayne railroad, was convicted yesterday of attempting to wreck a passenger train in revenge for having been discharged. A passenger train was stopped just in time to avoid running into an immense bowlder that would have ditched the train and cost perhaps many lives. At the trial Law's little son gave damaging evidence. No defense was made.

A Long Step Forward.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—That great project to unite Chesapeake bay with the Delaware river by a canal, and thus supply the most important link to an internal waterway route from Florida to Long Island Sound, received an impetus yesterday by the appointment of an expert board of commissioners to select the line of the canal. The board is expected to go to work speedily.

Gallant Service Appreciated.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—For the first time in the history of the United States army permission has been granted by the federal department for the presentation of a stand of colors to a regiment by private citizens. The regiment is the Fifteenth Infantry of Fort Sheridan. The movement is in recognition of the services of the regiment during the great railroad strike.

Politics and Murder.

ATLANTA, Oct. 10.—James Chambers, a Democrat, shot and killed James Weaver, a Populist, in Early county, in a quarrel over the election returns. Chambers is in jail, and Populists threaten to take him out and lynch him. Democrats have armed themselves to defend Chambers. Excitement is at fever heat and a bloody riot is feared.

Paid a Big Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Chilian government has just paid into the state department $210,364, being the amount of the judgments rendered against Chili by the Chilian claims commission. Most of these claims are based upon injuries sustained by American citizens resident in Chili and Peru during the war between those countries.

On America's Shore.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 10.—Count Schy, a member of the lower house of the Hungarian diet has written a letter from New York to his constituents saying that he has emigrated to America in order to start a new life. He had been renounced because he adopted the Unitarian faith in order to be able to marry the mother of his children.

A Bad Man.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 10.—Two years ago a man known as "Chucky" Feeney assaulted and nearly killed a barber named Jim Cady and shortly afterward injured Officer Sylvester. He was wanted on about a dozen charges, and was captured yesterday afternoon only after a hard fight.

Captain Bunce Will Command.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The board to conduct the trial of the Maine will meet at New London Monday at 10 o'clock. Captain Bunce will command the ship on her trial. As this will not be a speed, but a horse power trial, the engineers will conduct it.

Didn't Bring Price Wanted.

CHINESE TONGUE

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT ORIENTAL AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Ambassador Patenotre, the representative of the French republic in the United States, is regarded as one of the best informed men in diplomatic life on China and the scenes of present conflict between that country and Japan. A good part of his life in the French diplomatic service has been spent at Pekin and Tien-Tsin. His views on Eastern affairs possesses unusual interest.

The ambassador was asked to give his personal observations of the places which are now the theater of conflict and of Li Hung Chang and his surroundings.

M. JULES PATENOTRE.

"At the time the Tien-Tsin treaty was signed," said the ambassador, "I was brought in contact with Li Hung Chang almost daily for six weeks, and while I had known him before, this close intercourse in negotiating so important a treaty gave me the opportunity of a somewhat personal acquaintance with him.

"He does not speak English, French or any other language than his own, all intercourse with foreign officials being carried on through an interpreter. There appears to be a settled policy among Chinese diplomats and officials to adhere to their own language, so much so that a Chinese diplomat at Paris who became proficient in making French bon mots created something of a sensation and was afterward recalled.

"Viceroy Li impressed me, however, as one of the very few Chinese officials who at heart desired to adopt the modern ways of European countries, and if he had not been held back by the overwhelming sentiment of China against Eastern civilization, he would have modernized China long ago. As it is, he has introduced quite a European atmosphere into his private household. He has a French cook to serve him. Some of the dinners he gave me were what they termed "double dinners," as there would be a Chinese dish and then a French one, thus alternating courses throughout the dinner.

Statesman, but No Warrior.

"Li strikes one as a student and statesman, rather than a warrior. His tendencies are all those of a scholar, while his great authority as viceroy of the metropolitan province of China and special guardian of the emperor has made him the head of the war power. But he is not a genius of war as he is of statesmanship. He has sought to modernize the Chinese army and navy, and such strength as these arms of defense have are due to his introduction of foreign officers, including General Gordon, and his adoption of modern arms and ordnance. The artillery he has secured is fairly good, but compared with those of improvement of European and American troops, which improve constantly, they are out of date."

M. Patenotre was asked as to the defenses of Pekin which the Japanese now threaten to strike, and the roads over which the invaders will have to pass if they march on Pekin.

"The defenses are very primitive," said the ambassador. "The outer wall is a huge affair, completely encircling the city. It is about the height of a six-story building and wide enough for travel by horses and carriages. But as a means of defense it would amount to nothing against modern artillery. The walls about Tonkin were even stronger, being built by skilled engineers, but they quickly gave way before big guns. There is hardly any such thing as roads about Pekin and Tien-Tsin, so that travel is very difficult. There are occasional stretches of good road, paved with large stone blocks, but these are exceptional.

"The trip from Tien-Tsin to Pekin—about 90 miles—used to take two or three days. Usually it is made by the river route, and that also takes several days. It is the most primitive of traveling, each passenger having a boat to himself. When I went by river from Tien-Tsin to Pekin I occupied one boat, my secretary another, the provisions another and the servants another. Thus the boats beat and tacked by means of little sails. There was no steamer above Tien-Tsin, although the capital and the emperor were only 90 miles above."

Fishermen Suffered.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10.—Schooner Hiram Lowell, from Grand Banks, sprung aleak during the gale of Sept. 30, off Grand Banks, and went adrift, losing an anchor. All the trawl gear which was set was swept away and lost. Other vessels also suffered considerably.

A GREAT CELEBRATION

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Fully 60,000 visitors were in the city yesterday, the occasion being the corner stone laying of the Home of the Commercial Travelers' Association of America. The celebration of the day included a parade through the principal streets of the city, winding up at the home site, which is situated on the top of South mountain.

The parade was one of the largest seen in southern New York. It consisted of the many delegations of commercial men, 35 Odd Fellow lodges, the Masonic fraternity of two New York districts, Red Men's tribes, a regiment of the Pennsylvania National Guard, the local fire department, and many other civic, military and fraternal organizations.

On arriving at the home John Horing laid the corner stone according to the Masonic ritual. He also delivered an address. Colonel Baxter of Elmira delivered the oration of the day, after which Governor Flower and Governor Pattison made extemporaneous speeches, in which they eulogized the commercial travelers and said many pleasant things for the home. The celebration was a success in every way.

Against Bill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Third ticket party, at a meeting last evening at the office of E. M. Shepard, decided to nominate the following ticket: For governor, Everett P. Wheeler, of New York city; for lieutenant governor, Daniel N. Lockwood, of Buffalo; for judge of the court of appeals, Charles F. Brown, of Orange county. Everett P. Wheeler has announced his acceptance of the nomination. Mr. Shepard said that Messrs. Brown and Lockwood would also accept the nominations. Hon. Charles S. Fairchild was appointed chairman of the campaign committee.

New York Endeavorers' Convention.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—The ninth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor society of the state of New York opened with fully 3000 delegates present. Mayor Wilson delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the city. Several salutation addresses were delivered. Secretary Schuyler made a flattering report of the work of the junior departments and A. E. Dewhurst made a similar report for the senior unions.

Honeymoon Was Short.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—John F. Cutting was arrested yesterday in an action brought against him by Christine L. Cutting for a separation on the ground of abandonment. They were married on June 1, 1893, at San Francisco. She says that he learned on the bridal trip east that she had $7500, and that he obtained it from her by threats in order to invest it.

Who Is to Blame?

DAYTON, O., Oct. 10.—The search for the perpetrators of the two recent murders of the veterans of the Soldiers' home on pension day develops the fact that 40 old soldiers have been robbed and murdered at the National Military home here, and only passing notice has been taken of the crimes. The Grand Army is taking hold of the matter.

VAN LUEN'S ADVICE

DUBUQUE, Ia., Oct. 10.—Special Examiner Waite of the pension bureau, in obedience to the order of Judge Shiras in the federal court, has filled the documents captured in the famous tin box in Pension Agent George N. Van Luen's private office at Little Springs, Ia. These documents are mostly in the form of correspondence, incriminating upon its face, between Van Luen and certain boards of medical examiners with whom he had relations.

Nearly all of the numerous indictments found against the pension attorney are based upon these letters. In all, about 700 papers are filed. Some of these letters are to pension claim agents, who Van advised to grease the members of the board in order to have their examinations go through smoothly. Others are letters between the agent and the surgeon, in which terms are agreed on for raising ratings and fixing up the papers in their cases.

It appears that Van Luen gave claimants to understand that this payment of money to medical examiners was the usual thing. Some of the documents show that affidavits as to physical disability were bought from physicians at an average rate of 50 cents a line. One letter makes an offer to a physician at Lincoln, Neb., to pay $5 for an affidavit covering a disease of the stomach, deafness and heart disease. The doctor sent the affidavit, but demanded $10 for it. This physician, whose name is not revealed, has since testified that he has made a large number of affidavits.

McKinley's Popularity.

ELROY, Wis., Oct. 10.—Governor McKinley spoke here last night. The governor has been nominated for president in every state through which he has passed, and Wisconsin has taken up the cry with increasing vigor at every place.

Missing From Auburn.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 10.—Charles O. Littlefield of this city mysteriously disappeared on Sunday last, and has not been seen or heard from since. He had considerable money. Suicide is feared, though some think foul play.

A Bad Start.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—Bob Acton, guard on the Harvard football team last year, yesterday made his first appearance for this season. In the preliminary practice he dislocated his elbow, and will be disabled for the season.

Money Is Up.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The backer of Billy Plimmer, the bantam champion, has put up a deposit of $500 to bind a match with Charley Kelley, who challenged Plimmer.

Riotous Strikers.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10.—Led by Mrs. Mary Ozerwickrow and her husband, 500 striking hatters attacked the employes of the G. N. Eldens shop. Five men were seriously injured. The woman and her husband were arrested. Many other incipient riots occurred during the day.

Scholl's Offer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—President Scholl of the Olympic club of New Orleans is in the city to bid for the Fitzsimmons and Corbett fight, for which articles of agreement will probably be signed tomorrow. The Olympic club will offer a purse of $25,000 for the fight.

End of a Family Quarrel.

HOLLAND, N. Y., Oct. 10.—For several weeks a family quarrel has been going on between Louis Kessler and his wife's father, Fred Schleifer. Yesterday Kessler killed his wife, who refused to live with him, and then went to the woods and shot himself.

Minister of Colonies Draws Out.

MADRID, Oct. 10.—Serious differences have arisen in the cabinet regarding the reforms proposed to be put into effect in Cuba and Porto Rico. The minister of the colonies has, as a consequence, announced that he will surrender his portfolio.

Was on Grant's Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—General Ely S. Parker, who during the war was a member of General Grant's staff, has been stricken with paralysis again, and little hope is entertained of his recovery.

Murderers Lynched.

IRVINE DEPOT, Ky., Oct. 10.—Alexander Richards, who murdered Mrs. Emily White Saturday afternoon, was taken from jail yesterday by 100 men and lynched.

Live Stock Markets.

BRIGHTON, Mass., Oct. 10.—Amount of stock on the market at this place and at Watertown.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—The demand was fairly active, with prices for good cattle showing no change from those of a week ago, while common and ordinary grades were ½@¾c per lb lower.

Milch cows and springers—Drovers feel sure that there is going to be a good demand for choice new milch cows, and they propose to dispose of them in person rather than to turn them over to speculators and jobbers.

Sheep and lambs—The demand moved slowly and buyers were offering prices much lower than those of last week. In many instances sales were made at a decline of ½c per lb.

Swine—The stock is selling at 6½c per lb, dressed weight, a decline of ½c for last week. It is quoted at 5½c per lb, live weight.

Mr. Jones Isn't Dead.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—The suit of Mrs. Martha Jones to recover $2000 from the Fidelity Mutual Life association on a policy on the life of her husband was brought to an abrupt termination yesterday. The defense produced a deposition and photograph of Jones showing that he is now living in England. Mrs. Jones had in December, 1889, identified the body of a railroad victim as that of her husband.

A Pretty State of Affairs.

LOURENZO MARQUEZ, Oct. 10.—Several whites and a number of friendly Kaffirs were attacked and massacred in the outskirts of the town yesterday. The Portuguese and foreign residents are holding public meetings to denounce the incompetence of the government and to demand energetic action to crush the Kaffirs. Business is paralyzed and the public offices are closed.

Still Unsettled.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 10.—The Cotton Manufacturers' association after a two hours' session yesterday took no action toward closing the strike. Though no one favored a restoration of the old rate, the 10 per cent reduction failed to get the necessary three-fourths vote from those under agreement to shut down. The feeling is that the mills will resume on a full reduction of 10 per cent. Mayor Coughlin's letter encouraging the opening of the mills was favorably received, though no action was taken on it.

Tillman's Declaration.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 10.—Governor Tillman declares that "constables will at once go to work and search all places where they have reason to know that liquors are kept, and that private residences will not be exempt when they are made depots for the storage of whisky."
